SULLIVAN MEN LASH DUNNE; BACK BRINTON

County Committee Resents Pamphlet Attack on Roger C.

WILD FINISH IS SEEN.

The primary campaign came to a dramatic climax last night when the full meaning of the Sullivan clan's eleventh hour scuttling of Gov. Dunne's gubernatorial candidacy for renomination was flashed through the city and state.

The action of the Democratic Cook county managing committee in suddenly repudiating Dunne and declaring for William B. Brinton for the nomination for governor by a vote of 25 to 7 blew the roof clear off the Democratic shanty.

Within two hours the swish of political tomahawks was heard in every ward in Chicago.

RECALL DUNNE BALLOTS.

Immediately following the vote orders were sent out to all Sullivan ward leaders to hold up the distribution of the 200,000 printed marked ballots and to have all precinct captains at headquarters at once to mark the ballots for Brinton.

Mr. Brinton was in the city, awaiting word from the conference. As soon as it was hurried to him he pulled his coat and prepared to make as much hay as possible by Tuesday night in Chicago.

He broke into the Sullivan clan demonstration at Forest Park at night with his first speech and the clansmen went wild.

HARMONY BEANS SPILLED.

The indorsement of Brinton was precipitated by the scathing attack made on Roger C. Sullivan by the Briggs house committee, dominated by the Harrison leaders. The placing of the pamphlet in circulation Friday spilled all the harmony beans. The Sullivan leaders exploded and the county committee meeting was called at once.

Loud claims were made at the Hotel Sherman wigwam that Brinton would sweep Cook county, and in backing up their claims the Sullivan leaders put into operation their combined organization strength in the effort to deliver every vote on their roster.

In going for Brinton, too, the Sullivan chiefs are evening up the score with not only Dunne but Senator James Hamilton Lewis and Mr. Harrison for the way in which they have kept the Sullivan clan out of the federal patronage shack in Illinois for four years and for their opposition to Sullivan for United States senator.

DUNNE MAKES STATEMENT.

Gov. Dunne was at the La Salle hotel when he learned of the action of the county committee. He refused to be quoted, but at night issued a formal statement as follows:

In view of the fact that I have refrained from taking part in the local differences in the party in Cook county, I regret that a majority of the Democratic Cook county committee has seen fit to differ with the Democratic state convention. That convention, mentioning me by name, indorsed the state administration. The local county committee repudiates that indorsement by declaring in favor of a man who has had nothing to do with the state administration against the man who was at the head of the state administration.

I appeal from the action of the majority of this county committee to the Democrats of Cook county and the state of Illinois upon the record of my public acts and am absolutely confident of the result.

EDWARD F. DUNNE.

The governor, talking to friends, disclaimed all responsibility for the circular which aroused the wrath of the Sullivan clan. The governor said he and his friends had nothing to do with the publication and the Sullivan people are aware of that fact.

EXPLAINING IT ALL.

The formal resolution discarding Dunne follows:

"The most important thing the Democratic party has to do this year is to reelect President Wilson. Every other consideration is subordinate to this.

"Local nominations everywhere, therefore city, county, district, or state ought to be the strongest nominations that can be made. One weak spot in an important place on the ticket as a

HOYNE PROBES PRIVATE BANKS; SEIZES BOOKS

Finds Way Under Law to Check Up on Secret Concerns.

FIRST FOUND SOUND.

State's Attorney Hoyne became bank examiner yesterday and started an investigation of the solvency of private banks in Cook county.

Without waiting for the legislature, which has twice failed to put these institutions under the protection of the state, although forty-seven such banks have failed since 1911, Mr. Hoyne discovered two laws on the statute books which gave him authority to investigate.

"We shall see," he said to his assistants, "if we can lock the doors this time before another horse is stolen. Max Silver got away with $85,000, leaving poverty and destitution behind. Perhaps we may save other private bankers from temptation."

SEIZES BANK BOOKS.

The first investigation was made yesterday afternoon and the banker was found to be solvent and his institutions in good shape.

Detectives guided by Assistant State's Attorney A. E. Arkin made a rush automobile trip to the two private banking establishments of Vladimir Braslawsky & Co. and took possession of books and records.

Braslawsky's banks were found to be clear and his assets in excess of his liabilities.

127 PRIVATE BANKS IN CHICAGO.

There are 127 private banking institutions in Chicago. Forty-three are private banks, transacting a purely banking business. Most of them are situated in foreign settlements of the city. They are under neither state nor national supervision, nor under any guidance save that of the proprietor. The bulk of depositors are foreigners who trust their savings implicitly to the honesty of the private banker.

There are eighty-four brokerage offices doing a private banking business in Chicago, but none of these have been involved in the forty-seven failures since 1911, and may not be included in the inquiry.

INQUIRY BROAD IN SCOPE.

"We are making this inquiry," said Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnston Jr. last night, "because of information which has come to us since the Silver banks failed. The inquiry will be broad in its scope. Before it is finished it will come very near to including every private bank in Cook county.

"Informants have told the state's attorney's office of many instances of private bankers who apparently are violating one of two state laws. We are going out to find if this information is correct. If it is correct it means criminal prosecutions for the guilty ones.

NO "MEDDLING" INQUIRY.

"At the same time it should be borne in mind that this office is not out to meddle in any one's private business. We are looking for the fellows we have been told have crossed over the line."

Mr. Johnston was asked if the investigation would include the brokerage firms of La Salle street, many of which bear the sign "bankers."

"That depends on who they are and what information we have to act on. Offhand I would say it is unlikely that we will make any investigations there for some time.

TWO ANGLES TO INQUIRY.

"Just at present we are looking for violations of two laws—the law which forbids the acceptance of deposits when a bank is insolvent and the law which forbids a private individual to conduct a private business under the guise of a corporation name.

"Each of these offenses is criminal and the law specifically provides that the state's attorney can make such investigations. Our inquiry later may be extended to cover other violations."

WHY HE PICKED BRABLAWSKY.

Braslawsky's banks, found sound, were given initial scrutiny because of the form under which they were operated. They are situated at 160 North

CHAPTER I.

The King was in his Counting House, counting up the cost.

In every direction, as he glanced about him, he saw only a staggering vacuum in the National Treasury.

"'Gosh," he sighed. "The Empire's on the Blink unless we can raise some money."

Sighing again, he summoned the Lord High Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"Chance," said he, "our treasury is exhausted. We're thirty billions to the bad. The Americans have all the money in the world. There are a hundred families in that country which have gotten so rich selling us supplies that they can't tell within a hundred million dollars how much they have. Can't you devise some method of restoring our crippled finances?"

The Chancellor thought a moment, and, after looking cautiously about him, he whispered a few words in the King's ear.

A look of wonder sprang in the King's eyes, changed quickly to one of admiring approval, then to delight, and finally, gaining speed, it exploded in a glad cry of enthusiasm.

"Gosh," he shouted, "it's a grand idea!" He joyously waved his crown in the air and gave vent to three lusty cheers.

"Summon the Lord High Commander of All the Land and Naval Forces!" he ordered.

DENTIST SLAPS BOY; FINED

Mother of Child Says Doctor Lost Patience When Lad Squirmed.

Dr. Franklin R. Percival of 4450 Lake Park avenue, a dentist with an office at 954 East Forty-third street, was fined $1 and $1 costs by Judge Gemmill yesterday because he slapped the face of Frank Roeder, 4 years old. Mrs. Elisabeth Roeder of 4160 Ellis avenue, mother of the child, testified that the dentist slapped him because he "squirmed around in the chair a bit." The doctor admitted he "lost patience momentarily."

COONLEY MAID CRIES FOR MERCY

Ex-Employer Tells Court of Her Death Threats and Weird Actions.

Prentiss L. Coonley, millionaire resident of Lake Forest, appeared in the County court of Waukegan yesterday as the principal witness against Mary Hickey, a domestic, whom he had had arrested on the suspicion that she was insane.

Mr. Coonley said that at one time the woman had been an uninvited guest in his house without his knowledge, and after he had ordered her out she had threatened his life.

Coonley Tells of Threats.

"Two years ago," said Mr. Coonley, "I discovered, greatly to my surprise, that Mary Hickey had been living for some time in the attic of my home and kept her clothes in a closet in the basement. The servants had not informed me of her presence and had permitted her to stay because they felt sorry for her. I told her to leave and so far as I know she has never been in the house since.

"I have been told repeatedly that since that time she has said she would 'get' me if she spent the rest of her life in prison—in fact, that she would be willing to spend the rest of her life behind prison bars so long as she 'got' me.

Hides in Hasler House.

"Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, my sister in law, has had no protector since the violent death of her husband. This Hickey woman has managed to get into Mrs. Hasler's home and hides in closets about the house until she thinks every one is in bed. Then she selects a bed for herself and goes to sleep for the night. Mrs. Hasler heard some one downstairs one night recently and was greatly frightened. She went to investigate and found this Hickey woman."

Mrs. Coonley on the witness stand said that although Mary could get all the work she could do, she seemed to prefer to live on charity. She said she had not had Mary arrested because she pitied her and thought an insanity hearing was the kindest course to take.

William Wilson, a gardener on the Hasler place, said the woman had told him several times she would have revenge on Mr. Coonley if she had to go to the penitentiary.

Three other servants testified to having heard Miss Hickey make veiled threats against Mr. Coonley. One said she had almost as many pets as Robinson Crusoe—a goat, a donkey, two chickens, and several pigeons—and caused many complaints by grazing her donkey and goat on the lawns of Lake Forest homes.

Miss Hickey Denies.

When Miss Hickey took the stand in her own behalf she said Mrs. Hasler had given her permission to sleep in her home. She declared she never had made threats against Mr. Coonley's life. She admitted she had said she would sue him for damages because he had talked to her roughly when he ordered her from his house.

Dr. C. S. Ambrose, appointed by the court to examine her, said Miss Hickey was peculiar, but he found no evidences of insanity.

"Are you an alienist?" asked Mr. Coonley.

"I am not," replied Dr. Ambrose.

State's Attorney Dady informed Mr. Coonley there were no alienists in Waukegan and it had not been the practice of the court to employ them in insanity hearings, but if he wished to hire one he was at liberty to do so.

"I certainly will employ one," said Mr. Coonley.

Pleads for Mercy.

"Please, Mr. Coonley, don't do anything like that," implored Miss Hickey. "I know I talked about you, but it wasn't anything that would hurt you and it was only because what you had said to me hurt me. Please, for God's sake, Mr. Coonley, don't do anything more against me. I will never do anything again to offend you and I will keep away from your home."

Mr. Coonley did not indicate that he was moved by this plea. The hearing was continued until next Tuesday.

When she first came into court Miss Hickey dropped to her knees in front of the judge's bench and crossed herself devoutly.

SUCCESSES WON BY ALLIED ARMIES UPON FOUR FRONTS

BRITISH.

British troops, fighting along a three and one-half mile front, extending from High wood to Leuze wood, on the Somme front, have captured Ginchy, which lies almost directly north of Combles, and all the ground between Ginchy and Leuze woods. They also gained 300 yards east of High wood, and northeast of Pozieres they capturned 600 yards of trenches.

FRENCH.

The French, forcing the attack in the Verdun sector, captured a whole section of German trenches before Fort Douaumont, east of Fleury. The gain is announced as the most important for the French at Verdun since the German attack opened 201 days ago.

ROUMANIAN.

Fighting on three fronts, the Roumanians have dealt hard blows at the armies of the central powers. In Dobrudja Roumanian troops, aided by Russians, have driven the Bulgarians from the fortified town of Dobric (Bazardjik), which was captured by the Bulgarians on Sept. 4. In northern Transylvania the Roumanians, continuing their offensive in the region of Csik Szereda, have occupied Olah Toplitza and a number of other towns.

RUSSIAN.

The fall of Halicz, the great railroad center southeast of Lemberg, in Galicia, appears imminent, according to unofficial dispatches from Petrograd. The Austrians are reported to be blowing up the forts in Halicz and the Russians are said to have occupied some of them.

"SWELLED HEAD" TROUBLES SQUIRREL, JANITOR THINKS.

Pet Puts William Perry to Flight Second Time, but Meets Its Waterloo in Policeman.

William Perry, a janitor at 6030 Stony Island avenue, does not share the suspicion of the police that Mrs. Louise Frits's squirrel may have had rabies. He is confident all that troubled the little beast was inordinate conceit, sometimes known among humans as swelled head.

The squirrel escaped from its cage on Mrs. Frits' back porch on Friday and when Perry tried to capture it it bit him savagely on the hands, put him to flight, and disappeared in Jackson park, across the street.

Made cheeky by his victory, it returned yesterday looking for trouble. Again it was victorious. The janitor fled from the building and called Motorcycle Policeman Harry Glasnap. Obsessed by the idea that all men were easy for a belligerent squirrel, the little animal dashed at the cop, who killed it.

RICHEST VILLAGE IN WORLD HAS SHORTAGES OF $62,000.

State Examiner Reports on Hibbing, Minn.—1,296 Citizens on Pay Rolls While 1,710 Voted.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 9.—Hibbing, Minn., famed as the "richest village in the world," has suffered shortages and overcharges of nearly $62,000 during the last five years, according to a report filed with Gov. Burnquist here late today by State Public Examiner Andrew E. Fritz.

The report shows how the village receipts ran up from $333,530 in 1910 to more than $900,000 in 1914 and the expenditures from $303,000 in 1910 to $1,233,700 in 1914. Another comparison discloses that in March, 1915, 1,296 persons were on the village pay rolls, and 1,710 voters cast ballots for mayoralty candidates in the village election.

ALLIES VICTORS BEFORE VERDUN AND ON SOMME

French and British Sweep Over Trenches of the Enemy.

LOSS IN LIFE GREAT.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Sept. 10, 2 a. m.—The allied armies in France yesterday delivered two smashing blows at the German forces. The attacks were timed to coincide with the great Russian drive in Galicia and the resumption of the offensive on two fronts by the Roumanians.

The British lines to the north of the Somme river swept forward on the front from High Wood to Leuze Wood. The British gained possession of the whole of Ginchy village and the ground between it and Leuze Wood. East of High Wood they advanced 300 yards on a front of 500 yards, and northeast of Pozieres they captured 600 more yards of German trenches.

The new advance tightened the British pincers closing in upon Combles, one of the main points of support of the German line north of the Somme.

FRENCH GAIN AT VERDUN.

At almost the same hour the French before Verdun were scoring their biggest success since the effort of the Germans to capture that fort opened 201 days ago.

Preceded by a blasting artillery fire which leveled the German trenches and silenced the German guns, the French infantry charged against the positions before Douaumont and east of the village of Fleury and carried the whole of one section.

Two other advances were made by the allied troops on the western front yesterday. British troops captured a line of German trenches in sharp hand to hand fighting in High Wood and the French captured the woods to the east of Belloy, south of the Somme. The Paris war office announced that the German prisoners taken in the Somme region since Sept. 3 number 7,700.

GERMANS TAKE MEN AWAY.

The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Petrograd reports that three German divisions (54,000 men) arrived at the Roumanian frontier Tuesday from Verdun.

A possible explanation of this reported move is offered by the Rome Wireless Press service, which says:

"Berlin newspapers are discussing the possibility of shortening the German front, which shows the gravity of their situation. It is believed that this is intended to prepare the German people for the evacuation of France and Belgium."

PLACED ON THE DEFENSIVE.

Some support is given this theory by the fact the French censor yesterday permitted correspondents at the Verdun front to announce that the battle there now has entered its third and final stage, with the Germans on the defensive at all points.

These articles, for the first time, declared that the French gradually are winning back the positions taken by the Germans at terrific cost and predicted that the French either could continue their advance or permit the battle to die out without danger of a new German offensive.

It has been learned definitely that the Germans were forced to remove huge quantities of artillery and men from Verdun to the Somme front three weeks ago to meet the new Anglo-French offensive.

BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORT.

The official report issued by the British war office shortly after midnight this morning said:

We attacked on a front of 6,000 yards, extending from High wood to Leuze wood. As the result the whole of Ginchy village is in our hands, after severe fighting, and the ground between it and Leuze wood was captured.

East of High wood we advanced 300 yards on a front of 500 yards. Numbers of prisoners were taken and the enemy's casualties were heavy.

Northeast of Pozieres we gained a further 600 yards of German trenches and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy, who was caught by our artillery fire while massing for a counter attack.

Our artillery bombarded the enemy's trenches on Vimy ridge, opposite Souchez. There was reciprocal artillery activity in the neighborhood of Calonne and Ginchy and between Labassee canal and Neuve Chapelle.

French Official Report.

The official report, issued in Paris last night, said:

In the region of the Meuse, east of the village of Fleury, before Douaumont, our troops this afternoon carried by assault the whole of one section of German trenches. Two hundred prisoners, including two officers, and several machine guns have already been sent behind our lines as a result of this brilliant action.

In the Somme region there was a lively artillery action on both sides. A grenade engagement made us masters of a portion of an enemy trench to the east of Belloy. The enemy attempted to retake positions we had recently captured to the northeast of Berny, but was repulsed.

The earlier French statement telling of Friday night's fighting said:

South of the Somme we carried a small wood east of Belloy-en-Santerre and made fresh progress in the enemy's trenches east of Deniecourt. Prisoners taken by French troops alone north and south of the Somme since Sept. 3 amount to 7,700 men.

Berlin Official Report.

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—Anglo-French infantry attacks on the River Somme in France, slackened yesterday, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters staff. The statement says:

Enemy infantry attacks on the Somme slackened during the day. An English local enterprise at Foureux wood and night attacks by the French against the Berny-Deniecourt sector failed. We cleared small portions of our positions which previously had remained in the hands of the enemy.

On the right bank of the Meuse [Verdun front] fighting has been revived northeast of Fort Souville. After a fluctuating battle we again obtained possession of a portion of the ground which had been lost.

3 DAY FAST TO EXPRESS HER THANKS TO AMERICA

Mrs. Schimelson, Through Personal Intercession of President Wilson, Can Leave War Behind.

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Sora Schimelson, a widow, began tonight a three days' fast as a token of gratitude for having escaped the horrors of war.

With her two children, Esther, 15, and Reuben, 11, she is at the rooms of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid society. Esther will remain in the care of the society. The boy, under $1,000 bond to guarantee his schooling and support, will leave with his mother at the expiration of her fast for the home of relatives in Chicago.

The Schimelsons were prosperous and happy in Wistinetz, a village in Russian Poland, until the Germans swept across their province. Schimelson, a baker, sold them bread under compulsion.

The Russians came back then victoriously and were told of the friendliness the baker had shown the enemy. Schimelson was taken from his family. Three days later his body was thrown into the synagogue, a bullet wound in the head.

Again the Germans came to Wistinetz. They burned the town that night. Through the intercession of a friendly under officer a pass was issued for Mrs. Schimelson's safe conduct into Germany, where charitable folk cared for them until enough money came from America to pay steerage passage for the three.

They were held at Ellis island, moneyless. At the request of THE TRIBUNE and the Immgrant society President Wilson ordered the deportation order withheld temporarily.

The Jewish folk who had lived once in Wistinetz responded with offers of support. Today the bond was signed.

ASSERTS VON FALKENHAYN WAS OUSTED FOR DISPUTE.

Berne Dispatch Says Kaiser and Von Hindenburg Fought His War Proposal.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—"According to reports from Germany received at Berne," says a dispatch to the Wireless Press, "the dismissal of Gen. Erich von Falkenhayn as chief of the German general staff was due to his suggestion of a complete change in Germany's war plans which Emperor William indignantly rejected.

"Predicting the complete downfall of Bulgaria as the result of converging attacks from the north and south, and in the end a consequent interruption of communications with Turkey, Gen. von Falkenhayn urged that the whole Balkan campaign be abandoned; that the eastern line be shortened, and that the occupied territory in France be evacuated.

"The general expressed the opinion that the transformation of German strategy into a purely defensive campaign on a shorter front would paralyze the entente allies and make it impossible for them to crush Austro-German resistance unless they fought with unlimited resources and then for ten years. Persistence in the present plan of campaign, he said, would lead to disaster.

"Field Marshal von Hindenburg denounced this advice as childish, cowardly, and unworthy of the Germans. Emperor William took Von Hindenburg's view and dismissed Von Falkenhayn."

CYCLONE OF FIRE LASTS FOR WEEKS ON SOMME FRONT

Battle Turns to Great Slaughter with Tools of Warfare Unknown Before.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

WITH THE GERMANS ON FAUBOURG DE PERONNE, Sept. 6, by courier Berlin, via London, Sept. 9.—What Wellington said at Waterloo—"hard pounding, gentlemen, we will see who can pound the longest"—tells the story of these Somme battles, but with the appalling difference that the Somme battles now have lasted more weeks than Waterloo did hours.

Nor would it here be regarded as an insane prophecy if one were to venture the statement that they will last as many months as they have weeks.

The situation has resolved itself into a struggle of a ghastly and pitiless character. It was summed up when a German soldier said: "I would rather make twenty attacks in the east than bring up the grub once in the west."

Fight with Every Weapon.

The English and French are attacking with every resource at their command. That means artillery, gas bombs, flame bombs, infantry, and aeroplanes.

"When I say that the enemy is using everything," said one general, "I mean exactly that, for in last Monday's attacks even their flyers came as low as 500 feet above our trenches to drop bombs."

The enormous activity on the German side can be readily estimated by laymen when I say that in one day 160 truckloads of ammunition were fired by one front. On this section the English are hurling 36 and 47 centimeter mines.

The Germans have brought forward anti-aircraft guns along the front on which the English now are attacking. The German division front has become a kilometer and a half instead of the former five kilometers.

Today I visited three German artillery positions covering three sides of a square, measuring less than a quarter of a mile to the side, and the reply of English batteries comes from three directions also.

In a village behind the batteries the cottage walls still are wet with the blood of men struck by shells last night.

No Decision Is Reached.

On some sections of the front the music of the batteries is like the roll of thunder. At others, where it attains the speed of a drumming fire, it is like the roar of a furnace, but despite this activity, so persistent that it demoralizes the men whose nerves are not of steel, nothing remotely approaching a decision has happened since the grim business began nearly eleven weeks ago with the three day drumming fire of the last of June.

The real news of the situation is then that there is no news.

I left the Somme region in mid-August, and upon my return this week I cannot discover that my August dispatches would not absolutely fit the general situation as it exists now.

Villages and forests have changed hands and some of them continue daily to change hands. At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon the English took the forest of Foureaux; at 3:30 the Germans had it back. It was during this fighting that the English flyers were only 500 feet above German trenches.

While the German troops were making a counter attack an officer whose men had to protect the rear shouted:

"Look at that crablike advance. Let's help them out a little."

With that even the pioneers in the rear dropped their spades, seized their rifles, and turned the cautious advance into a victorious onrush.

People Live in Cellars.

"The state of affairs at Bapaume further illustrates the general situation. On Aug. 18 the town was under such a steady fire that it was impossible to visit it. It still is under such a fire, but the situation is not so desperate that passing through the place is forbidden.

Today I visited it and discovered that the few remaining French inhabitants who were able to earn a little money by working for the Germans have removed themselves and belongings, including kitchen stoves, to cellars. The smoke pipes were run to cellar windows and new stairways were cut from outside the houses in order to permit an instantaneous plunge to relative safety.

Among the features of the Somme battles is the fact that 30 per cent of the German wounded are back in the fighting in about four weeks, thus men wounded at the end of the first month of the Anglo-French Somme offensive are already at the front again. The universal German opinion is that the French have been attacking with more success than the English, although the French are believed to have been more fortunate than the English in that they have not suffered such heavy losses in officers.

English Artillery Good.

The Germans declare the English artillery is good, but the infantry is not so good, though brave. The German verdict on the English fliers is that they are good. Gen. M. said: "That a break-through is coming here, the greatest optimist (I mean greatest English optimist) cannot believe."

The Somme country is the finest kind of land for mining operations because the chalk runs deep. As a consequence the English are doing much mining, but as it requires two weeks to run a mine forward thirty meters—for at a less distance it is likely to injure builders in their own trenches—it is evident that the English are far from expecting to make an immediate advance.

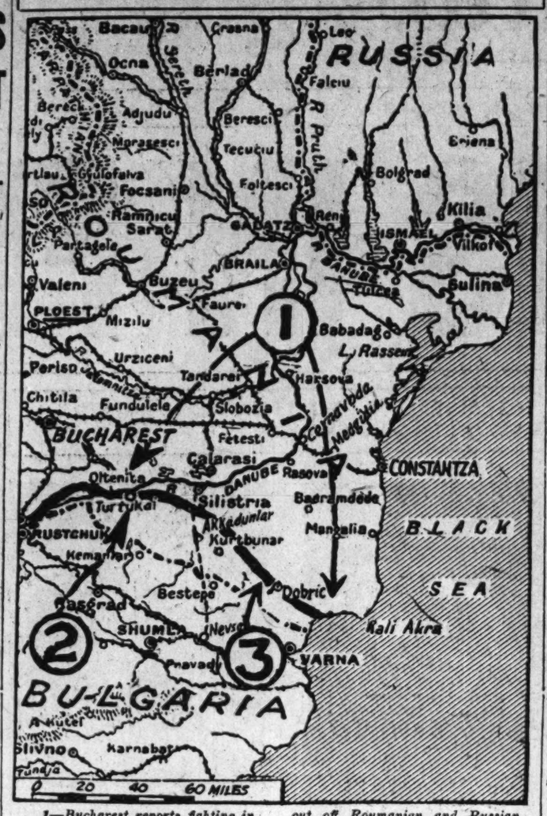
Gain of Allies Slight.

As to the end of the present offensive, nobody dares a prophecy. One eminent German soldier described the situation as it now stands with one sentence so grim that it made his hearers gasp:

"The enemy," he said, "have not won in a month enough ground to bury their dead."

A general said, "They have given us a hard nut to crack, but with God's help we will crack it."

BULGAR-TEUTON THRUST INTO ROUMANIA



1—Bucharest reports fighting in Dobrudja has developed into a general engagement on a front of 100 miles.

2—Bucharest reports Bulgar-Teuton forces are advancing eastward from Turkuka; in attempt to cut off Roumanian and Russian forces.

3—According to London reports from Bucharest, Russians and Roumanians have driven back Bulgar-Tenton advance and recaptured fortified town of Dobric.

AUSTRIANS BREAK THROUGH ITALIAN TRENCHES; OUSTED

Counter Attack in the Adige Valley Success, Rome Reports—Big Guns Shell Tolmein.

ROME, Sept. 9.—Strong Austrian forces attacked the Italians in the Adige valley on the Trentino front and broke through the Italian trenches. The greater part of the lost ground was recovered in a counter attack, the war office announced today. The statement follows:

In the Vallarsa, Adige valley, strong enemy detachments, after an intense bombardment, attacked our positions between Monte Spil and Monte Corno. They succeeded in breaking through some trenches. A counter attack gave us back the greater part of the ground lost. We inflicted heavy losses on the enemy and took twenty prisoners.

In the Tofana zone we repulsed an attack against the position in the Travenanzes valley which our Alpine troops took on Sept. 7. On the remainder of the front only artillery actions occurred.

Our batteries shelled the Saint Lucia station of Tolmein, where active train movements had been observed. Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather conditions last night one of our airships reached the Duino-Triest railway and dropped 600 kilograms [1,320 pounds] of explosive on the line.

INVADERS DRIVEN BEFORE ADVANCE OF ROUMANIANS

Bulgar Army Forced to Abandon Dobric, Fortress They Had Captured.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 10, 3:18 a. m.—"King Ferdinand of Bulgaria," says an official statement issued here, "accompanied by the crown prince and chief of the Bulgarian cabinet, has arrived at main headquarters on the eastern front to confer with the German emperor."

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Official reports received here from Bucharest show that the Russians and Roumanians have turned back the Bulgarians and Germans invading southeastern Roumania and have assumed the offensive.

The Bulgarians have been driven out of the fortress of Dobric (Bazardjic), which they captured on their first rush into the country.

Other reports received here show the Bulgarians have not been able to effect a passage of the Danube at any point.

Berlin admits that the Teuton offensive has been checked, but asserts that all counter attacks have failed.

Big Gain for Roumanians.

In the meanwhile the Roumanians are continuing their drive in northern Transylvania, and the official Roumanian statement says they have occupied the important city of Ojah Toplitza and five other towns, which the Austrians were forced to evacuate as their enemies swept down on them from the mountain passes to the east and south.

Naval forces of both sides are taking part in the operations along the Black sea coast of Roumania. Russian torpedo boats yesterday bombarded the port of Baltjik, which had been captured by the Bulgarians, and destroyed twenty-one barges loaded with food for the invaders.

The German admiralty today announced that "one of our submarines successfully bombarded Mangalia."

Active on Greek Frontier.

The allies gathered along the northern borders of Greece apparently are getting into action. The war office in Paris announces that the Serbians in the region of Lake Ostrova yesterday stormed and captured an important height after a severe engagement.

Roumanian War Report.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 9.—The war office tonight issued the following report:

Northern and western fronts—After a sharp action, we occupied Olah Toplitza (forty-two miles northwest of Csik Szereda), San Milai, Deine (three miles east of Csik Szereda) Giudhgiurgo and Senmician. An enemy attack south of Mehadia (fifteen miles north of Orsova, on the Danube), was repulsed.

Southern front—Russian and Roumanian troops drove the Bulgarians from Bazardjik (Dobric) and Dobasci.

Enemy aeroplanes bombed Constanza (on the Roumanian Black sea coast) wounding two women and a child.

Berlin Admits a Check.

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—German and Bulgarian troops have advanced more than fifty miles beyond the Roumanian frontier in their operations along the Black sea coast. German war correspondents reported today.

The invasion has been checked temporarily by the arrival of strong Roumanian and Russian reinforcements. The Russo-Roumanians, supported by heavy artillery, are counter attacking with great vigor north of Dobric. All these new attacks have failed.

In southwestern Transylvania the Austrians took the offensive and drove back the Roumanians nearly three miles on the Petroseny-Hatszeg road, said an official statement from Vienna tonight. The Russians returned to the attack, however, and forced the Austrians to withdraw to their former positions. On the heights east of the Cibo valley the Roumanians occupied isolated positions.

A whole Russian cavalry brigade was annihilated in an engagement with two Bulgarian battalions north of Dobric, according to Sofia dispatches today. The Russians, supported by Roumanian troops, advanced in thick waves. The Bulgarians allowed them to approach to close range and then mowed down the whole brigade.

The Roumanians fled in panic, being unable to stand up before the Bulgarian shell fire. The whole battlefield was soon covered with Russian dead, the brigade commander being among the killed. The Russians, in despair, finally appealed to the traditional friendship between Bulgarians and Russians, and shouted appealingly, "Little brothers!"

"Nobody invited you to this wedding," was the Bulgarians' brusque reply.

SEND NEW FORCES SOUTH.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 9.—The Roumanian general staff has shifted large forces to the southeastern frontier to check the German-Bulgarian invasion.

It was semi-officially announced today that "important forces" are coöperating with the Russians in the Dobrudja (southeast Roumania). A further retirement may be necessary both because the Dobrudja territory is difficult to defend and because the enemy has massed great forces on that front. But military authorities declared their confidence today that the enemy will be unable to throw any large force across the Daunbe for an advance on Bucharest.

The Roumanians were forced to surrender Turtukai after four days of heroic resistance. They were outnumbered four to one, said dispatches from Oltenitza, across the river from Turtukai.

TEUTONS WRECK HALICZ FORTS; EVACUATION ON

Austrians Prepare to Give Up Rail Center in Galicia, Russian Paper Says.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Austrians are evacuating Halicz, Galicia. According to reliable reports that reached here tonight, the greater part of the garrison already has retreated to the northwest, along the railroad to Lemberg.

The ring of forts about Halicz are being blown up by the Austrians. The great bridge across the Dniester also has been destroyed, but at some points the Russians have forded the river and established themselves.

The Russians are in possession of the entire left bank of the stream opposite the city. Their heavy guns are raking the whole area with an unceasing fire. Two trains carrying Austrian troops and supplies north from Halicz have been wrecked by shell fire.

Russian Official Statement.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 9.—German and Turkish troops are engaged in stubborn fighting with Russian forces in Galicia on the River Naraiuvka, in the direction of Halicz, according to the official statement issued today by the Russian war department. A counter attack made by the Turks and Teutons, the statement adds, was repulsed by the Russians.

In the Carpathians, south of Baranoff, the Russians stormed a series of heights. They took 500 prisoners and captured a mountain battery of several cannon, which had been thrown into the ravines.

Lemberg Campaign at Crisis.

The desperate fighting around Halicz and northward, as far as the source of the Zlota Lipa, represents one of the most important phases of the campaign against Lemberg. Gradually driven back from its stubbornly defended position, Gen. Count von Bothmer's army in the last ten days has had to retire five miles westward from the Zlota Lipa line defenses to positions along the Gnila Lipa and its tributary, the Narayuvka.

With the fall of Halicz, Von Bothmer's army would have to sacrifice the Gnila Lipa positions and continue the westerly retirement, leaving the way open to Lemberg from the southeast.

German Official Report.

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—Forces of the central powers in the Carpathian mountains northwest of Kapul, says today's official report issued by the German general staff, yielded yesterday before the pressure exerted by the Russians.

In Galicia, between the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester, Russian detachments which penetrated the Teuton trenches were driven out again by counter attacks by Turkish troops.

HUGHES WINDS UP MAINE CAMPAIGN; RESULT IN DOUBT

Both Sides Confident of Victory, but Winning Majority Will Be Small.

Portland, Me., Sept. 9.—The state campaign closed tonight after a total of 292 final speeches had been crowded into the final twenty-four hours. One hundred meetings were addressed by men whose national prominence assured a packed house. Supplementing this unprecedented volume of oratory were brass bands, red-fire, organized cheering, and a revival of old time torchlight parading.

Presidential Candidate Charles E. Hughes at Rockland, United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho at Augusta, former United States Senator Theodore Burton of Ohio at Madison, and Medill McCormick of Chicago at Boothbay Harbor appeared on the concluding Republican program.

Prominent men sharing in the Democratic windup included William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce, at Gardiner; Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, at Eastport; John W. Wescott, attorney general of New Jersey, who twice placed President Wilson in nomination, at Rockland, and Bainbridge Colby, former national chairman of the Progressive party, in this city.

Each Side Sees Victory.

Tonight both sides claimed the election—the Democrats by a plurality of 3,000, the Republicans by 15,000.

Not before in recent years has so determined an effort been made to make a showing in the voting because of the moral effect on the country at large which expects to find the political pulse of the nation in Maine's vote on Monday.

Local speakers emphasized state issues and the personalities of candidates, but the big guns from other states either have been trained on Washington or employed in the defense of the administration of the only Democrat to receive the electoral vote of the Pine Tree state since Franklin Pierce was elected president in 1852.

G. O. P. Shifts Its Attack.

An eleventh hour development was the shifting of the Republican attack from the administration's foreign policy in particular to the tariff question, over which many battles have been waged in this state.

At the opening of the campaign speakers for the Republicans, notably Col. Theodore Roosevelt, bitterly assailed the president's conduct of international affairs. Democratic leaders, Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy; Newton D. Baker, secretary of war; William B. Wilson, secretary of labor; and Thomas W. Gregory, the attorney general, generally stood "pat" on the accomplishments of the administration and kept always to the front the present prosperity and their claim that the president had kept the country out of war.

Upon his arrival in the state Mr. Hughes added to his demand for the protection of American lives and property, protection for American industries, and asserted that the latter were in grave danger under the present laws from abnormal competition with Europe after the war is ended.

The Republican candidate took particular pains in every one of his speeches to reiterate his friendliness to labor and his advocacy of better wages, better working conditions, and various concrete legislation which he supported in its interest.

Aims Blow at Shipping Bill.

Today he launched an attack on the administration's shipping bill, which he described as a menace to American shipping. Maine, always has been a protective state and her shipping interests are great.

There was a disposition in both parties tonight to hedge when it came to giving the exact figures of the vote that would be accepted as significant from a national standpoint.

It is safe to say, however, that a Democratic victory by any margin will be claimed as an indorsement of the president, while a fairly good sized Republican plurality will be hailed by that party as an augury of national success in November.

Offices to Be Filled.

A governor, auditor, four congressmen, two senators, a legislature, and county officers will be chosen.

Of the present Maine delegation in the national house three are Republican and one Democratic. One United States senator is Democratic and the other vacancy was caused by the death of Senator Burleigh, a Republican. Gov. Curtis, who seeks reelection, is a Democrat.

FAMILY DISPUTE ENDS IN SLAYING

Lake Villa Lawsuit Results in Tragedy When Man Is Shot to Death.

Joseph Claus wound up a little visit to the home of his wife's parents in Lake Villa last night by killing Harry Kerr, his brother-in-law, in the village street with a quick draw and a quicker pull of the trigger.

The shooting was the conclusion of a rural lawsuit wherein Kerr had been fined for visiting a summary "licking" upon Claus and had threatened his faher, George Kerr.

Visiting Kerr Families.

The farms of the elder Kerr and his son Harry adjoin. Claus, the husband of a former Miss Kerr, lives in Oshkosh, Wis. He had been visiting the Kerr families. A few days ago there was an argument over a small sum of money. There was a quarrel between Harry Kerr and his father and Claus. Claus was beaten and he swore out a warrant.

The trial was an affair of some moment and the citizens of Lake Villa attended. The testimony was soon in and Harry was fined $5 and costs. He permitted the observation to escape him that he would arrange matters later with Claus.

Claus Quick on Trigger.

While the villagers stood assembled Claus climbed in his wagon and started to drive off. Kerr leaped for the wagon. He never got there. Claus swung around in his seat with a revolver in his hand and fired. Kerr tumbled back and sprawled in the dust.

The village marshal arrested Claus. The body of Kerr was taken to the morgue.

The Kerrs are prosperous farmers. The dead man leaves a widow and four small children. Claus claims he shot in self-defense.

BIDDINGER MUST COME BACK

Gov. Whitman of New York Declines to Revoke Order for Guy's Extradition.

Word from New York reached State's Attorney Hoyne's office yesterday that Gov. Whitman had declined to revoke his order granting a requisition for the extradition to Illinois of Guy Biddinger, former Chicago detective. Biddinger is wanted here to answer an indictment charging graft.

Biddinger is also wanted in West Virginia but as a witness against A. Leo Weil, who is charged with an attempt to bribe public service commissioners in that state.

Lemuel E. Quigg, a lawyer representing West Virginia, will ask Illinois to forego its claim on Biddinger so he may be taken to West Virginia at once.

ONLY DRUNK, POLICE SAY, BUT NOW HE IS DEAD.

Neighbor Says Plain Clothes Man and Ambulance Doctor Left R. C. Hallett to Die.

Scandal involving a plain clothes man and an ambulance doctor of the Hyde Park police station is due to be aired before a coroner's jury tomorrow in the inquest into the death of R. C. Hallett.

Hallett was sales manager of the Duntley Products company and lived at a boarding house conducted by Mrs. Minnie Stahl at 4200 Drexel boulevard.

"I am going to tell the coroner's jury," said William Nye, one of the boarders, "how the Hyde Park police let that man die without attention.

"I live on a floor below Hallett. We heard a noise in his room at 10 p. m. Thursday. When we rushed up there he was out in the hall lying on the floor unconscious. He was bleeding from one ear. I called the Hyde Park police ambulance and it responded, but the plain clothes man and the doctor on the ambulance said Hallett was drunk and would recover. We insisted he was sick or injured seriously and so did the ambulance driver. But they left Hallett on his bed.

"By the time we got another doctor here it was too late. We found blue bruises all over him. So we sent him to the Washington Park hospital. He died there today. We don't know yet what caused his death."

At the Hyde Park station it was denied there was any record of the ambulance responding to a call from the address on Drexel boulevard.

FALLS DEAD IN RESTAURANT.

Indiana Woman Dies in Her Chair at Table in Department Store Cafe.

While at a table in the restaurant of Hillman's department store Mrs. Anna Cox, 65 years old, 913 Schrege avenue, Whiting, Ind., a housekeeper, crumpled up in her chair and was dead before a physician arrived. She went to the store with Mrs. Elizabeth Ratajczyk, also of Whiting, to do some shopping. Dr. Helen Collins of the store examined Mrs. Cox and found she was dead.

Will Disposes of $24,000 Estate.

Mrs. Alice H. Downs, who died August, 1916, and whose will was filed yesterday in the Probate court, leaves an estate of $24,000. Under the will $1,000 goes to the First Presbyterian church at 4100 Grand boulevard for the "jubilee fund" maintained in the church. Four nieces receive $2,000 each, and her husband, Charles S. Downs, 4819 Kimbark avenue, receives the remainder.

GIRLS LURED TO RUIN BY CHINESE

Orientals Say They Paid Children's Father $700 in Sordid Romance.

On the opium mats of China the drowsy solitary listener has heard the tale many times from the magi who speak through the tube of the poppy pipe—that of the white woman who shall hold the celestial dreamer in her arms through an eon or two.

Two Chinamen tried to bring the dream true in Chicago. As a result they were locked up yesterday on charges of contributing to the delinquency of two girls, and the children's father was also arrested for connivance in the sordid romance.

Ong Sung and Merk Joe, each 42 years old, have a laundry at Hirsch boulevard and Maplewood avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Hester live at 1456 Maplewood avenue with their two daughters, 17 and 13 years old. There was a baby also and the family was poor.

Girl Tells Her Story.

The older girl, according to her story, went to the laundry in April on an innocent mission. By a trick, she says, Ong Sung got her out of sight from the street, in a back room, where she was attacked.

"I fainted," she said, "and when I revived I ran home, but feared to tell my parents."

The girl admitted that afterwards she went daily to the laundry and consented to the Chinaman's attentions. The 13 year old girl was taken to the place Aug. 15, when by gifts and money her sister was prevailed upon to bring her as Merk Joe's girl, the elder one said.

Ong Sung and Merk Joe asserted the entire affair was carried on with the consent of the girl's father, to whom they said they gave $700 in money and jewelry since April.

Neighbors Report to Police.

The affair was discovered through neighbors, who saw the girls running to the laundry and reported to the police. About the same time Ong Sung asked Hester to allow him to marry the older girl, but was refused. Then the Chinaman appealed to his tong, the Hip Sing, to take up his case. An attorney for the tong appeared with them today at the preliminary hearing.

WILSON AT SUMMER HOME; PLANS "PORCH CAMPAIGN."

Political Conferences Due This Week—First Vacation for President This Year.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 9.—President Wilson began his first vacation of the year today by laying plans for the "porch campaign" he will conduct from Shadow Lawn. With Mrs. Wilson he arrived here at 1 o'clock this afternoon from Atlantic City after a 100 mile ride along the ocean front.

The president later visited his daughter, Mrs. William G. McAdoo, who is ill at Spring Lake. Tonight he attended a theater performance here.

The president expects Monday to get in active touch with the campaign.

Vance McCormick, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will come here early in the week to begin a series of political conferences. Secretary McAdoo today discussed the campaign with Mr. Wilson in a general way.

CONDENSED MILK TO POLAND

Chicago Committee Plans for Shipload as a Christmas Gift.

A shipload of condensed milk to be sent to Poland as a Christmas present to starving babies was planned by the Polish national defense committee at a meeting at 1225 North Ashland avenue yesterday.

Dr. J. P. Zaleski and Dr. Casimir Zurawski left for Washington at night to confer upon the plan with E. P. Bicknell, director of the American Red Cross.

Popular subscriptions are expected to provide the milk. To avoid the food blockade, the United States government will be asked to allow a naval vessel to convey the cargo over the sea.

BAKER BREAKS ORDINANCE BY REDUCING LOAF

City Joins State and Nation in Fight on Higher Cost of Bread.

Master bakers, whose "follow the leader" method of raising the price of bread has been pronounced by United States District Attorney Clyne a violation of the anti-trust law, already stand convicted by their own admissions of a violation of Chicago ordinances.

John H. Heinz, general manager of the Ward Baking company, told Assistant United States District Attorney Joseph B. Fleming yesterday that his company reduced the weight of a 5 cent loaf of bread two and one-half ounces five days ago. This underweight loaf has been on the market five days.

Other big bakers, it was learned by the federal authorities, had intended following the lead of the Ward concern within a week. In view of the public interest in their plans it is believed other firms may now keep their 5 cent loaves at standard weight—twelve ounces.

All Governments Ready.

If the bakers persist in their plans to increase the price of bread they will have the federal, state, and city authorities on their trail.

Ald. Willis O. Nance will introduce a resolution at the next council meeting to set in motion an inquiry by the efficiency staff of the finance committee.

District Attorney Clyne held a conference with State's Attorney Hoyne and discussed harmony of action between state and federal authorities in possible prosecutions.

Mr. Clyne declared he would investigate the action of the bakers and watch their prices in the future. If he found anything to warrant, he said he would ask indictments before a federal grand jury.

The proposition of the bakers to raise the price of a loaf of bread, not by open agreement but after some one in a community had taken the lead, was declared by Mr. Clyne a distinct violation of the anti-trust law.

City Investigation Proposed.

"The public is entitled to all the facts," Ald. Nance said. "The bakers should be willing to coöperate with public officials in an investigation of the price of such a vital necessity as bread if their claim of increased cost is just.

"The city, of course, has very limited jurisdiction in the matter of prices, but we control the size of the loaves that may be sold at a given price. I intend to ask the law department for a full statement of the city's regulatory powers with respect to bread."

Timely action on the part of the federal government, District Attorney Clyne believes, will halt the contemplated move. This action, he says, will be in the form of indictments against all bakers who move in concert to fix, either up or down, the size, price, or quality of bread.

To acquaint members of the association who arrived at an "understanding" in a meeting held in Chicago Friday, with the attitude the government intends to take, Mr. Clyne summoned the Chicago representatives of the big bakers to his office yesterday.

He gave them copies of the federal and state laws governing the formation of pools or combinations to fix prices.

Loaf Already Smaller.

It was while discussing the situation with John H. Heinz, general manager of the Ward Baking company, that Assistant District Attorney J. B. Fleming made the discovery that already the size of the 5 cent loaf has been reduced in size almost 2½ ounces by his bakery. The reduction, it was admitted by Mr. Heinz, has been in effect five days.

For the last ten days Assistant District Attorney Joseph B. Fleming has been at work compiling data on the wheat and flour situations and has conferred with many board of trade men. Although the contents of Mr. Fleming's report, made yesterday to Mr. Clyne, were not given out, it is understood that he found little evidence to justify an increase in the price of bread.

STRIKE SPREADS IN NEW YORK CITY

All Car Lines Now Affected—General Industrial Tieup Is Threatened.

750,000 MEN INVOLVED.

New York, Sept. 9.—The strike of unionized employes in the subway, on the elevated railway lines, and on surface cars of the New York Railways company which began three days ago spread tonight to the surface car lines of the Second Avenue Railway company and the Third avenue company.

These companies operate virtually all of the surface cars in Manhattan and the Bronx, and the strike, if successful, it said, will completely tie up surface car traffic in the two boroughs.

Strikebreaker Badly Wounded.

Tonight the first serious indication of violence occurred when Michael Giannini, 27 years old, a strike breaker employed by the Interborough Rapid Transit company, was shot and probably mortally wounded by an unidentified assailant. The police reported minor attempts at violence during the day and several arrests were made.

Although officials of the New York Railways company had promised to restore normal traffic on their surface car lines tonight, the police asserted at 7:30 p. m. that virtually all the cars had been sent to the barns. Service in the subway and in the elevated railway lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, however, was about normal.

General Strike a Peril.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is expected here from Boston tomorrow to take charge of the strike. The movement, it was said, then will cease to be the affair of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés and will become the fight of the American Federation of Labor.

A union official asserted that suspension of work for at least twenty-four hours in all trades affiliated with the American Federation of Labor in New York was likely. These trades, it is estimated, employ 750,000 workers.

DANES MAY VOTE ON INDIES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 9.—The government will make another attempt to have the treaty for the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States agreed to, and intends to submit a bill to the rigsdag on Tuesday based on the proposal made this week by the Conservative party. It is proposed that a plebiscite be held, probably about the middle of October. The attitude of the Left and Conservative parties toward the government's bill is uncertain, and it is not known if the general elections can be avoided.

ALL G.O.P. RACERS FOR GOVERNOR SURE OF VICTORY

Mixed Conditions In Cook County Make Wednesday's Result Doubtful.

Certain victory at the direct primaries next Wednesday is the positive claim of each of the three Republican candidates for governor—Senator Morton D. Hull, Col. Frank L. Smith, and Col. Frank O. Lowden.

Complete confidence exists in the headquarters of the trio. It is much in evidence, more so and more consistently than can be said of the windups of primary campaigns in the last dozen years.

Confidential reports that have come to the managers of each of the three from the same counties downstate and from the same wards in Chicago are at such variance that there is no chance to reconcile figures made by the prognosticators.

No two authorities agree on the probable size of the Republican vote. Nobody can safely say what is to happen in Cook county. The real strength of the two fighting factions, the city hall-neutrals and the Hull-Deneen-Progressives, is an absolutely unknown quantity. The size of the undisguised tide toward the independent or nonstate candidates is problematical.

How They Line Up.

As the army of workers go into the trenches for the real combat a sizeup of conditions, from the viewpoint of the three rivals for the governorship, is about as follows:

Senator Hull undoubtedly has made tremendous strides in the last week. Roy O. West believes that he will run either first or second in every downstate county and will not run third in any county. Exactly this state of affairs won the nomination for Charles S. Deneen when Len Small, Hurburgh, and John Wayman were cutting up the opposition.

The Anti-Saloon league is expected to deliver 100 per cent to Hull downstate. This fact is hurting Hull in wet Chicago wards, where the Deneen organization has been in control. Hull's greatest Chicago strength will be developed in the great Republican wards of Hyde Park and Lake View, and this may be sufficient to give him the plurality in Cook county that he needs to win.

Lowden's Flying Start.

Col. Lowden had a long start and a formidable lead when the campaign became acute. He had the big end of the county organizations downstate and a thoroughly equipped and completely financed executive department to attend to the business of the contest. Behind him in Cook county is the regular Republican organization, composed of thirty-two of the forty-one ward and district committeemen, and the solid support of the city hall and all that a city hall can do in organized politics.

If organization can get a nomination Col. Lowden ought to be without worry. The question is how big a dent has been made in the work of this organization by the constant hammering of Col. Smith downstate and the blows that have been pounded daily by the Hull-Deneen committee in Chicago.

Cool minded observers say that Col. Lowden has been slipping for ten days. Col. Lowden's friends are confident that he can afford to slip a lot and yet be an easy winner, and they do not concede that he has been slipping.

Smith in Hot Finish.

Col. Smith's Chicago campaign has been the sensational development of the final week of the campaign. He has come into Cook county, discounted by Lowden and by Hull, without an organization and recognized as a "downstater," and he has made important headway. That he will get an independent vote that prefers to be for Smith because he is not allied either with the city hall or the Deneen factions, and that will be much larger than either Lowden or Hull is willing to admit, seems certain.

Smith's managers say that Hull will not carry a single downstate county and that he will be third in most of them. Col. Smith is not expecting to carry Cook county, but he does have confidence that he will come to the Cook county line with a plurality big enough over Lowden to overcome the difference between Lowden and himself in Chicago, while Hull, although he may be getting a heavy Cook county support, will not have anything downstate to go with it and will have to be content with third place in the state at large.

Mourn Lost Zeppelin Captain.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 9.—Capt. Schrimm of Hamein, Prussia, was the commander of the Zeppelin downed in last Sunday morning's raid on London, it was reported from Esbjerg today. The whole village of Hamein is in mourning.

"I WILL WIN"

So Say All G. O. P. Candidates for Governor.

FOR HULL

BY ROY O. WEST.

"Senator Hull will be nominated. He will carry Cook county and a large percentage of the downstate counties. I believe that in every downstate county which he does not carry he will run second.

"Mr. Lowden's campaign has collapsed. Men who supported him at first are deserting him by the thousands. Throughout the state, committeemen who were active for Lowden a few weeks ago are now working openly for Hull. The Republican voters of the state have decided that the party must be a progressive Republican party and they are determined to make it such by nominating Senator Hull.

"Smith has no chance of winning. He will run a poor third practically everywhere.

"There is a great ground swell all over Illinois in favor of Senator Hull. Republicans and former Progressives realize that his ten years' experience in the state legislature has fitted him especialy for the position which he seeks, while Mr. Lowden and Mr. Smith have had no experience in state affairs.

"The voters feel, also, that Senator Hull is the only candidate who stands for progressive principles. When Lowden was the Lorimer candidate for governor twelve years ago Smith was on the same slate as a candidate for lieutenant governor.

FOR SMITH

BY JOHN C. AMES.

Next Wednesday will be slate smashing day. There will be a grand crash throughout the state. In Chicago it will be loudest of all unless signs fail. There is a statewide revolt by the voters against being "delivered."

In the conest for the governorship the issue is sharply drawn. The field is one independent against two faction owned candidates. The independent, Frank L. Smith, will be the winner. The anti-faction, anti-machine Republicans will concentrate their vote in his favor.

Four years ago the vote, cast merely in protest of slatemaking and factional domination, was 45 per cent of the total. Now when every anti-factionalist and every independent Republican and Progressive can see victory in sight, a much larger percentage of the total will be cast for an independent candidate.

It is pretty generally agreed that at least 400,000 voters will be polled in the primary. The man who gets 45 per cent of that 180,000 votes will win. Every report we get shows clearly that Smith will be the man.

The manner in which Hughes was nominated for the presidency was the first and a most significant sign that the public mind is no longer dominated by the old machines. The interest downstate voters are taking in the campaign is another sign. They are aroused, not against Chicago, but against Chicago's arrogant factions, and are determined to get a man for Governor who will represent the whole state, and not merely a Chicago faction.

FOR LOWDEN

BY WILLIAM H. STEAD.

A careful survey of conditions and reports from reliable Republicans in every county shows Frank O. Lowden will be nominated for governor by the Republicans next Wednesday by an enormous vote. He will carry at least eighty-five downstate counties and Cook county will greatly increase his downstate plurality.

Throughout the campaign Col. Lowden has kept his head and declined to indulge in personalities. He has been bitterly assailed, but has not been induced to change his plan of confining himself to a discussion of public questions.

The result of the campaign will demonstrate that the people are tired of mudslinging and calumny and want their campaigns for the high office of governor conducted in a clean, temperate, and dignified manner.

CAROLINA GIRL TRIES 'JIM CROW' LAW IN CHICAGO.

Daisy Uses a Hatpin When Negress Sits Beside Her in Street Car—Fined $5.

North Carolina ideas as to negroes riding in street cars "don't go" in Chicago. Judge Goodnow warned Miss Daisy Chauncey, 751 North Dearborn street, yesterday, as he fined her $5 for having met the attempt of Antoinette Milton, a Negress, to sit beside her with a hatpin attack.

The trouble occurred on Wednesday on a Cottage Grove avenue car. Mrs. Milton said she would have been seriously hurt had she not been able to wrest the pin from Miss Chauncey. She carried it into court, bent and twisted.

Miss Chauncey said she did not remember of any hatpin attack such as Mrs. Milton charged and insisted Mrs. Milton had been rough in getting into the seat beside her.

DUNNE GIVES WILSON CREDIT FOR PROSPERITY

Governor Tells Riverview Audience Democrats Deserve Re-election.

The present prosperity of the United States rests upon the fact that "Woodrow Wilson kept us out of war," Gov. Edward F. Dunne told his hearers yesterday in an address at Riverview park. Nearly 100 automobiles, guided by a brass band, escorted the governor from Grant park to Riverview, where "Dunne day" was celebrated with races and oratory.

Records of Democratic national and state administrations were defended by Gov. Dunne in his afternoon speech before more than 300 persons who assembled in a dance pavilion after "fat men," candidates, and "young ladies" had settled their contests on an improvised running track.

Gives Credit to President.

"Two main factors are responsible for the great prosperity of the United States today," the governor said. "In the first place, the industries of this country have the field to themselves because all the other great nations are at war. Secondly, we are manufacturing great quantities of munitions for the warring nations.

"But now let us see upon what rest these two factors. Would we be enjoying this prosperity were we at war ourselves? Obviously we would not, and we owe our prosperity to Woodrow Wilson, that man of high ideals and leonine courage, who has kept this nation out of war despite the cries of the Republican jingoes. If Roosevelt had been elected four years ago, the war would now be over—over here. If the Republican jingoes had won, the result would have been the same."

Gov. Dunne then defended Wilson's Mexican policies.

"Woodrow Wilson not only has kept us out of war," he resumed, "but he also has given us in three and a half years more progressive and humanitarian legislation than we ever obtained during twenty years of Republican administrations. He has gone further, and has proclaimed in a voice which will be heard throughout the world that modern civilization recognizes the eight hour day.

Asks Business Test.

"Apply the same test to public officers that you would apply to workers in any business. If they have served you well they deserve to be reelected. The Democratic national administration has served you well and so has the Democratic state administration. I have tried to serve the people honestly and conscientiously. By the Republican gerrymander I have had two Republican legislatures, but most of my recommendations to that legislature were so progressive, so humanitarian that the Republicans could not reject them."

Meanwhile a bag pipe quartet in the neighboring grove had undertaken an elaborate program with the result that Gov. Dunne found difficulty in informing those beyond the first few rows as to just what the Democrats had accomplished in Illinois and the nation.

"I have striven for big practical results along righteous and sometimes radical lines," he concluded. "I have succeeded largely, but there is yet much to do in matters pertaining to the administration of our state government. I ask you once more to apply the same test that you would use in your business. If we Democrats have served you well we deserve to be returned to office."

"UP TO DATE INQUISITION" SIGN CAUSES HIS ARREST.

New Yorker Who Starts His Campaign "Against Capitalism" at State and Madison Halted.

Adolph Hartwich, 665 West Madison street, who says he recently came to Chicago from New York to conduct a campaign "against capitalism," was arrested by Central police yesterday after attracting a crowd at the busy corner of State and Madison streets. Hartwich wore a sign on his chest and back which read:

"The up to date inquisition—the means to crush man's will—absolutely never leaving any visible trace but only wrecks and corpses in its wake. Sound wave practice. I am under the ban of a system that tortures mind and body persistently with the practice. I ask free men to assist in this fight against tyranny. A. HARTWICH."

He will be examined as to his sanity. He is 60 years old.

$2,000 TO NEW OLIVET HOME

First Gift for Institute's $275,000 Building Reported by Pastor.

The first gift, $2,000, toward the new home of Olivet institute was received yesterday by the director, the Rev. Norman B. Barr. The proposed building will occupy half a block on the lower north side and will cost, with equipment, $275,000. Efforts are being made to raise $225,000 for endowment at the same time the price of the building is secured. Ground for the building was deeded to the institute two years ago, and plans for raising funds to construct the building were held in abeyance on account of the war. It is expected funds soon will be forthcoming to assure the new structure.

Arthur W. Seyferlich Says Mind Was Blank When Ceremony Took Place.

That his mind was a blank at the time of his marriage April 13, 1916, and he has no recollection of what happened on that day, Arthur W. Directly after the ceremony, he says, she left him.

HINTS PRIMARIES CAUSE $100,000 JUMP IN PAY ROLL

City Treasurer Comes Back at Controller's Statement That Chicago Is 'Going Broke.'

City Controller Pike's statement that the city is going "broke" yesterday called forth a hot comment from City Treasurer Charles H. Sergel. He finds that during August the department of public works paid out for laborers more than $100,000 in excess of the total pay roll for the same purpose in August of 1915 and 1914. Mr. Sergel intimates that proximity of the primaries is the reason for the big jump in the pay roll.

Sergel's Statement.

"The pay roll for laborers in the department of public works for August, 1916, amounted to $359,490.06, unprecedented in the history of Chicago," Mr. Sergel said. "This is an increase of $100,949.97, or 22 per cent, over the same month of 1915 and an increase of $111,272.83, or 25 per cent, over August, 1914.

"The payroll for this purpose for the latter half of August was $286,871.71. Our arrangements are such that we send the money out in three trips on three days in each half month.

Sees More Insurance Needed.

"We carry burglar insurance to protect these funds from theft to the amount of $100,000. If these semi-monthly laborers' pay rolls increase as they have been increasing this year we will have to take out more insurance.

"Usually the August labor roll is less than that for June and July. This year such is not the case.

"Last month's total is a record breaker. No month's payroll for laborers in the public works department has been so high. One can but wonder if the proximity of the primary, the city hall's interest in nominations for state's attorney and president and trustees of the sanitary district and the need for political workers has anything to do with the increase."

SHE MADE CHECKS GOOD.

Then Charges Against Miss Eleanor O. Moore Were Dismissed by Judge.

A charge of obtaining money by false pretenses against Miss Eleanor O. Moore of 615 Oakwood boulevard was dismissed yesterday by Judge Gemmill. Matt McAnany, a druggist at 901 East Fifty-fifth street, said she passed three worthless checks aggregating $34 at his store. After Miss Moore, who said it was a mistake, had made restitution, she was discharged.

BROKEN COUNTY SLATES IN G. O. P. PRIMARY SEEN

Deneen Wiseacres Predict Miller's Defeat—City Hall Crowd Confident.

Harry B. Miller, the Thompson-Lundin candidate for state's attorney in the Republican primaries, seems marked for defeat. Politicians who felt that they had inside information freely predicted the defeat of Miller and the nomination of John E. Northup.

This feeling was so strong around the headquarters of the Hull-Deneen-Progressive county slate candidates that Northup would win by a great plurality that Ald. Lewis D. Sitts, chairman of that campaign organization, gave out an official statement predicting the nomination of every candidate on its lists.

Sitts' View Ridiculed.

The Sitts statement was ridiculed at the headquarters of the regular organization that backs the county ticket nominated at Medinah temple. County Chairman Homer K. Galpin, who is also chairman of the campaign committee for the Medinah temple ticket, issued a prediction just as strong, that claimed a landslide for the regular nominees, not omitting one.

The general belief among the rank and file is that neither slate will win in its entirety and that candidates from each of them will be found on the official ballots next November.

The feeling that Northup is to be the winner Wednesday became pretty well fixed toward evening and from an authentic source it was learned that the city hall is desperate in making a last effort to save Miller. Thomas Marshall, running independent of the two slates, may figure strongly in the finals. Other candidates are Harry L. Strohm, Scott M. Hogan, and Reginald E. Johnson.

In the Recorder's Race.

For recorder the fight is between Joseph F. Haas, former county clerk, and Leland S. Rapp. Mr. Haas is on the Deneen-Hull-Progressive slate and has strong independent backing. Mr. Rapp is particularly urged by Homer K. Galpin in the making of the regular slate.

Ald. William F. Lipps, one the Deneen slate, and August W. Miller, present superintendent of streets, named on the Deneen Medinah temple slate by the west side wards, are in a hard race for clerk of the Circuit court.

One of the contests much in doubt is for clerk of the Superior court between City Clerk John Siman on the Deneen slate and Ald. John Kjellander on the Medinah temple ticket.

Hoffman Likely Will Win.

For coroner, Peter M. Hoffman, on the regular slate, is practically conceded renomination. Walter G. Davis is his chief opponent.

Felix A. Norden, on the Deneen slate, and George K. Schmidt of the Twenty-fifth ward, on the regular list, are the contestants for the board of assessors for the full term. Women may vote for this office and this fact somewhat complicates the situation. oFr the short term place on the same board the Deneen forces have slated Charles Ringer. The regulars are with Robert R. Levy.

The board of review contest, in which the women are participating, has been particularly spectacular between Edward R. Litsinger, on the Deneen-Progressive slate, and Charles A. Williams, the city hall-neutral candidate. Mr. Williams has been put forward to do much of the speaking for the regulars.

For surveyor, for which women may vote, Harry Emerson is the regular candidate, opposed by B. Harry Suhr, with the Deneen forces.

Sanitary District Contests.

Tremendous interest has been stirred up by the contest for president of the sanitary district board, in which the women have taken a conspicuous part. Women vote for this office. City Treasurer Charles H. Sergel, a former Progressive, is the choice of the men who man the Deneen-Progressive slate. Ald. James H. Lawley is his city hall opponent. Particularly strong efforts are being made by the mayor's lieutenants to land Ald. Lawley, but the indications are altogether favorable to Mr. Sergel's nomination.

Mr. Sergel, Edward L. Williams, and Thomas W. Gilmore are on the Deneen slate for trustees of the sanitary district. The regulars indorsed Mr. Lawley, David R. Jones, and Matthias A. Moeller. Ald. Willis O. Nance, running independent of either slate, has made a remarkable canvass and seems to be sure to land inside the first three. There are twelve other candidates.

STATE SCHOOL AT LINCOLN HAS 25 CASES OF TYPHOID.

Three Deaths Occur—Illinois Health Officials and Specialists Unable to Discover Origin.

Lincoln, Ill., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Twenty-five cases of typhoid fever, resulting in three deaths, have developed recently at the Lincoln state school and colony in this city, and all efforts of Dr. Thomas E. Leonard and the state board of health have been unable to check the epidemic and discover the origin of the same.

SANITARY TRUSTEES PEEVED

Say City Is Just Evading Payment of $1,000,000 Due the District.

"Simply an excuse to evade payment." Thomas Sullivan and Clark of the sanitary district yesterday used these words to characterize the "reasons" advanced by city officials for the city's failure to pay the district that $1,000,000 debt. Commissioner of Gas and Electricity Keith said he had not had time to check the list.

Thomas Sullivan and Clark point out that the contract calls for payment in installments that are long overdue. They quote as City oController Pike's statement that the revenue from taxes is being used to pay off antic pation tax warrants while the sanitary district has a prior claim.

Sixteen states will be represented at the seventh annual outdoor bench exhibit of the Associated Specialty Clubs, to be held next Saturday at Bismarck Garden, when dogs from various parts of the United States will be presented for the inspection of the judges. The Western Boston Terrier, Western French Bulldog, and the Chicago Collie clubs have combined with the English Bulldog Breeders' Association of America to make the affair a success. The latter body will hold its annual meeting in connection with the show. Among exhibitors in the French bulldog classes will be ex-Gov. Jackson of Maryland, who is sending a number of his best dogs, as is his son, Hugh W. Jackson, owner of Champion Gamin's Rival Jr., Champion Coquette de Bourbon, and Faux Pas, to compete with the French bulldogs owned by Dr. F. A. Fisher and other western fanciers. Dr. Fisher has entered among others Normandy Petit Docteur, shown in the picture, with Miss Edna Novak. Dr. Norman F. Harris, Chelsea, Mass., will be an exhibitor in the Boston classes with his Evergreen Motorman and Evergreen Dolly.

MARY SPURNS FATHER'S APPEAL TO GO BACK HOME.

Virginia Girl Found with Negro in Chicago Defies Parent's Attempt to Take Her Away.

"Come home with me, Mary."

Theodore Anartasakas, owner of a Greek restaurant in Newport News, Va., held out his arms to his daughter in South Clark street police station. The 16 year old girl had been arrested in a rooming house at 4338 South State street, where she was living with Mc-Kinley Chapman, a Negro, with whom she had eloped from her home.

"I will never go back with you," declared the girl. "I would rather go to the electric chair than go back home with you."

"I will take you back," declared the father and he seized her by the throat. The police matron interfered. Anartasakas left to seek a lawyer to compel the girl to go back with him.

Mary Anartasakas is said to have made a leap year proposal to the Negro. The couple arrived in Chicago Aug. 8. The Negro, it is said, has twice been refused a marriage license by the county clerk.

DRY CANDIDATES CARRY CAMPAIGN INTO WISCONSIN

Harly Flails Wilson for Suffrage Speech and Fairbanks on Liquor.

Reedsburg, Wis., Sept. 9.—Some wet sections of Wisconsin, were invaded today by the coast to coast prohibition special campaign train, but in all of them the speakers received friendly receptions.

At Milwaukee a man, in passing the platform from which Dr. Ira Landrith, the vice presidential candidate, was speaking, raised a bucket of beer and asked the speaker to have some.

Assails Wilson on Suffrage.

President Wilson's remarks to the suffragists at Atlantic City last night were commented on frequently by both J. Frank Hanly, the party's candidate for president, and Landrith during the day.

Hanly said the president had fallen into line with the suffragists and thereby killed suffrage as an issue. Landrith asserted that if the Prohibitionists had been as threatening in their demands on the two big parties as the suffragists were both would have written dry planks into their platforms long ago.

Calls Fairbanks Inconsistent.

Before all his audiences today Hanly charged Charles Warren Fairbanks, Republican vice presidential nominee, with being dry in Canada and wet in his home city of Indianapolis. He based this charge on a speech attacking liquor which he said Fairbanks recently delivered in Toronto, and then declaring that the vice presidential candidate had refused to sign a remonstrance against liquor in his own ward.

Applause which greeted the reading of parts of the Toronto speech when Hanly was addressing a Madison audience turned to cries of "Shame, shame!" when he finished the story.

Other cities visited by the train today were Waukegan, Ill.; Kenosha, Wis.; Racine, Wis.; Milwaukee, Waukesha, Madison, and Baraboo.

SUPPOSED MAD DOG KILLED.

Bites Horse and Attacks Boy Before It Is Slain by Policeman—Head to Be Examined.

A dog supposed to be mad, which had bitten a horse, attacked a boy, and alarmed persons, was killed yesterday by South Park Policeman O'Connor in the rear of 1450 South Michigan avenue. The animal tore off a piece of the boy's trousers and he fled. His name was not learned. It was not determined whether the dog's teeth had penetrated his flesh. The head of the dog was taken to the city laboratory for examination.

ILLINOIS BOYS HOME BY NOV. 1?

War Department Agrees to Relieve Those Left on Border Soon.

LEWIS URGES HASTE.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Baker told Senator Lewis today that the Illinois national guard regiments on the border "will be among the first ordered home." Beyond this Secretary Baker would not commit himself. He would not fix a time limit in which it might be presumed the troops would be returned. It is understood, however, that all the Illinois boys will be home by Nov. 1.

Senator Lewis Urges Haste.

Senator Lewis in urging immediate return of the remaining Illinois regiments on the border told Secretary Baker the Illinois troops were first to respond and already had borne more than their share of the burden.

"I made it plain," Senator Lewis said, "that no request to be relieved had come from the men themselves. But their families and friends and the public generally feel that there is no necessity for keeping these men away from their business and employment to do more police duty."

No Drinks for First Cavalry.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Col. Milton J. Foreman today ordered closed to soldiers all saloons and beer establishments at Point Isabel, where the First Illinois cavalry is encamped, for the time of stay of the regiment at the town on the gulf coast.

Real work will start Monday morning. An order has been placed for an additional 145 horses for this regiment, but this number is still far from sufficient to mount the entire regiment.

VILLA ADDRESSES POPULACE AFTER CAPTURING A TOWN.

Boasts He Pays Troops and Will Have Big Army—Says Americans Are Good Fighters.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 9.—From the seat of a wagon Francisco Villa addressed the populace of Satevo, Chihuahua, when his forces captured the town about two weeks ago, according to an American arriving here today. The American brought with him notes on the speech obtained from a Mexican, in which Villa was quoted as saying:

"You see before you 'Pancho Villa,' the bandit. But you see also that I am paying my soldiers in silver, and I promise you it will not be long until I have a large army. I now have plenty of machine guns and ammunition.

"You saw that neither the 'Gringos' nor the Carrancistas could catch me, even when I was ill. The 'Gringos' are harder fighters than the Carrancistas, but I bear them no animosity. All I am interested in is in punishing traitors and putting an end to Carranza."

WISCONSIN MUSEUM GIVEN BRONZE BUST OF DR. SENN.

Son of Famous Chicago Surgeon, Who Died in 1908, Also Makes Gift of Instruments.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Dr. Emanual C. Senn of Chicago has presented to the Wisconsin historical museum a bronze bust of his father, the late Dr. Nicholas Senn, who died in Chicago in 1908. Other gifts recently presented to the museum by the Senn family include the late surgeon's favorite scalpel, which he used in his clinics before the Rush Medical college, and other surgical instruments used by him when he began his practice as a country doctor near Fond du Lac in 1869. The bust and relics were placed on public exhibition in the museum today.

Salesmen Held as Embezzlers.

Sidney Altman of 1322 Carmen avenue and George Richow of 1518 Carmen avenue were arrested on charges of embezzlement yesterday when they called at the offices of their employers, the United Cigar Dealers' company, at 548 South Clark street, to collect their salaries. Altman, it is alleged, embezzled $257 and Richow is short $256.

COUNTY CONTEST OF DEMOCRATS A TAME AFFAIR

Shattering of Harrison Slate Leaves Few Real Races In Cook.

Between filing day and the last day of withdrawals the Democratic regular managers shattered the Harrison slate by pulling off some of its strongest factors and the county ticket primary contest within the Democratic lines is largely perfunctory.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne and the Sullivan people got together for the purposes of this primary at least some time ago, and the regulars placed him at the head of their ticket. Charles E. Erbstein is his only opponent. There have been mutterings of an under cover delivery to Erbstein, but little credence is placed in such reports. It looks like Hoyne by an enormous majority.

Connery Opposed by Little.

Recorder Joseph F. Connery is opposed by Thomas F. Little, who was formerly with the Sullivan organization in the Fourteenth ward. Mr. Connery has support all over town, largely because of his record. This is also true of John W. Rainey, clerk of the Circuit court. The anti-Sullivan candidate is Joseph D. Carey.

The regulars declined to re-slate Richard J. McGrath, clerk of the Superior court, because of factional differences, and picked James C. Gavin, a west side undertaker. McGrath is making a hard fight for a renomination.

For coroner Ald. James B. Bowler is without an opponent.

The only Democratic fight "that is worth calling a battle is between Thomas M. Sullivan and Philip J. McKenna for president of the sanitary district. Mr. Sullivan, one of the present trustees, is the regular candidate. Mr. McKenna is the candidate of the Harrison wing.

Peter Bartzen, former president of the county board, is also a candidate and August Benkendorf is another.

Sanitary Trustee Fight.

For sanitary district trustees, Sullivan regulars are with Mr. Sullivan, Joseph Ruskewicz, and James A. Long. Henry P. Bergen, former alderman, is a candidate backed by the anti-Sullivan wing. There are seven other candidates.

Martin J. O'Brien of the Thirteenth ward is slated by the Sullivan regulars, who refuse to stand for Frank W. Korzaleski for renomination for the full term membership on the board of assessors. The death of Leopold Pfaelzer left Joseph Cepak, on the regular slate, without an opponent except for William M. Carr. Thomas J. Webb has no opposition for renomination to the board of review, and William P. Feeney has a walkaway for surveyor over Emmett Kennedy.

$20,000 PEOPLE IN DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 9.—Detroit has a population of 820,778, according to the city directory estimate announced today. The directory ranks Detroit as the fifth largest American city. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and St. Louis are given higher ranking. Detroit was ninth in the population list of 1910.

NUTSHELL POLITICS

Jottings on National, State, and Local Candidates and Events.

Charles Evans Hughes will spend the entire day, Sept. 20, in Wisconsin, doing the Second, Sixth, Eighth, and Ninth congressional districts, and a night meeting in Milwaukee.

The Associated Polish Republican Clubs of Cook County indorsed Col. Lowden for governor.

Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the Republican county committee, yesterday issued a statement charging that the Deneen-West-Hull forces in the Sixth district had tied up with William Lorimer for primary purposes. William Gregori, brother-in-law of Lorimer, Galpin says, has been speaking at Hull meetings.

John E. Northup, anti-city hall candidate for state's attorney, issued a statement yesterday declaring that Harry Miller, the hall candidate, has not had an extensive law practice.

TRIES TO ATTACK GIRLS HE LURES INTO AUTO.

"Nice Man's" Invitation to Take Ride Accepted by 8 Year Olds Returning from Play.

Ethel Wilton and Gertrude Miller, both 8 years old and both of 347 West Thirtieth street, had spent the morning at play. Arm in arm they were coming home for luncheon when a man in a small auto stopped at the corner of Thirty-third street and Shields avenue and invited them to come for a ride. The man was drunk, but the children failed to notice it.

They waved good-by to their playmates and started away. The route has not been traced, but it is known that the man stopped at five saloons during the afternoon. He also got out several times to buy them ice cream and candy.

Then the car stopped at Ninety-fifth and Rockwell streets. The man pulled the girls into a patch of weeds and attempted to attack one of them. The other ran screaming and attracted the attention of a passing farmer. The kidnaper jumped into his car and escaped.

A woman who refused to tell her name to the girls' parents took the children home. "He is a man of medium height and weight," Gertrude told the police. "He wore a gray soft hat and a blue serge suit. And he was an awful nice man until he tried to hold us out there."

NEGRO POLICEMAN ACCUSED.

Bishop Williams Loses Star After 16 Year Old Girl Brings Charges.

Bishop Williams, a Negro policeman assigned to the Twenty-second street station, has been suspended and his star taken from him, under charges of contributing to the delinquency of a 16 year old girl. Alice Smith, of 146 West Twenty-seventh street, is held on charges of disorderly conduct. The girl, who is alleged by officers of the Juvenile court to have been the victim of an attempt of Policeman Williams and Alice Smith to force her into a life of shame, lives in Wentworth avenue and has been motherless for ten years.

Williams has been on the force for four years. A few months ago he was held up and his revolver and club taken from him.

whole will cost Wilson thousands of votes, as well as damage the rest of the ticket.

"Illinois is a pivotal state. Wilson may win without it. But with Illinois for him he will surely be elected.

"Therefore it is vital to Democratic success in the nation, as well as in Illinois and Cook county, that the state ticket be headed by the strongest available candidate for governor.

For "Good of Democracy."

"With all this in mind, and after careful canvass of the situation and consultation with every ward and precinct organization in Chicago and Cook county, we beleieve the interests of Democracy will be best served by the nomination of William B. Brinton of Dixon for governor.

"Mr. Brinton has been a genuine, consistent, and active Democrat in every kind of weather since away back beyond the time when he helped manage the Altgeld campaign.

"He is an able, experienced, successful business man. He favors the budget system for the administration of state finances and reorganization of the governmental machinery to eliminate waste, check extravagance, keep taxes down, and put all of the state's business on a businesslike basis. His experience is a guaranty that he can accomplish these things.

Seek to "Save Votes."

"Moreover, Mr. Brinton is pledged to the largest and fullest measure for home rule for Chicago.

"In our judgment the nomination of Mr. Brinton will hold for the Democratic ticket many thousands of voters that otherwise will be alienated on the governorship, and for the most part driven clear away from the rest of the ticket; therefore, be it

"Resolved, By the managing committee of the Democratic party of Cook county that we indorse the candidacy of William B. Brinton of Dixon for the Democratic nomination for governor of Illinois and we urge all Democrats to vote for him at the primary election next Wednesday, Sept. 13, 1916."

A Hot Time Was Had.

The story of the committee meeting is not near so tame a narrative as the formal resolution.

For nearly two hours, led by Dennis J. Egan, chief clerk of the election board; James Dailey, chairman of the committee; John F. O'Malley, the "over the river" Sullivan leader; and George E. Brennan, they nearly blew the window panes out of the rose room with their scorching attacks on Gov. Dunne.

When the roll was called some of the Sullivan men reported the precinct captains of their wards were for Brinton, but they doubted the wisdom of openly indorsing Brinton. They were permitted to be recorded as "no" with the understanding that they would work their heads off for Brinton just the same.

These Against Brinton.

The seven wards which were recorded against the indorsement were the Third, Sixth, Thirteenth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fourth, and Thirty-fifth.

H. A. Zender of the Twenty-sixth, Frank Paschen of the Twenty-eighth, and Joseph Kostner of the Thirty-fourth were the three real Harrison-Dunne men to vote against the resolution, although they stated to the meeting that many of the precinct captains were for Brinton.

Following the Fireworks.

Chairman Dailey called the meeting to order and the fireworks were off. He stated protests against not making an indorsement for governor had come to the committee from all wards in the city early in the week. They paid little attention to it, he said, until the Briggs house committee put into circulation the "scurrilous attack on our great leader, Roger C. Sullivan." Then, he said, "all bets were off."

Chief Clerk Egan of the election board, who was given a whole chapter in the Briggs House blast, made the furniture rattle when he got going, and cheers blew through the oaken doors for several minutes with momentary stops for breath.

Bringing In the Church.

When the Twenty-sixth ward was called Henry A. Zender, a Harrison-Dunne man, said that while there was some sentiment for Brinton up his way, he didn't like to see the committee turn down Dunne.

"Dunne," he said, "used to attend church in our ward."

"What church—the Catholic church?" roared John F. O'Malley.

"Yes," replied Zender, "when he went to church."

When the Twenty-first ward was called O'Malley got up and said the men in his ward who are on Dunne's pay roll wouldn't vote for Dunne.

"Why," he said, "they wouldn't vote for Dunne in November if he should be nominated on Wednesday. So what the hell's the use of talking about not indorsing Brinton?"

By Michael Kenna.

Michael Kenna, speaking for the First ward, gave a characteristic report.

"We're all set for anybody you name," he said. "We ain't crazy about anything or anybody up our way. The boys are ready to go along with the program, whatever it is. Give us the word and it's done."

W. J. Graham said he had to adjourn a meeting in the Second ward to stop them from indorsing Brinton. He voted "aye."

Similar statements were made by many committeemen.

Martin O'Brien doubted the wisdom of the move, and County Clerk Sweitzer took it upon himself to speak for the Thirteenth, with the immediate result of another big "AYE."

Then up arose Barney Grogan. He was good.

"Dunne kept the doors closed for four years on the Eighteenth ward," he said, with a few explatives thrown in. "Now, let's close the door on ——— ——— ——— Dunne."

Brinton Makes Speech.

Brinton, following his indorsement by the Sullivan committee, made his first Chicago speech at Forest Park at night, seventy-two hours before the polls open. He said in part:

"The honor accorded me and the help given my candidacy for governor by your managing committee's indorsement this morning is fully appreciated. This action, I believe, settled beyond question the Democratic nomination for governor. But whatever may happen as a result of the primaries next Wednesday, or at the general election in November, the honor and the support you have given to me will never be forgotten.

"We are approaching an election in a most momentous period. During the most difficult years this country has seen in half a century the destinies of the nation have been in the hands of the Democratic party. Under the inspiring leadership of President Wilson the difficulties of these years have been so ably and successfully met that it is now a patriotic duty to fight for retention of management of the United States' affairs in the hands of President Wilson and the Democratic party. No greater honor can come to me than to be permitted to fight in that cause shoulder to shoulder with the militant Democracy of Chicago and Cook county which I see represented here today."

State Fight Changes.

The action of the Sullivan committee transformed in an instant the Democratic state primary fight.

From a perfunctory affair it has been galvanized into a live proposition from Chicago to Cairo and the contests for the minor state offices leap into corresponding relative prominence.

Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara became a candidate for renomination without asking anybody. He is not backed particularly by the Dunne organization. Sullivan regulars are opposed to O'Hara at every stage of the game and are for Henry W. Huttmann of Chicago, a former member of the school board.

For secretary of state Lewis G. Stevenson, incumbent, incurred the uncompromising hostility of the Chicago leaders within the Sullivan organization.

Mr. Stevenson, who was appointed to his office by Gov. Dunne at the death of the late secretary, Harry Woods, is marked for slaughter along with Gov. Dunne by the new turn of affairs, so far as the regular organization is concerned. James O. Monroe, who was Woods' private secretary, is a candidate. So are Anthony C. Coorlim and John J. Fitzgerald.

Carroll Makes Spirited Fight.

For state auditor David J. Carroll of Chicago is making a spirited campaign against the present auditor, James J. Brady, whom the Sullivan regulars have indorsed all along the line. Mr. Carroll, while not indorsed formally by the Dunne leaders, may get that support, now that the Dunne-Brinton fight is to the death. Other candidates are John P. Callahan, Emmet Cavanaugh, M. W. Collett, and Albert J. Flynn.

Democratic State Chairman Arthur W. Charles of Carmi is the organization candidate for state treasurer. Against him is John Downey, former alderman and secretary of the Harrison wing's organization.

Lucey Has Clear Field.

Attorney General Patrick J. Lucey has no opposition for renomination.

For congressmen at large the regular organization indorsed William Elza Williams of Pittsfield, Democratic incumbent, and Joseph O. Kostner, former deputy commissioner of public works and for a long while a front ranker in the Harrison wing. He is now lined up with the regulars.

Everett Jennings, general counsel for the public utilities commission, has made a state-wide campaign. Thomas G. McElligott has substantial Cook county support. Francis J. McKeown is a candidate.

We have persistently claimed that the New Series Paige Fairfield "Six-46" offers more actual dollar-for-dollar value than any other motor car on the American market.

This is no mere exaggeration. It is a deliberate, cold blooded statement of fact, and can be proven with mathematical precision by any comparative investigation.

Put the two cars side by side. Check them up, feature for feature. Pay attention to the small details quite as well as the big ones. Then, be guided by your own judgment.

On this basis we are quite content to abide by the result. You will find, we believe, that each dollar of your automobile investment will go farther if you select a Paige.

SULLIVAN FORCES BADLY SPLIT UP IN COOK DISTRICTS

Anti-Regular Faction Makes Little Attempt to Name Legislators.

The downtown headquarters of the regular or Sullivan Democratic organization has kept hands off the legislative contests, and the result is that in fourteen of the nineteen districts in Cook county the regular forces are badly divided.

In very few of the districts have the anti-Sullivan forces made an organized attempt to name legislative candidates, so that the primaries Wednesday, so far as the legislature is concerned, will be a hand to hand scrap between rival ward organizations, each supporting candidates who are acceptable to the regulars as a whole.

The United Societies, playing a conspicuous part in the Democratic selections, has at least one candidate in each district, and usually two. The Anti-Saloon league has little interest in the Democratic results.

Situation by Districts.

The situation by districts is as follows:

First district—Representative John Griffin, backed as usual by the First ward and the United Societies, will win. John J. McMurray is a candidate.

Second district—Representatives George U. Lipshuich and Frank Ryan are indorsed for renomination, both by the L. V. L. and the United Societies. The Nineteenth ward organization is for Lipshuich, the Eleventh and Twelfth for Ryan, and the Eighteenth is for Randall E. Marshall. Abraham Yarmo, Charles W. A. Jacobs, Timothy Tierney, Jeremiah E. Holly, Richard A. Goggin, and John Patrick Goggin are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Third district—Representative Edward M. Santry is indorsed by the L. V. L., the United Societies, and the Second ward regulars. The Fourth ward regulars refused indorsemnt to Representative John P. Walsh, indorsed by the United Societies, and gave it to William J. Mortimer. William T. Mahoney is a candidate. Two to be nominated.

Fourth district—Representative Hubert Kilens gets the L. V. L. indorsement this time, also that of the United Societies, and part of the Twenty-ninth ward regulars. Frank C. McNicholas and James P. Boyle divide the support of the Thirtieth ward regulars. Representative George C. Hilton, backed by the United Societies and a part of the Twenty-ninth ward organization, is out for renomination. Other candidates are Timothy D. Murphy, William M. Rossell, Thomas P. McGrath, Edward Stober, and Michael D. Grysinski. Two to be nominated.

Fifth district—Representative Michael L. Igoe, Gov. Dunne's floor leader at Springfield, is indorsed by the L. V. L. and the United Societies. Wilbur A. Hamman and Worth Allen are commended by the L. V. L. Thomas J. Gibbons is a candidate. One to be nominated.

Sixth district—The regular organization in the district supports Representative Robert E. Wilson. The Harrison organization is with Representative Joseph A. Weber. The L. V. L. indorses Weber and B. V. Hubbard. The United Societies indorse Wilson and Weber. Anton F. Lalowski, Ernest M Stout, and Christoph F. Schulze are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Seventh district—The regulars are for John W. McCarthy and John A. Stout. McCarthy has the United Societies. Alexander F. Robinson is backed by the Harrison faction. The L. V. L. has indorsed Charles S. Bell. Two to be nominated.

Ninth district—The regular organization is split four ways. The Fifth ward indorses Representative Robert J. Mulcahy, the Twelfth Representative Joseph Placek, the Fourth Andrew P. Cholewinski, and the Eleventh Frank Brunke. The L. V. L. indorses Placek and Cholewinski. The United Societies recommend Mulcahy and Placek. Edward J. Quinn, Joseph J. Rezabek, Otto J. Krampikowsky, Frank Vondrasek, and Frank W. Leins are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Eleventh district—The L. V. L. passes up the two retiring Democrats and indorses William J. Grace, who is without organization backing. The Dunne organization is for Richard J. Knight, and possibly for Representative Henry F. Schuberth. The Twenty-ninth ward regulars are for Representative Frank J. Ryan and the Thirty-second ward organization is for John P. Smith. John J. Harrington and John E. Conroy are strong contenders. The United Societies recommend Schuberth and Ryan. James D. McHugh, George W. O'Neil, and Capt. Dan Morgan Smith, now at the border with the Seventh, are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Thirteenth district—The L. V. L. has indorsed Edward J. O'Connor. Representative James W. Ryan is indorsed by the Eighth ward regulars and the United Societies. Robert Lenard is supported by the Polish regular organization. Richard B. Vall and William P. McPhee are candidates. One to be nominated.

Fifteenth district—Representative Joseph O. Hruby, the Harrison organization candidate, and former Ald. Frank J. Vavricek, are recommended by the L. V. L. The United Societies recommend Hruby and Rep. Peter F. Smith, and they mark Vavricek as "acceptable." Smith is backed solidly by the Tenth, Eleventh, and Twentieth ward organizations. Joseph Vorda has Eleventh ward organization support. Joseph Szymanski, Peter F. Afeld, William J. McAuliffe, George K. Gancarz, Ferdinand Svoboda, Anthony J. Dwyer, and Stephen F. Muchowski are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Seventeenth district—Representative John S. Burns, strongly commended by the L. V. L., is marked for defeat by the regular organization, which supports Representative Jacob W. Epstein and former Representative Anthony Trimarco. Burns, Epstein, and John Noonan are recommended by the United Societies, and Trimarco is marked by them as "acceptable." Other candidates are Matthew A. Smith, Redmond B. Sheridan, Michael Biondo, Carmen Delabadia, and Carmen Vacco. The last named candidate is heavily supported by the young Italians of the district. Two to be nomianted.

Nineteenth district—Seventeen candidates are in the going in this west side district. The L. V. L. has indorsed Representative James T. Prendergast, who is also indorsed by the United Societies, and also by the regular organization of the Twelfth and Thirty-fourth wards. The L. V. L. names as qualified William H. Sage, Edward T. McCaffrey, and Herbert B. Wolff, who are minus organization support. The Thirteenth ward regulars are with Representative James C. McGloon and Patrick F. Coffey. Maurice T. Cullerton is indorsed by the Thirteenth and Thirty-fourth ward regulars. James J. Sup has the backing of a strong Bohemian element in Cicero. The United Societies pick Representatives Prendergast and McGloon. The other candidates are Joseph T. Friel, A. Paul Holleb, Thomas J. Stack, James T. Welch, James D. Mitchell, James T. Devere, John Augustine, Thomas A. Hogan, and Walter L. Pietras. Two to be nominated.

Twenty-first district—Three candidates are to be nominated, through the influence of Representative Benjamin M. Mitchell, who controls the senatorial committee. The fight centers in the efforts of the regulars to defeat Mitchell for renomination. He is indorsed by the United Societies. The three regulars slated are Michael F. Maher, George M. Maypole, and William E. Golden. Maher and Maypole are marked "acceptable" by the United Societies. Other candidates are former Senator John E. Madigan, Christopher Ebbole, Michael O'Toole, and Edward L. Wheat.

Twenty-fifth district—The L. V. L. makes no recommendation in this northwest side district. The regulars are for Representative John G. Jacobson, who has the United Societies' backing. The Harrison wing is with Louis P. Cardwell. The Polish organization and the Harrison forces are for Frank H. Landmesser, to whom the United Societies give an "acceptable" mark. Other candidates are Felix J. Roche, Stanley Rutkowski, Thomas Ellingson, Joseph G. Lewandowski, William F. Albright, and A. W. Schwane. Only one to be nominated.

Twenty-third district—Only one is to be nominated and the L. V. L. has centered upon Representative George R. Bruce, also backed by the United Societies, to defeat Frank P. Delaby. Bruce is supported by the Thirty-third ward regulars and Delaby by the Fifteenth ward regulars. Leopold J. Arnstein, William Ritchie, and Cornelius W. McNerney are other candidates.

Twenty-seventh district—Representative James M. Donlan has been indorsed by the L. V. L., by the United Societies, and by the Eighteenth ward regulars. Representative Joseph A. G. Trandel is backed by a mixture of regulars and Harrison men. Joseph Petlak is the candidate of the Harrison forces in the Sixteenth ward. Michael J. Galvin and Paul Jachim are candidates. Two candidates are to be nominated this time.

Twenty-ninth district—Capt. James H. Farrell is up for renomination, recommended this time by the L. V. L. The Harrison wing is with him. The O'Malley regulars are for Representative Bernard J. Conlon and Lawrence C. O'Brien. The L. V. L. couples John B. Dunn with Representative Farrell. The United Societies have indorsed Farrell and Conlon. Two to be nominated.

Thirty-first district—The L. V. L. has indorsed three candidates in the Lake View district, Representative Frank J. Self, William E. Mooney, and Richard J. Burke. The regular entries are Burke and former Representative John C. Werdell. Self is backed by the Harrison wing. Robert J. Lynch and John F. Walsh are candidates. The United Societies support Self and Werdell. Two to be nominated.

DENEEN FACTION MAKES DRIVE ON CITY HALL CLIQUE

Clashes for Assembly Jobs Bitter in Most All City Districts.

The Deneen faction and the city hall crowd clash sharply in each and every one of the nineteen senatorial districts in Cook county. Each crowd has at least one candidate for the house of representatives in each of the districts, and the issue is very close in most of the bailiwicks.

The situation by districts is about as follows:

First district—Representative William M. Brinkman and Benjamin H. Lucas are indorsed particularly to defeat Representative S. B. Turner, the present Negro member from the First. The United Societies indorse Brinkman and Turner. The city hall supports Brinkman and the Deneen-Hull-Progressive combination is with John H. Taylor, former Progressive member of the house. John Morris, Prince Wales Upshaw, and Benjamin H. Lucas are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Second district—The Galpin organization has two candidates, Robert J. Marcy and Lorenz Meisterheim, both indorsed by the United Societies. Marcy is a former member. The D.-H.-P. organization is with Alber. Irwin. The L. V. L. indorsed Meisterheim and George C. Weinmann. Jacob H. Marks is a candidate. Two candidates to be nominated.

Third district—The city hall and the United Societies are together on two candidates, Representative Robert P. Jackson, now a major in the Eighth Illinois at the border, and Herman E. Schultz. The L. V. L. indorses both, and the D.-H.-P. combination has no candidate. Others in the running are William G. Anderson, William R. Coon, David R. Robinson, and William L. Martin. Two to be nominated.

Fourth district — Representative Thomas A. Boyer, one of the house leaders, is indorsed by the L. V. L. and the United Societies. The city hall attempts to defeat him with Peter G. Nix. Other candidates are George O. Brown, Richard Cervinka, John E. Pierce, William H. Van Hook, John Schick, and Roman J. Kowalewski. One to be nominated.

Fifth district—This is where the board of election commissioners knocked out seven "phony" candidates at one swoop and the situation appears to be badly complicated. The L. V. L. has indorsed five candidates, Sidney Lyon, Alexander H. Heyman, Claude F. Smith, Thomas G. Vent, and Guy Guernsey. The city hall is supposed to be with John H. Helwig, the present representative; Sidney Lyon, or George F. Fitzgerald. Lyon's friends say that he is an independent. The organization that supports Hull has marked for Guy Guernsey, who was former probate clerk, and Thomas G. Vent. Alexander Heyman, who was the Progressive candidate against Hull for state senator two years ago, is making a hard fight. Edward H. Tiedebohl, a lawyer, is a candidate independent of factions. William P. Meyers and Harry Swan are candidates. Two to be nominated.

Sixth district—Allan J. Carter, son of Supreme Court Justice Orrin N. Carter, heads the ballot in this, the Evanston, district. There are eleven candidates and Mr. Carter's friends, with the approval of the L. V. L., are voting for him, plumping three votes in order to insure his nomination. The L. V. L. lists as good timber: George Seebacher, the candidate of the Brundage organization; Benjamin S. Herbert, Ralph E. Church, Melville R. Adams and Arthur L. Kemnitz. William E. Anderson, a former member, is a candidate. Others are Emil J. Heine, William E. Benin and C. Herman Johnson. Two to be nominated.

Seventh district — Representative Frederick R. De Young, who may be a candidate for speaker, is indorsed by the L. V. L. in the country towns district, and so is Lewis B. Springer, who is also backed by the Deneen organization, along with William J. Cameron. The William H. Weber organization is with Albert F. Volz of Arlington Heights. Other candidates are Hugo J. Thal, C. A. Hercules, Walter S. Parker, Harry O. Meyer and William A. Adams. Two to be nominated.

Ninth district—Speaker David E. Shanahan, strongly indorsed by the L. V. L. and approved by the United Societies, has a single opponent, Joseph Pavelchik. All party factions are with the speaker. One to be nominated.

Eleventh district—Three candidates appear in the Englewood district. Representative John H. Lyle is the Deneen candidate. Alfred Van Duser is City Smoke Inspector Reid's organization candidate, and both are indorsed by the L. V. L. J. Thompson White is the third. Two to be nominated.

Thirteenth district—The L. V. L. indorses both present representatives, Gotthard A. Dahlberg and C. A. Young. The city hall is for Dahlberg, who is now on the city hall pay roll. The Deneen-Hull-Progressive combination has made no indorsement. George F. Roberts, a newspaper publisher of excellent standing, is making a strong fight. The United Societies indorsed Young and gave Arthur Gollhardt half an indorsement. Elmer J. Schnackenberg, a Progressive member in 1913, now runs as a Republican. Other candidates are Frank N. Hillis, John Monroe and Walter H. Allen. Two to be nominated.

Fifteenth district — Representative Thomas X. Curran, the leader of the vets at Springfield, has no primary opposition.

Seventeenth district — Representative Edward J. Smejkal, chairman of the house appropriations committee is without an opponent. He is indorsed by the L. V. L.

Nineteenth district—Representative Solomon P. Roderick is given unqualified indorsement by the L. V. L. and by the United Societies. He has the Deneen organization support. The L. V. L. marks as qualified candidates J. Frank Hemmens, Charles F. Manahan, and James E. Marek. Marek is listed as the Thompson candidate. Others are Elmer L. King, William J. Jackel, and Frank Sidlo. Two to be nominated.

Twenty-first district—The L. V. L. indorses Representative Frederick J. Bippus and Edward Newman. Representative Thomas P. Devereux is backed by the city hall and the United Societies. The Deneen organization in the Fourteenth ward is for Newman and John Grunau, Progressive member in 1913. The Deneen organization in the Seventeenth ward, headed by Ald. Sitts, is with Arthur Burdhal. Other candidates are Henry Lewis, Edwin C. Young, Frank Murray, Russell J. White, Augustus W. Mercer, Wallace W. Joadwine, and Frank H. Guffin. Guffin is classed as qualified by the L. V. L. Two to be nominated.

Twenty-third district—The L. V. L. has indorsed Representative William G. Thon, allied with the Deneen faction, and Paul F. Schaefer, who is a city hall entry. Edwin P. Schroeder is the second Deneen starter and Edward M. Overland is the second city hall candidate. The United Societies have indorsed Anderson and Overland. Other candidates are A. B. Wisler, Harvey H. Preston, William W. Todd, J. B. Shapiro, and Rudolph C. Weichbrodt. Two to be nominated.

Twenty-fifth district—The Deneen organization is with Frank P. Caviezel, who is indorsed by the L. V. L. The league also indorses John W. Carroll. Representative Charles L. Fieldstack makes an independent race for renomination, indorsed by the United Societies. The city hall candidate is John P. Remus. Other candidates are Michael F. McMahon, Frank T. Baird, August Crosek, Oscar M. Lumby, Walter E. Boerger, and James Henry Farrell. Two to be nominated.

Twenty-seventh district — Representative Albert Rostenkowski is supported by the L. V. L., the United Societies, and the Deneen organization. The city hall has two candidates, Edward Wals and Gustave F. Draeger. Two to be nominated.

Twenty-ninth district—Bernard F. Clettenberg, who made an excellent record as a former representative and as an alderman, is threatened by John B. Strasburger, brought out by City Comptroller Pike. Clettenberg's managers have located Strasburger as a Nebraska voter in 1914 and as an ex-postmaster in that state. The L. V. L. has indorsed both of them. Clettenberg has the United Societies' indorsement. Other candidates in the north side district are Henry W. Boerner, Joseph S. Devoney, William F. McConnell, Fredrick Lantz, John E. Sandberg, Robert L. Reid, and Joseph D. Irose, the latter having the open support of the Deneen organization. Only one is to be nominated.

Thirty-first district—The L. V. L. has indorsed both retiring members, Harry F. Hamlin and E. I. Frankhauser, in the Lake View district, and has given a "qualified" approval to Thomas Lindskog and Former Representative Harry L. Shaver. The Deneen organization is for Frankhauser and Lindskog. Carl Mueller, former state senator, is the candidate supported by the Brundage organization and is O. K.'d by the United Societies. Other candidates are Nathan Loewenstein, Eugene A. Smith, Gunnar Anderson, C. Gottfried Berg, James J. Probasco, William Richard Brand, and Benjamin J. Glaser.

SMASH SLATES, INDEPENDENT CRY IN STATE G. O. P.

Candidates Failed to Land on Pro-Lowden or Pro-Hull Lists.

"Smash the slates!" is the war cry of the independent candidates for state offices who did not land on either the pro-Lowden or the pro-Hull organization tickets.

For lieutenant governor, John G. Oglesby, who held that office for four years, seem to have the edge. He is indorsed by the Cook county regulars and he is not opposed by the Deneen forces.

No Choice for Treasurer.

Andrew Russel, present state treasurer, is picked by the talent to figure close to the top. His own friends are confident that Russel will win. George A. Smith, who was a primary candidate against former Auditor James S. McCullough, expects to get a big Chicago vote.

The Deneen organization did not make a selection for state treasurer because of the row between George Keys of Springfield, who is an active candidate, and some of the Springfield friends of Senator Hull.

For attorney general the five cornered fight borders on a brutal finish.

Attorney General.

Edward J. Brundage, the leader of the Chicago neutrals, is the regular organization candidate in Cook county. The plurality that he expects to get in Cook county will make or break him for the nomination. The Deneen organization has marked its ballots for George H. Wilson of Quincy.

Fayette S. Munro sent a telegram to THE TRIBUNE denying that Wilson had been slated by the Deneen forces, but the man that superintended the printing of the Deneen sample ballots said that Wilson is the man. The prevailing opinion is that the showdown will come between Brundage and Richard J. Barr of Joliet.

Walter M. Provine, one of the Deneen leaders at Springfield, was refused the Deneen indorsement and he has been making an independent campaign. F. S. Munro has been campaigning upon the strength of his participation in the Fergus suit prosecutions.

For the two nominations for congressman at large, the prospects are that Medill McCormick will be named as the Chicago candidate and that Rep. Burnett M. Chiperfield of Canton will be renominated.

STRASBURGER'S RESIDENCE IN DISTRICT QUESTIONED.

Clettenberg Claims Candidate for Representative Lived in Nebraska Within Five Year Limit.

Campaign managers for Bernard F. Clettenberg, Republican candidate for state representative in the Twenty-ninth district, have discovered what they assert to be a flaw in any claim to the nomination made by John B. Strasburger, city hall candidate against Clettenberg.

The Clettenberg people took up the assertion in Strasburger's campaign literature that he had been a resident of the district for twenty-five years and looked him up in the city directory. From 1905 to 1908 he lived at 422 East Chicago avenue, and from 1909 to 1914 his name didn't appear.

Then former Ald. James F. Burns looked up Mr. Strasburger in Nebraska. He found, he asserts, that John B. Strasburger, answering the description of the candidate, was registered in Sheridan county, Nebraska, and voted there in November, 1914, and got a patent to 640 acres of land Dec. 9, 1913. Furthermore, that John B. Strasburger was postmaster of the postoffice of Strasburger, in that state, two years ago.

The Clettenberg people raise the point that Strasburger is not a legal resident of the state, within the five year constitutional limit to qualify him as a member of the house of representatives.

GEORGE EASTMAN GAINING.

Kodak Manufacturer, Operated On in Private Car in North Dakota, Reported Recovering.

Mulligan of Rochester. The Eastman party started today for Rochester and will pass through Chicago Sunday night.

Mr. Eastman was ill when he left home on a hunting trip to this state, and to be prepared for eventualities complete operating room equipment was taken along.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE CHIEF PREDICTS HULL'S TRIUMPH.

Through Organization of State Claimed Against Lowden—Cook County Weak Spot.

The Anti-Saloon League of Illinois, through F. Scott McBride, state superintendent, last night issued a summary of the Republican governorship campaign, from the league's viewpoint, predicting the nomination of Senator Hull. The McBride statement follows in part:

"Hull's chances grow brighter every hour. Our league has a campaign manager in every county, with an organization under him reaching down into the school districts. Reports from these managers show that Hull sentiment is gaining by leaps and bounds, especially among church people, former Progressives, and workingmen.

"Our organizations, in all counties of the state, excepting Cook county and three or four other wet strongholds, are conceded to be much more thorough than the organizations of either of the old parties."

Pioneers in Diamond Economy

This idea of direct communication between producer and consumer and of sending the middlemen "right-about" is good, but not new. Thousands of satisfied customers who have bought at Roberts' can testify to that. Many years ago we began to practice what the economic experts of this day are preaching. We imported Diamonds direct from the cutters, to whom we paid spot cash for fine gems in quantities and mounted them in solid 14 Carat or solid 18 Carat Gold and Platinum. For frankness and straightforwardness, our unpretentious store has become a busy center for Solitaire Diamond Engagement Rings at from $10 to $1500, and every one of them is value that would be simply out of the question if the middleman were to be paid.

Solitaire Diamond Engagement Rings

WOMEN DEMAND CONGRESS ACT ON AMENDMENT

National Convention Asks Immediate Submission—Holds Nonpartisan Policy.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Demands for the immediate submission of the federal suffrage amendment were made on congress today in the report of the resolutions committee of the National American Woman Suffrage association. The report reaffirms the nonpartisan policy of the association and declares the time is ripe for the granting of full suffrage to women.

The convention has instructed its congressional committee to concentrate all its resources on a determined effort to carry the federal amendment through the last session of the Sixty-fourth congress, the report states, and it has pledged the support of the state organization to this end.

Report Tells of Progress.

"This association," the report says, "now declares that as a result of its work woman suffrage is in operation in twelve states; that it has refuted every objection urged against it to date; it has plainly demonstrated its value to the states and to the women themselves; that this is proved by the fact that no state has made an effort to repeal it; that an immense amount of favorable public sentiment has been created; and, most significant of all, that every political party has put in its platform a plank for woman suffrage and every presidential candidate has expressed himself in favor of it.

"The association demands that congress shall recognize the situation by submitting without delay an amendment to the constitution which shall secure nation-wide woman suffrage.

"This association calls especial attention to the fact that during the entire forty-seven years of its existence its attitude toward the political parties has been strictly nonpartisan and its victories have been due to friends of all parties. This association is firmly of the opinion that adherence or hostility to any party is to be condemned and it hereby declares its continued allegiance to the policy of nonpartisanship."

Mrs. Catt Re-elected President.

As was expected, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt was unanimously reelected president of the national association. Three of the national officers, including Mrs. James W. Morrisson of Chicago, refused to serve again. All of the other officers were reelected. For the first time in many years Chicago has no representative on the national board.

Mrs. Walter McNabb Miller, who was first auditor, was elected first vice president in place of Mrs. Frank M. Roessing. Miss Hannah Patterson's position as corresponding secretary will be filled by Mrs. Frank J. Shuler of Buffalo. Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Smith is the new recording secretary, succeeding Mrs. Morrisson, and Miss Eloise Meyer of Massachusetts is the other new member of the board.

The Republicans had their inning tonight on the suffragists' platform. Herbert Parsons, Republican leader in New York, and Raymond Robins of Chicago spoke. Mr. Robins did not mention politics, but Mr. Parsons virtually made an appeal to the women to support Hughes.

Woman's Party Leader Angered.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 9.—Miss Mabel Vernon, national secretary of the Woman's party, who is here on her way to Nevada to campaign against President Wilson and Democratic members for congress, issued a statement today attacking the president's attitude on suffrage.

"President Wilson's speech to the National Suffrage association is an insult to the intelligence of women," she said. "The test of sincerity is action. In the coming election members of the Woman's party will judge President Wilson not by his words in Atlantic City but by his acts at Washington.

Ministers' Meetings Resume.

The regular Monday morning meetings of the Congregational and Baptist ministers for the 1916-'17 season will begin in the Masonic Temple at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

WILSON'S WORDS FAIL TO SATISFY SUFFRAGE HEADS

Alice Paul and Anne Martin Comment on President's Atlantic City Speech.

"It is action, not words, which will appeal to suffragists," sixaid Miss Alice Paul, national chairman of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, when she commented yesterday in Chicago on President Wilson's Atlantic City speech.

"The women of the west will judge President Wilson in the election by his deeds, not his words," said Miss Anne Martin, national chairman of the Woman's party.

Miss Paul's Charges.

Miss Paul catalogued the series of charges the women have against the president. Her statement follows:

"Nothing could show more clearly the power of women voters in the coming presidential election than President Wilson's action in going to Atlantic City to address a gathering of suffragists. This is indicative of the approaching capitulation of all parties to the demands of organized women voters of the west, for nation-wide suffrage for women.

"At the inauguration procession suffragists held when Wilson was inducted into office, an invitation to review the procession was extended to Mr. Wilson and Mr. Taft. Mr. Taft accepted, but Mr. Wilson so completely ignored the suffrage movement that he did not even reply.

Cites Another Instance.

"The following summer when Mr. Wilson was invited to welcome the convention of the National Council of Women voters, meeting in Washington, as he had welcomed the D. A. R. and other conventions, he again refused.

"He likewise refused to welcome the convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association in Washington, December, 1913. To the long line of delegations which have sought his help in securing action on Suffrage in congress he has shown indifference and opposition. The Congressional Union for Woman suffrage knows full well the determined opposition from the president the national suffrage amendment has met.

"Now that women voters in the west have organized the Woman's party, dedicated to the support of the national enfranchisement of women, Mr. Wilson is beginning to see the light. In hastening to address a body of suffragists he shows he realizes the importance of considering the 4,000,000 women who will vote for the next president."

Phrases Won't Help.

"No phrases by the president," said Miss Martin, "can change the fact he allowed congress to adjourn without action on the national suffrage amendment, and that he stands committed to the state by state method of winning suffrage, which is not only the longest and most laborious but a practically impossible method."

MARSHALL ASSAILS HUGHES IN TALK TO KENTUCKIANS

Says Horse Must Strike Gait at First of Race to Win—Believes Former Justice Got Poor Start.

Winchester, Ky., Sept. 9.—"In this blue grass region I need not remind you that the horse that doesn't strike his gait during the first quarter never finishes under the wire a winner," said Vice President Marshall here today at the opening of the state campaign.

"Republican Candidate Hughes, it is said, has not struck his gait," he said.

Marshall assailed Hughes' campaign speeches as based upon "copious notes taken at conference with such political purists as Boies Penrose and men wedded to the Aldrich school of politics, with a soft pedal tone for the ears of the Progressives."

Declaring that the administration had achieved "more remedial legislation than was ever written by any two administrations," Marshall said that if the Republicans returned to power they would fail to enforce it.

Mrs. O. W. Haines of 5215 Cullom avenue refuses to allow her two young children, Marshall and Olive, to be examined before they go to school. She puts herself on record thus:

"I am going to send my two children to the Portage Park school every day for one year if necessary. They have no right to send them home, for that medical ruling is unconstitutional and a political move on the part of the doctors."

"ENGLEFIELD"

Ashland Avenue and 77th Street

THIS announcement has been delayed seven years! It has taken that long for the Harmon System of Home Ownership to reach the great Southwest Side.

For your neighbors on the North Side we created "Ravenswood Manor" and "Ravenswood Gardens," two park-like home sections.

For your neighbors on the South Side we are developing "Chatham Fields," which stands above anything ever undertaken in Modern City Planning.

Now we present ENGLEFIELD, our first property on the Southwest Side, and the ninth we have opened in Chicago.

ENGLEFIELD gives us our opportunity to contribute a modern and beautiful home section, whose distinctive manner of development will set a new standard of home surroundings—and give to the modest home a delightful setting of trees, and flowers, and shrubs.

When the people of the South Side discover that our unique manner of development is to be maintained at Englefield, when they realize that we are going down into the very heart of the growing Southwest Side and create another beauty spot, where we can offer attractive home sites at 20% to 50% below our usual prices, their response to the Englefield opportunity will be immediate and overwhelming.

"ENGLEFIELD"

A Modern Englewood

ENGLEFIELD is south and west of Englewood, on Ashland Avenue, one of Chicago's most prominent sectional streets. Our Entrance Gates, leading into the center of our 115 acre development, are at Ashland Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street.

Soon our entire plan for developing ENGLEFIELD will be given out. Rest assured, however, that at Englefield we will maintain the high standard of our other properties in attractiveness—but more of this later. As to prices, $390 to $840 will secure any lot except business lots and corners.

Terms as usual—$10 down, $7 to $10 monthly. Englefield right now is being transformed. So, before our next announcement, run out to the property and see the first fascinating stages in creating a Model Home Center.

TO REACH ENGLEFIELD

Ashland Avenue-75th Street cars run from the Loop out State Street, Archer Avenue and Ashland Avenue direct to Englefield. Our Entrance Gates are at Ashland Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street. Englefield fronts on Ashland Avenue from 75th to 78th Street.)

The Wabash train leaving the Dearborn Street Station at 1:25 is a convenient train direct to Englefield in 20 minutes. Get off at DEWEY STATION, on Englefield.

MILLER SHOOTS HOT QUESTIONS AT NORTHUP

Asks of I. C. Embezzlement Cases and J. E. W. Wayman Fees.

Harry B. Miller, the Thompson-city hall candidate for state's attorney, in a long statement yesterday renewed his attacks upon John E. Northup, his principal opponent for the nomination.

"In none of my public addresses," Mr. Miller said, "did I make a single unpleasant reference to any of the gentlemen who are opposing me until John E. Northup, Mr. Deneen's candidate, attacked my character and integrity. Then I was compelled to depart from my resolution not to engage in personal controversy.

"In replying to Mr. Northup's questions I took occasion to ask him some pertinent questions, which he has attempted in part to answer, but as to the most embarrassing questions Mr. Northup remains discreetly silent.

Why? Why? Why?

"Mr. Northup now admits that while my office was prosecuting disorderly resorts he was personally present in court defending them, but pleads that 'his professional conduct in those cases was above reproach.' I grant that any attorney has a right in his professional capacity to defend any person he may be willing to accept as a client, but the question that Mr. Northup utterly fails to touch upon is:

"Why was it that, having been in court defending keepers of disorderly houses, and knowing, as he now admits, that I was vigorously and successfully prosecuting the vice resorts—why, I repeat, did Mr. Northup insinuate that I was winking at vice when he himself knew that it was untrue?

"Why do you deny, Mr. Northup, that you spoke to Judge Olson, urging him to continue the Cadillac cases, when you admit that you know Judge Olson would have advanced them?

Those Illinois Central Cases.

"I now ask Mr. Northup if it is not a fact that as an assistant state's attorney under Mr. Wayman he was in charge of the prosecution of certain prominent gentlemen charged with the embezzlement of nearly $2,000,000 from the Illinois Central railroad, four of whom were indicted?

"And is it not a fact that after dragging these cases along for nearly two years and until the public had forgotten your threats of vigorous prosecution that you, Mr. Northup, on June 24, 1912, nolle prossed [that is, dismissed without prosecution] the indictments against each of these defendants? Will you tell the public why?

What of Lundin.

"If you are an honest man, why don't you admit the fact that you went to the Republican headquarters on Forty-eighth avenue and there begged Mr. Lundin to go to John J. Healy, the then state's attorney, and recommend you for a place as one of his assistants?

"And did you not make public speeches in the Thirty-fifth ward for Lundin after you secured the job from him?

"Now, to prove that you are misrepresenting the facts, I will give $500 to charity if you will make an affidavit denying that you asked Lundin to secure you the job as assistant state's attorney.

Who Is to Get Fees?

"Don't you know of your own knowledge, Mr. Northup, that Charles S. Deneen, as state's attorney, took over $243,000 of fees that morally belonged to the school fund of Cook county?

"You admit, Mr. Northup, that you received over $2,000 from two certain crooked police officials and that you were promised four times as much more. I ask you, Mr. Northup, if it is not a fact that they have promised to give you this additional sum if you are elected state's attorney and if you help them escape the penitentiary?

"Also, Mr. Northup, how much money did you get from the clairvoyant and pickpocket trust for defending Capt. O'Brien and Capt. Halpin, who were convicted?

He Rejects All Fees.

"I have pledged myself to accept only the salary of the office of state's attorney and have stated that I will not accept nor endeavor to collect any fees, emoluments, perquisites, or profits of any kind or character in addition to the salary fixed by law.

"I now ask you, Mr. Northup, why do you not make a similar pledge instead of hiding behind the suggestion that the salary is fixed by law?

"Do you not know, Mr. Northup, that a similar law was upon the statute books when Mr. Wayman was elected state's attorney, and that he pledged himself to take only the salary? And is it not a fact that after Mr. Wayman's death, Thomas Marshall, your stalking horse in the present race, as attorney for the Wayman estate, went into court and on a legal technicality collected more than $100,000 in fees which Mr. Wayman had pledged himself not to take and which, had he lived, he doubtless would not have accepted? And didn't Marshall retain half of the amount which he collected for his services in the matter?"

HUNGRY EX-SOLDIER FINDS PLENTY OF HELPING HANDS.

Story of Leon Craig Rouses Sympathy and He Is Given a Home —Woman Sends Money.

It was hot down in Springfield when his regiment broke camp, and 18 year old Leon D. Craig suffered a sunstroke. How this affected his health so that he had to quit the service, and how he was found suffering from hunger in Grant park Friday by a policeman, was told in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

Maj. Fletcher Agnew of the Salvation army saw his story, and now Craig is in that institution's industrial home at 1325 West Congress street. He will stay there, doing work ranging from sorting paper to mending clothes, until he is able to take care of himself. This home sustains itself by the old clothes, papers, furniture, and magazines which are given away, and besides keeping about 110 unfortunate men in food and clothing, managers to pay each of them something each year.

E. P. saw the story of the unfortunate guardsman in THE TRIBUNE and sent a check for $25 for his use.

ELGIN MEN IN AUTO CRASH.

Three men who said they live in Elgin, Ill., were arrested yesterday after their automobile crashed into the car of Dr. J. Patejdl of 4801 South Ashland avenue. They gave the names of Henry Mitchell, Edward McCarthy, and Howard Christy. Mitchell, the driver, was booked on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

HOYNE STARTS INQUIRY TO TEST PRIVATE BANKS

Seizes Books to Determine Solvency—Finds a Way Under the Law.

Fifth avenue and 705 East Twelfth street. Brasiawsky's business is incorporated under the state law as the Russian-American bureau, a legal and commercial enterprise.

But the banks are operated as a private enterprise by Brasiawsky. This is not in accordance with the letter of the law, but it was said at the state's attorney's office that no prosecution would follow because of this fact.

OWNER AIDS DETECTIVES.

Detectives were given free access to books and papers by Mr. Brasiawsky, who volunteered to return to the Criminal Courts building and aid in an examination of the books. Attorney E. T. Noonan, representing Brasiawsky, said a full investigation was courted.

After the examination of the books Assistant State's Attorney Arkin, accompanied by the banker and Noonan, visited the Masonic temple vaults, where 65,000 rubles, a part of the bank's resources, was shown on deposit. Brasiawsky also explained that he also has on deposit between $40,000 and $50,000 in high grade bonds in the Continental and Commercial National bank, and between $10,000 and $15,000 in cash in his two banks.

No Prosecution Planned.

Despite the fact that Brasiawsky is operating the banks in conjunction with an incorporated enterprise, Mr. Arkin said there would be no prosecution.

'While ignorance of the law does not excuse him," said the prosecutor, "such steps will not be taken, as it is not the attitude of the state's attorney's office. Mr. Brasiawsky is given a clean bill."

When the campaign of the state's attorney's office gets under way it will be the purpose to force every private bank in the city to make a clean showing of its business and its ability to clear with its creditors. First investigations will be made in the order of complaints received.

Stirred by Silver Failure.

The failure of the banks of Adolph Silver & Co., with a loss of nearly $100,000 to depositors, and the more recent embezzlement of John A. Krzywosswtaki of more than $16,000 from a group of Polish depositors stirred the state's attorney to action.

Detective Sergeants Charles Gratton, William Gainor, Michael Grady, and John Ryan formed the first visiting committee from Mr. Hoyne's office.

Silver's Indictment Asked.

The September grand jury will begin investigation of the Silver bank failure tomorrow. The indictment of Max Silver in all probability and possibly that of Adolph Silver will be asked by the state's attorney. So far no trace has been obtained of Max Silver, who fled, taking with him, it is believed, the greater portion of the missing deposits. Adolph Silver, who returned from California shortly after the bank's failure, is still a prisoner.

WARRANT FOR STEPFATHER ACCUSED OF BRUTALITY.

Loraine P. Hart Said to Have Beaten 5 Year Old Boy with Lath Until He Bled.

Charges that Loraine P. Hart, 3544 West Lake street, a printer, beat his step-son, Carter S. Rabinoff, 5 years old, with a lath until the child bled from cuts and bruises, were made to Judge Flanagan in the Chicago Avenue court yesterday by the child's mother, Mrs. Evelyn Hart. She obtained a warrant for the arrest of Hart. The boy is the son of Attorney Samuel Rabinoff. The mother obtained a divorce and has since married Hart. She and Hart have been living apart because of domestic differences.

The alleged beating occurred while Mrs. Hart was away from her residence at 4740 West Adams street, on Friday night.

"When he called," she said, "my housekeeper told him the boy had been so disobedient she was going to quit. He took a lath from a new building nearby, woke up the child, and beat him on the back and legs until he bled."

"$6,000 MAN" LOCKED UP.

Pierre L. Mills of 1059 Foster avenue, who says he formerly held a "$6,000 a year job," yesterday was locked up at the detective bureau, charged with passing worthless checks on the Hotel Sherman and the Hotel Morrison. He formerly was a salesman for a stove concern in Kokomo, Ind., he said. He says he has a wife and children in his "home town," Cleveland, and that lack of funds prompted him to pass the checks.

Sheer gain! If it cuts the cost of travel by saving gasoline—it adds to the world's efficiency

A mile or two—at least a mile or two more—the man who drives the new Packard Twin-six now gets from every gallon he uses.

The twelve small cylinders make more effective use of their gas charges than did the six big cylinders in the cars of yesterday.

The result is focused force—continuous power—speed that instantly matches your necessity or desire—and saves gasoline.

A factor in the new efficiency is this greatest of all motor developments—a development that enables the getting of maximum mileage from even the lowest grade gasolines.

But gasoline economy is only one reason for the unprecedented success of the Twin-six. Let a Packard expert make clear the reasons—now. Prices—for the open cars—$2,865 and $3,265, f. o. b. Detroit.

CHICAGO NURSES FIND DESTINY IN 'TRIBUNE' AD

Misses Euphemia and Isabel McIsaac Harvest 13th Annual Crop.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 8.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE located two Chicago women on an eleven acre farm from which is being harvsted today the thirteenth annual crop of fruit, and on which there has been no failure in all that time.

It was a TRIBUNE ad that piloted the two women into an undertaking nothing short of a pronounced departure from their former life, and it has proved an unqualified success.

Nearly a decade and a half ago both of these women were nurses. One was Miss Isabel McIsaac, at that time the superintendent of the Illinois Training School for Nurses, and her sister, Miss Euphemia, assistant superintendent in the same Chicago institution, was a partner in the enterprise.

Tire of City Life.

The two nurses had tired of city life and longed for something that would locate them off a public highway, in a life of comparative quietude. Miss Euphemia chanced to find the farm they wanted among the classified advertisements of THE TRIBUNE. They bought it as quick as they looked it over.

The little farm is now known as Cranford and is located on a high elevation at the outskirts of Benton Harbor. It is surrounded on three sides by deep ravines, heavily wooded, but the eleven acres top is as level as the dining room table.

This high up tract of land is in the shape of a pear, the stem end of which affords access to the place. From the eminence is afforded a fine view of Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, and Lake Michigan. The entire top is composed of orchards of peaches, pears, grapes, and apples, and this year the branches are hanging heavy with this fine variety of popular fruit.

Euphemia Takes Farm.

After the girls had conducted the farm successfully for several years Isabel McIsaac accepted a position in the United States naval hospital service at Washington. Since then the farm has been in the hands and under the management of Euphemia.

When they first went to their new home they took with them Tom, a boy charge of one of the city institutions, a shaggy haired Airedale dog, and a fluffy tabby cat called Puttel. One of their first educational experiences was to get the worst of it in a horse trade. They began with chickens and fruit, but soon the whole working time was devoted to the fruit.

John C. Teevan, 6713 Glenwood avenue, a graduate of the John Marshall Law school, Dearborn and Washington streets, has just been notified he was one of three successful competitors for the Corpus Juris scholarship offered by the American Law Book company.

Mr. Teevan, when he graduated last June, won the "Cyc" prize of forty volumes of the Encyclopedia of Law and Procedure, offered for the highest scholarship in the senior year. This made him eligible to compete for one of the three Corpus Juris scholarships, each valued at $500, and available for postgraduate work in any approved law school in the United States or abroad. All winners in all law schools in the United States were eligible for the competition.

While attending law school in the evening Mr. Teevan has worked days as an accountant.

HUSBAND FINDS PICTURE OF WIFE WITH OTHER MAN

F. A. Hartley Gets Letter from Missing Daughter Giving Go-Between's Address.

F. A. Hartley of 1030 Lockwood avenue yesterday got a clew to the whereabouts of his "kidnaped" children, who disappeared two weeks ago while returning from a visit to Worthington, Ind. He turned the clews over to a detective agency to work on.

The children are Jacquelyn, 7 years old, and Dorothy, 14. They are presumably with their mother some place on the south side. A divorce case is pending against Mrs. Hartley. The man mentioned in the divorce bill is Charles O. Larson, who represents the firm of Noyes & Jackson on the board of trade.

Finds Picture; Gets Letter.

Mr. Hartley found a snapshot photograph of his wife and Larson enjoying an outing together. A late mail also brought him a letter from Dorothy. It bore a Chicago south side postmark. In part the letter reads:

Dear Daddy: Jack and I are with mother. We are perfectly happy. I want you to know we wanted to be with her right along and you know it better than any one else.

If anything else is put in the paper mother will print we are not in your custody, and the only reason we were at Min.'s was because you paid. You can publish this letter if you want to. I am going to live with mother. If you want to ans. this write to 821 Lamon and it will be forwarded.

Woman Refuses to Talk.

The address given is the home of Mrs. A. P. Kauffman in Austin. Mrs. Kauffman admitted last night she was acquainted with the children and the parties to the divorce suit, but became highly indignant when asked if she was acting as a go-between.

"I won't tell you anything about where the children are," said Mrs. Kauffman.

"Mrs. Kauffman has been acting as a go-between between my wife and Larson," said Hartley. "I certainly shall not write any letters to be forwarded by her. Why can't THE TRIBUNE take a letter to Dorothy?

"Just say:

"'Dear Dorothy: I received your letter, but I don't know where you are. Charles O. Larson won't support you children. He doesn't look at children; he simply looks at pretty faces.'

"But, say, doesn't that letter of Dorothy's appear to have been dictated by an older head?"

HUSBAND CAN'T FIND SUING WIFE

Joseph E. Jackson Charges Attorney Hides Woman Long in Asylum.

LAWYER DEFENDS SUIT.

Where is Mrs. Mary M. Jackson of Berwyn, who spent twelve years in an asylum and who now is suing her husband, Joseph E. Jackson, for divorce? Her husband, who is manager of the American Fashion company, said yesterday that her attorney, Ira B. Fehrman, is keeping her hidden.

"My wife left the house Friday morning," Mr. Jackson said. "She is not responsible for her actions, and I have the police hunting for her."

Attorney Defends His Action.

Attorney Fehrman defended his action of filing the divorce bill for Mrs. Jackson.

"That woman is perfectly sane," he said, "and all the allegations in the bill give her sufficient reason for leaving the house. I think in handling this suit I am doing a creditable thing, and I intend to see the matter through to the finish in spite of what the father or the daughter say. Just now I don't care to say where Mrs. Jackson is. In fact, I really don't know exactly where she is living."

Petition to Place Her in Asylum.

In the County court H. J. Saithorn, supervisor of the village of Berwyn, filed a petition to place Mary M. Jackson in an asylum. A certificate on the condition of Mrs. Jackson, signed by Dr. Arthur MacNeal, was appended to the petition. It read:

"I submit this certificate to certify that, in my opinion, Mary M. Jackson is insane and should be confined for weakness."

The case will be heard by Judge Scully at the Psychopathic hospital. Mrs. Jackson's daughter, Miss Dorothy Jackson, maintains with her father that her mother is not responsible for her action.

$50,000 SUIT IS DROPPED.

Mrs. Frances H. Kane Will Not Press Alienation Action Against Blanche Carroll.

A suit for $50,000, brought by Mrs. Frances H. Kane against Blanche T. Carroll, charging her with alienating Mr. Kane's affections, was dismissed yesterday by mutual agreement. In the declaration, filed March 5, 1915, Mrs. Kane alleges that Miss Carroll went on an automobile trip to Detroit with Harry W. Kane and traveled with him on various other occasions.

SOUND TREATIES URGED TO GUARD FOREIGN TRADE

Preference Policy of Allies, If Carried Out, Menaces the Prosperity of U. S.

New York, Sept. 9.—The National Foreign Trade council made public today a report on the probable effects of European economic alliances upon United States commerce, pointing out, among other things, that one great need of the near future will be the education of the American public in the importance of treaty making power.

"More treaty making," the report says, "will be in progress in the five years after the declaration of peace than in any similar period of the world's history. Many treaties between the United States and European governments are ancient, with obsolete phraseology. Even with no European disposition to discriminate (against the United States), certain changes will be inevitable.

"The state department now lacks, but should immediately provide skilled resources for the study of the entire treaty situation. The education of American public opinion to treaty legislation is imperative. Their parliamentary system gives European governments a superior efficiency in treaty making, as compared with the United States.

Public Must Back Treaties.

"The history of commercial treaties is marked by frequent senatorial disregard of recommendations of the state department. The necessity of a two-thirds senate vote for ratification requires that treaties hereafter be so drawn as to command general approval, a difficult task which can be accomplished only by the most careful consultation of public opinion prior to negotiation.

"While some authorities contend that the commercial preferences implied in the Paris resolutions of the entente allies are impractical and will flatten under pressure of the dependence of European nations upon each other, including their enemies, the present fact is that two economic alliances have already been created, for the war abrogated the most favored nation relation between the powers now enemies.

"The Paris resolutions declare the allies agree that the benefit of most favored nation treatment will not be granted enemy powers during a number of years. How far will 'war after war' obtain?"

Retaliation Indicated in Laws.

Asking whether either the entente or the central economic alliance, particularly if the United Kingdom adopts either a revenue or protective tariff, will continue to accord most favored nation treatment to the United States, or will demand exclusive concessions under the American tariff as the price of favorable admission of American products to their markets, the report says: "Appreciation of the necessity of retaliatory weapons if the great industrial nations should embark upon a policy of trade preferences and discriminations is indicated in recent American legislation."

FIRST ROOKETTE WOUNDED: GUESS HOW IT HAPPENED.

Well, Sir, She Was Going to Primp for the Ball When She Sprained Her Ankle.

BY HETTY CATTELL PARKER

Lake Geneva, Wis., via radio, Great Lakes, Ill., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Gen. Countiss' military ball this evening saw the first fatality of the camp. Ruth Layman of Company B is in the Red Cross tent with a sprained ankle. She fell on the steps leading to the showers. She was going to arrange her curls and tie her shoes for the party.

At the right of Gen. Countiss at noon mess sat an officer of the woman's peace party. At the left was Col. Robert M. Thompson, president of the Navy league. The navy band from the Great Lakes Training school played military airs, and the dove of pacificism cooed to that accompaniment. Miss Mary McDowell of Chicago, representing the peace contingency, remained during the day, even after the preparedness leader departed. She said she was "getting impressions."

In the afternoon a review was held in Col. Thompson's honor and the white haired leader had tears in his eyes when he was cheered by the rookies. The rookies with moist eyes and crimsoned cheeks gave the Chevy Chase "yell": "Rah! Rah! Rah! U. S. A. America!" as he left.

Killed by Woman Auto Driver.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 9.—Patrick Donlevy, 60, was run down by an automobile driven by Mrs. Alexander Tennis last night and died of his injuries this morning.

MARMON 34

Fuel and Tire Economy Confirmed by Owners

Hundreds of Marmon owners, returning from summer tours to watering spots and the mountains are expressing their gratification at this powerful car's economy.

NOTWITHSTANDING the 136-inch wheelbase and the 74 (brake test) horsepower motor, this large Luxury car has demonstrated low consumption of gasoline and extraordinary tire mileage.

This is largely due to the Marmon's light weight. Through scientific construction and extensive use of aluminum the Marmon is built 1100 pounds lighter than cars of equal size and power.

The impressive beauty of the long, low body, its roadability and extreme comfort are other distinctive Marmon attractions that have made this the most popular car of the luxury class this year. Its convenience is remarkable—for instance only four grease cups on the entire car.

Owing to the increased factory production, we can now make immediate delivery of a few of the new Marmon 34s for 1917. This is the first time we have not been behind in our orders, and we cannot promise to deliver promptly for long.

The importance of communicating with us at once is best appreciated by large numbers of car buyers who tried unsuccessfully to secure delivery before.

Why do the Women of Paris Wear Gossard Corsets?

WHY are they favorites in Buenos Aires, Australia and New York? Why is the front lacing vogue sweeping Chicago? Why is Gossard the largest manufacturer of fine corsets in the world? Why are all the buildings you see on this page required for the manufacture and distribution of Gossard corsets?

Why does an eminent physician, Dr. Leonard Keene Hirschberg, A. B., M. A., M.D. (Johns Hopkins University), write a full page article entitled, "Science's Newest Discoveries About Your Corset," which was printed in 44 of the greatest papers in the country in July and proclaimed the front-lacing corset to be the one modern corset, closing his article with the following:

"The back-laced idea of the earliest French precursors of the modern type has persisted up to within the last few years. It has, in fact, been the very last detail to yield to modern invention, and it may be considered the salient link connecting the corset as it has been with the corset as it shall be. By all means let us give credit to the latter-day corset. Long may it flourish."

Why do Triangle Film Stars all choose Gossard corsets? Why does a multitude of famous actresses, women of fashion, women of business, artists, singers, graduate nurses, mothers, young women, misses, all wear Gossard front-lacing corsets and become so enthusiastic in talking about them to all their friends?

Why do the great State Street stores whose names appear below, announce today that they have joined the Gossard retail stores in supplying Gossard Corsets to the women of Chicago?

There can be but one answer: In simple truth it is—

Gossard Corsets Are the Best Corsets in the World

Supreme in Style, Comfort and Wearing Service

There is a Gossard model designed for you, be you large, medium or slender. Strange it is how idle reports, springing from random opinion, gain currency. Some have thought that there was but one Gossard model for all figures. Others have thought the Gossard was only for stout figures; some have thought it a corset for slender figures only, whereas the facts disclose that there are 115 models, scientifically designed on living models, for every type of figure from the little miss to aged grand-mamma and all of the various types between, which health and beauty represent.

And then—the Gossard is so easy to put on. You stand before the mirror and see, not guess at, the lacing.

There is the same difference in the effect produced by wearing a Gossard corset, that is produced by wearing a dress designed by such masters as Worth, Paquin or Hickson, and the investment to you is at no advance whatever over that of other corsets of good material and workmanship, but without the Gossard design, effect, style, comfort and shapeliness.

How can you, who have never tried a Gossard corset, longer deny yourself this inexpressible pleasure? Is it because of indifference to your personal appearance? Is it because you did not know such comfort and style were possible in one corset? Is it because you have fondly and perhaps erroneously believed you had a very good figure in your present corset? Or is it because of the great human failing of inaction, carelessness, or disinclination to investigate? Whatever it is, resolve now to join the multitude of women wearing Gossard corsets, start down town tomorrow morning and buy a Gossard and see instantly how your figure can be permanently improved.

Go to any of the stores named below. They all know the great worth of Gossard Corsets and they will not try to sell you something else when you ask for the Gossard.

The prices of Gossard Corsets, everywhere, are $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5, $6.50 up to $40.

Seena Owen

This gifted and talented Triangle moving picture star is now playing in the most remarkable film ever produced in any land. Her beauty, talent and exquisite art will be seen and admired by millions of people during the next three years. In New York City at the Criterion Theater thousands of people are weekly enjoying this star's art. In all her exacting work she wears a Gossard.

GAME ABOUNDS IN WILD SAND DUNES, PROPOSED PARK

Remarkable Phenomenon of Nature in War Between Shifting Earth and Forests.

SPONSORED BY TAGGART.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

There was a sudden thunder of wings alongside the trail. Two great birds got up out of a thick patch of wintergreen and went cannoning away through huckleberry bushes and other undergrowth. Evidently man is not to them an especially formidable animal. Thirty feet away they came to ground. They look back at the huge, clumsy creatures tramping along the narrow trail, with round black eyes that are half curious and half afraid.

The big partridges—reminiscent of the great north woods—have lit in the midst of a little grove of huge white pines, a couple of feet in diameter, which tower up for more than a hundred feet. The big trees, with the thick mat of pine needles under foot, complete the illusion that one is tramping through the forests of northern Wisconsin.

Fox Squirrels Scamper.

Half a mile farther on along the overgrown trail, which rises and drops among the hills, there is another sudden scurry of sound. Two big fox-squirrels are chasing each other round the trunk of a splendid tulip tree. They catch sight of men and instantly vanish in the thick underbrush. The thick silence of the wilderness drops.

Ahead marches Col. Leroy T. Steward, once chief of police of Chicago, now hot on the trail of a more interesting murder case than ever he undertook officially. The colonel, brandishing a short alpenstock, explains that he grows elderly and is more or less of a cripple. Whereupon he sets a pace which leaves his younger and presumably fitter comrades gasping for breath. He breasts a steep sand slope and comes out on an abandoned farm clearing. The meadow in the foreground is a mass of fluttering blue asters, like a mountain lake. At the far corner is a ruined corn crib. A tap of his staff as he passed and a fat woodchuck scurries out and dives into a hole at the foot of a tremendous white oak tree.

"Desert" a Garden of Eden.

"Many people think the sand dunes of northern Indiana are a sand desert," says the colonel. "They simply haven't been here to see. More varieties of splendid trees grow here than anywhere else within 200 miles of Chicago. And the flora of the region is unique in the United States. When the International congress of scientists was held in this country a few years ago the two spots they all insisted on visiting were the Grand Cañon of the Colorado and the Indiana sand dunes.

"A sand desert, indeed! We have seen partridges and fox squirrels. Last February, tramping along this same trail, I met an old man with long white hair and beard. He was coming out of that swamp at the foot of the dune. Over his shoulder was a bundle of steel traps.

"'What are you catching?' I asked him.

"'This week I got two foxes, four skunks, and a couple of opossums,' he answered.

About to Catch Murderer.

Now one is certain by the eager and alert air of the former chief of police that he is about to capture the murderer whose trail he has been following. He leaves the narrow cow path and stops at the bottom of a steep and tremendously high slope of sand.

"There it is—a live dune at its deadly work. Look at the big trees sticking out of that moving slope of sand. Some of them are only buried for a foot or two at their bases; others are half covered by the sand. On top of the dune we shall see the topmost branches of great oaks and pines, which are all that is left above the surface. We have caught a live sand dune in the very act of murdering a forest."

The party labors up the sliding slope. Under their steps the sand slides further down and piles up about the base of the big trees at the bottom. At the very top we stop and start new sand avalanches. It runs down like thick molasses, widening as it goes until stopped by the friction along its edges. The lower end of the slide keeps in motion almost to the bottom.

Started by Wind.

A little puff of wind from the lake coming through a "blow out" to the north, starts the sand again. It is always in motion, like a flow of lava, slow, resistless, never entirely at rest. Just at this point the forest at the foot of the dune is doomed.

Back to the north there is a gap in the sand through which one sees the storm tossed waters of the lake. Here, between two gnarled trees, the winds have loosed the sand of an old dune, long quiescent, and started it moving again to the south. For how many hundreds of years it may have been quiet and still, tied down by the roots of trees, beach grass, and bushes, no one can tell. But perhaps twenty years ago the breach was made. Since then the sand has been moving. So much has it moved to the south that the great bare trunks of trees entirely buried centuries ago have been resurrected. They stand up now, gaunt and black, silent witnesses to their own murder.

On the top of the dune one can look off over ten miles or more of flat lands, mostly covered with thick woods, but laced with winding creeks and dotted here and there with the cleared lands of adventuresome farmers.

Fight Endless.

Always the fight is between the moving sands and the trees, bushes, and other vegetation which struggle for a permanent foothold. It is almost an even fight. In many places the trees have conquered. Here on the steep sides of a smaller dune, white pines, cedars, and junipers have built up a solid evergreen fortress against the encroachment of the sands. Even on the raw tops of the living dunes sand grasses, growing eight feet high in heavy clumps, have raised barriers. Their roots, running for eight or ten feet just below the surface, do their best to tie the shifting sands into place.

Down the easy slope of the "blow out" to the lake shore and one finds a wide beach of the white sand stretching endlessly away east and west. Today the surf is piling in from the north, but with the wind in another quarter it offers a smooth stretch of sand more than 100 feet wide, which leads out gradually for a long distance to deep water.

Proposed National Park.

Between Chesterton, Ind., and Michigan City there are nearly twenty miles of this untouched and unspoiled dune country, unique in scientific and picturesque interest. It is that territory which United States Senator Thomas Taggart of Indiana proposes should be set aside in perpetuity as a national park as a pleasure ground for the people. It will serve also as a great preserve for birds, animals, flowers, and trees. It is a wild, rolling country of steep hills, great forests, and deep ravines, with cactus and trailing arbutus growing side by side in strange companionship.

Senator Taggart's resolution, instructing Secretary of the Interior Lane to report as to the advisability of the project, passed the senate by a unanimous vote. Secretary Lane's report must be made to congress by Dec. 1.

It remains for the nature lovers of Indiana and Illinois to demonstrate the faith that is in them. The fact that a great dune park would be a tremendously profitable investment needs no demonstration. It would annually attract tens of thousands of tourists who now pass by the dune country ignorant of the wealth of scenic and scientific interest which it hides.

TEACHERS GET FUND OF $30,100

Federation Officials Say They Will Have $100,000 by End of Week.

Pledges for $30,100 were collected from teachers by the Chicago Teachers' federation at a meeting held in drill hall, Masonic temple, yesterday for the purpose of reinstating the thirty-seven members of the federation who with twenty-eight other teachers failed of reelection last spring. The meeting was called to collect a war chest of $150,000 to be used in this fight. Officials of the federation last night said the fund would reach $100,000 next week.

The meeting formally opens what the teachers term a war to the finish against Jacob M. Loeb, president of the school board. Loeb, they say, dominates the board, and speakers yesterday said that he receives his orders from the city hall.

Miss Haley Tells of Coup.

When the case of the ousted thirty-seven is tried, two members of the school board, Miss Haley said she had been assured would testify that Jacob Loeb told them he intends to "put the skids under Superintendent of Schools John D. Shoop next December" for failing to do as he ordered in his dealings with the federation.

Alderman Kennedy said that the only way the teachers can protect the public schools from the spoils system and obtain justice for themselves is by organization.

"You have been told that if you do not do anything everything will turn out all right," he said. "That is a fallacy and I'm glad to see that you did not believe it."

Promise Women's Support.

Mrs Frederick Dow assured the federation of the support of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at its annual convention to be held in a few weeks.

Declaring that "it is time for Chicago to have a responsible board of education," Miss Haley said the federation is going straight to the legislature.

FIND NEW METHOD TO FIGHT LOAN AGENTS.

Lawyers to Take Out Warrants Charging the Operation of Confidence Games.

A new method of waging warfare on loan sharks has been inaugurated by the law firm of Callahan & Callahan, who have been fighting the battles of victims free of charge. Warrants charging the sharks with operating confidence games will be taken out against the money lenders and indictments by the grand jury will be asked.

The first step in the state courts was taken yesterday against the owners of the Accurate Adjustment and Reporting agency—a firm conducting a sort of collection agency for loan agents. Their profit is derived from charging the loan victims on a percentage basis for "prorating" their garnisheed salaries among the various money lenders.

The warrants named Clarence A. Samuel and Herman Frank. The complainant is A. L. Russell, an employé of the street railway company, who alleges he was defrauded by Samuel Frank. Judge Goodnow issued the warrants.

Francis J. Callahan declared warrants will be asked for more than a dozen loan sharks on Monday.

"TIN CAN" SCHOOLHOUSES DENOUNCED BY PARADERS.

Seven Hundred Pupils of Keeler Street District Protest Against Small Portable Buildings.

Seven hundred children—pupils of the "tin can" schools recently built at Kostner and Augusta avenues—marched in a parade of protest yesterday. They wanted the school board, the city, and the whole world to know what they thought about having to study lessons in the odd zinc walled, boxcar sized houses which have been constructed for them instead of a regular school building.

The parade was led by the smallest of the primer class. The older children of the various grades carried all sorts of banners bearing various and original inscriptions. Some of the banners were decorated with old tin cans and on them were painted such protests as:

"We don't want tin cans for schools."

"Goats like tin cans, but we are not goats."

"Give the cans to politicians, and give us a good school."

The indignation parade was held for the purpose of awakening interest in the fight of the children of the old Keeler street school district for a modern building.

Marguerite Lehman, an eighth grade pupil, served as spokesman.

"These tin cans would be all right for the mountain districts, but for Chicago they are all wrong," she said. "It is bad enough to have to go to school every day any way, but it is worse when the school is not much better than a tin can."

THEY MAY GET BACK TO OLD HOME AFTER ALL.

Old Couple, Stranded and Hungry in Chicago, to Benefit by Contributions of "Tribune" Readers.

Generous TRIBUNE readers dug down in their pockets yesterday to help the Spieger family go back home to Cowden, Ill. Before noon the employés of one downtown office had put nickels, dimes and quarters into a small fund amounting to $5.60. Two more contributions came in within an hour or two. Here they are:

E. M. P.	$10.00
Employes of the B. T. C.	5.60
W. R.	1.00
Total	$16.60

Charles Spieger is 77 years old and his wife Annie is 74. They are living at 425 West Forty-third street with their daughter, who, in spite of her years, has the mind of a child.

The aged couple have been unable to start life anew in Chicago as they thought they could. They have come near starving and wish to go back to the old home town, where friends will look after them in their declining years. The fare home is $25.

Some days ago $10 was received for and turned over to Oscar Nelson to help him buy a pair of cork legs. Through an accident no acknowledgment was made at the time. The error is hereby corrected: $10 for Oscar Nelson from "Goodfellow."

C. D. WIMAN WILL RECOVER.

New York, Sept. 9.—[Special.]—The condition of Charles Deere Wiman of Moline, Ill., who sustained injuries when the aeroplane in which he and J. W. Struthers were riding fell 900 feet to the Governor's island aviation field yesterday, spent a comfortable night and is expected to recover. He is suffering from a dislocated hip, a broken nose, and severe bruises, but no internal trouble has developed.

JUDGE ANGRY AT GOV. DUNNE

Brothers Aroused When Death Sentence of George Krupka Is Changed.

Gov. Dunne yesterday commuted the sentence of death against George Krupka to one of life imprisonment. Last February Krupka, enraged at stories of his wife's infidelity, hacked her to pieces with an axe. In a trial before Judge Brothers, which lasted nine hours, including the time required for the selection of the jury, Krupka was sentenced to hang.

Judge Brothers was wrathful when told of Gov. Dunne's action.

"It seems the governor is sacrificing his office for politics. Krupka took the stand and admitted that he chopped the head of his wife to pieces. There were two witnesses to the crime. One of there, a woman, had her fingers chopped while trying to save the woman.

"I believe the governor should have power to commute death sentences, but I believe the men put in such a high office should be big enough to uphold the dignity of our people. The action of Gov. Dunne is a notice to all that enter plots to murder that they can go out and kill at will and still have a good chance of escaping the just consequences."

Weeps for Joy.

Krupka wept for joy when word was taken to him that the governor had saved him from the gallows.

"I thought he would save my life," he cried. "Thank God."

Max M. Korshak and George Reker, attorneys for Krupka, argued that the crime was one of sudden passion and that Krupka should have been held guilty of manslaughter.

They pointed out that a verdict had been returned nine hours after the trial began, unprecedented brevity in the annals of Cook county. They declared many errors crept into the case because of the youthfulness of Krupka's trial lawyer. Mr. Reker recommended that the governor commute the sentence to two years' imprisonment.

State Fights Commutation.

Assistant State's Attorneys O. P. Lightfoot and Erwin W. Walker fought the commutation.

Michael Krupka, 12 year old son of the condemned man, told his story before the governor. He is a ward of St. Hedwig's Industrial school in Niles, Ill.

"On the day mother was killed," he said, "I told father I had seen two men named Herman and John come to the house while he was away and hug and kiss mother. I was sleeping when she was killed and I don't know what happened."

WED INSANE GIRL, HE SAYS.

Can a man court a girl and marry her and never find out that she is insane until after the ceremony? Archibald Logan thinks so. He filed a bill for annulment of marriage from his wife Ida, whom he married in 1909. Logan alleges the girl's parents knew her to be insane when he married her, but told him nothing about it. Just sixteen hours after they had been married, Logan avers, his wife became violently insane. Subsequently, he says, she was sent to the State Insane asylum at Kankakee, but she was released in 1912. He asks for custody of the five year old daughter.

THEATER TRAIN BUMPS INTO CAR; TWENTY INJURED

Passenger on Illinois Central Wrecks Trolley at Seventy-third and South Shore.

CLUB MEMBERS GIVE AID.

Twenty or more were injured, some fatally, it is believed, when an Illinois Central theater train running at forty miles an hour ripped one side out of a street car and littered the right of way with wounded persons and railway debris last night at Seventy-third street.

Within fifteen minutes after the crash more than 100 members of the South Shore Country club, which is a short distance away, hurried from their dinners and in their evening dress lent first aid. Limousines and motor cars of all descriptions were pressed into service and in a short time all of the wounded had been removed to hospitals or their homes.

List of the Injured.

A partial list of the wounded follows:

W. H. Kelly, motorman; taken to South Chicago police station; bruised and cut. Held for inquiry.

J. F. Leadacker, 8117 Kenwood avenue; broken left leg; taken to South Shore hospital.

Herbert Hurd, 10018 Ewing avenue; skull fractured, internal injuries.

George Uffner, internal injuries; taken to South Shore hospital.

August Bobenaark, 10541 Avenue L; skull fractured and internal injuries.

Dora Benson, 13 years old, 5635 Harper avenue; bruised and cut by flying glass.

A. C. Grantham, 7750 Bond avenue; cut and bruised.

Mrs. Mary Garretson, bruised. Removed to hospital unconscious.

Miss Ruth Garretson, daughter, 7704 Paxton avenue; bruised.

Mrs. John Harding, 9217 Burley avenue; internal injuries. Taken to South Shore hospital.

John Plach, 1937 West Chicago avenue; hurt internally; taken to the Illinois Central hospital.

Others Bruised Up.

Among others injured are:

E. T. Plucinski, 8318 Manistee street.

Floyd Plucikl, 8318 Saginaw avenue.

Miss G. Haines, 6630 Kimbark avenue.

Mrs. J. W. Weston, 7948 Muskegon avenue.

Gus Carlson, 8145 Exchange avenue.

Mrs. —— Barry, 10358 Avenue L.

Mrs. Carrie Wies, 8024 Escanaba avenue.

Members of Crews Released.

Engineer J. H. Redinkopf and Fireman Raymond O'Dea and Conductor M. Reardon and Motorman Kelly all were held for investigation, but Redinkopf and O'Dea were released. Capt. Max Nootbaar of the South Chicago avenue police station said he did not think they were guilty of negligence.

Later in the evening Reardon said he signaled for the street car to cross the tracks. He said he saw no approaching train.

Saw Danger Too Late.

Kelly later, when pulled from the wreckage, said he had crossed about half way when he saw the light of the locomotive. It was then too late to stop, and he said he kept on the power in the hope of getting across in safety.

Some of the men sitting near the open windows escaped by jumping out of them after the train had struck the car. They fell to one side as the car was swinging in a circle out of the path of the express train. The others less fortunate were caught in the wreckage.

WOMEN LAWYERS OFFER TO DEFEND MRS. BARNES.

Attorneys Say They Have Volunteers to Counteract Move for Special Prosecutor.

Shortly before 6 o'clock last evening the strains of a piano floated through the county jail. Prisoners and attendants all through the large building stopped and listened, then the word was quickly passed around: "It's Mrs. Iva Barnes."

The tune was "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and as it ended another followed. The twenty or twenty-five women prisoners are allowed the liberty of the supper room.

Mrs. Iva Barnes, indicted for the murder of her husband, has been offered the services of several woman attorneys. Edward S. Day and George Guenther, counsel for the defense, say they have refused all such offers. "However," said Mr. Day, "we shall not object if the state's attorney sees fit to use a woman prosecutor."

Private detectives who have been working on the case for Attorney Joseph Burres, representing the deceased man's family, discovered yesterday that Mrs. Barnes obtained a divorce from her first husband, Fred Warren, in South Bend, Ind., in 1907, on the ground that Warren had been convicted of a felony. This means Mrs. Barnes as the widow is legally entitled to the entire estate of her slain husband.

KILLED BY ELECTRIC IRON.

Cleveland Woman Dies When Kitchen Utensil Is Charged with High Voltage.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 9.—Augusta Teury, mother of five children, was electrocuted while using an electric iron in her home here today. An investigation of the cause of the high voltage which made the fatality possible is being made.

ROMANCE

of the Commuters—They Met on the Evanston Train.

Ida Agnes Megary

A year ago John C. Blackmore thought the morning ride from his Evanston home to his Chicago place of business rather tedious. Then it suddenly became interesting—at least from the Ravenswood suburban station of the Northwestern railway to the downtown terminal. Young Mr. Blackmore had discovered that an attractive girl got on at Ravenswood every morning. His interest grew and after a persistent search he found a mutual friend and obtained an introduction and now:

"Mr and Mrs R. V. Megary of 4400 North Paulina street announce the engagement of their daughter, Ida Agnes, to J. C. Blackmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Blackmore of Evanston Ill."

The date of the wedding has not been fixed.

3 NEW PARALYSIS CASES; TOTAL IN CITY NOW 88.

Dr. Robertson Says Many Physicians Were Repaid for Time Spent in Examining Children.

Three new cases of infantile paralysis were reported yesterday. The total number in the city now is eighty-eight.

Examination of school children who are seeking health certificates ought to be a source of profit to physicians, even though no charge is made for the examination itself, according to Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson.

Dr. Robertson was discussing the complaint in a letter to THE TRIBUNE of Dr. C. Bertschinger, 1010 North Robey street.

"There are 5,000 physicians in the city," Dr. Robertson said. "How many of them are complaining? Not many, I think. If the medical profession looks at the plan in the right way, the profession will be amply repaid. Many defects may be discovered by the physician who makes a careful examination. A fee may rightfully be charged for the correction of these defects."

Information has come to the health department that one physician examined 146 children and found twelve whose tonsils were enlarged. His fee for removing the tonsils was $25 for each operation. He made $300 in three days.

BANDITS KILL MINE HEAD AND ESCAPE WITH $12,000.

Robbers Halt Pay Roll Carrier's Car Near Martin's Ferry, O., and Shoot When He Resists.

Martins Ferry, O., Sept. 9.—Lee Rankin, superintendent of the Florence mine of the Youghlogheny Coal company here, was held up by two auto bandits today, robbed of $12,000, and sent to death.

Rankin was in a taxi driven by Oliver Pickens. The money was the weekly pay roll of the miners. The holdup occurred under a grade crossing in a thickly wooded region between this city and the mine about three miles out, soon before noon.

Two foreigners ordered Pickens to stop. Rankin, who was armed, immediately suspected a holdup and jumped out of the taxi. He was eight feet from the machine when one of the bandits shot him. The bullet severed an artery.

The highwaymen, covering the driver, grabbed the money which Rankin had in a satchel and sped away through the woods. Posses are in pursuit.

SHAW DERIDES WELLS' PLAN TO CRUSH TEUTON

Says Mankind Has Little Choice Between German and British Junkers.

U. S. IN A NUTCRACKER.

G. Bernard Shaw herewith answers Mr. H. G. Wells' proposal, in his sensational book, "What Is Coming," that England asks Germany to fire out her war lords and become a republic, thus uprooting Prussian militarism, against which England is fighting. If Germany consented thus to oust the Kaiser Mr. Wells suggested immediate peace—Mr. Shaw meets this proposal in his most brilliant controversial style, affirming that the British statesmen have no program except to fight to a finish, which any fool can do. Mr. Shaw sees no possibility of any lasting peace except through world federation.

BY GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

Mr. Wells is not one of those writers on whom reviewers can sit in judgment without risk of making themselves ridiculous. Many attempts at that adventure have produced the effect of a pickpocket trying the lord chief justice; and though one would dearly like to see this happen, the difficulty in the way is that a pickpocket clever enough to do it would be too clever to be a pickpocket. Therefore, I hasten to announce that I am here not to admonish and reprove Mr. Wells in the customary fashion, but to discuss one of his suggestive propositions.

He says that if Germany would give us the guarantee of good intentions involved in her becoming a republic, we should take her to our hearts at once. He repeats this in another place, declaring emphatically that public opinion would not in that case allow any government to go on with the war.

VIEWED FROM OTHER SIDE.

I hope this is true, and therefore think it a wise saying; but let us see how it looks from the other end. Suppose Germany gave the guarantee and the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs, crowns, thrones, and all, vanished forever into the blind cave of eternal night! Suppose we said, "Good boys, we forgive you. Cease firing there at once."

Now if the Germans were to keep on firing and, on receiving a scandalized demand for explanation of this ungrateful and implacable conduct, were to reply:

"It is true that we have become a republic, but you have not; and Russia has not. We did not remove Hohenzollern and Hapsburg to make Romanoff cock of the walk; to leave your Greys and Milners the power they have wrested from the crown without giving it to the people of England; and to leave the United States in a naval nut cracker between the British and Japanese monarchies.

ON HOHENZOLLERN MODEL.

"It is our turn now to ask for guarantees. Make Mr. Wells foreign secretary and we will take you to our hearts fast enough in spite of his proclamation of a personal vendetta (which will evaporate in a week) and even invite you to join us in putting pressure on Russia to get rid of Peter the Great as effectually as we have got rid of Frederick the Great.

"But while you junkers remain in the saddle, all you can claim is that the boot is now on the other leg.

"We cheerfully admit that our militarist régime was a nuisance; that is why we have got rid of it. But your Mr. Wells has admitted, and even volunteered the statement, that your own militarist empire was the Hohenzollern model; and if all we hear of your dealings with conscientious objectors be true, the British sergeant and the British colonel can still give lessons in brutality to their Prussian imitators.

ASKING FOR A MONOPOLY.

"Therefore the establishment of a German republic is not the establishment of peace between it and the Anglo-Russian alliance; on the contrary, you and Russia are the last foes to be overcome.

"Lord Grey and Mr. Wells, in calling for a revolution in Germany, are simply calling for a monopoly of militarist empire in Europe for England and Russia, and for Japan in the east, unless they accompany their demand with an offer of a revolution at home.

"The foreign policy of the new German republic is to detach the French republic from its unnatural alliance with the barbarous monarchs of Britain, Japan, and Muscovy, thus establishing an overwhelming claim on American sympathy, to swing round Scandinavia, Holland, and Belgium to the German side; to buy the support of Italy with the Trentino; to carry out Roger Casement's suggestion of an independent Ireland guaranteed by the continental powers as a citadel of the freedom of the seas; and so enable the peoples of Europe to snap their fingers at the militarist and navalist British junkers and at the Prussianised bureaucracy and grand dukery of Petrograd."

INFAMOUS PROPOSALS.

Now if we merely gasped helplessly at these unfamiliar views and exclaimed: "This is infamous. You actually refuse to take our good intentions for granted!" every foreigner would laugh, and we should not be strong enough to make him laugh on the wrong side of his mouth, though that would be our first indignant impulse.

Mr. Wells must, therefore, work out the counter guarantees the Germans are entitled to ask for.

If Lord Grey, instead of merely saying, through a Chicago paper: "Will you make a revolution?" had said, "Will you make a revolution if we do?" the Germans might conceivably have replied: "Now you're talking." But surely the gander who recommends to the goose a sauce which he shows no disposition to partake of himself is in rather an equivocal position.

If we will not face a domestic political spell as the face of an enemy, we can hardly expect the Germans to face one, especially as our theory is that their situation is more dangerous than ours.

REPOPULATING HUNLAND.

Mr. Wells is, happily, free from illusion of "a just and lasting peace." The people who are in favor of a just and lasting peace are not in favor of peace at all, because under existing political arrangements no peace can be lasting and no peace can under any circumstances be just.

The usual recipe for a lasting peace seems to be "Exterminate the Hun." If we exterminate the Hun we should probably have to fight our allies on the question whether Britain, France, or Russia should repopulate and govern Hunland.

Enormous questions would be opened by the extinction of any European power; that is why Turkey, the sick man of Europe, has lived to claim the two sensational victories of the present war over the British empire.

Even the enfeeblement of Germany to a point at which her power would be negligible would create a vacuum in the middle of Europe which would certainly produce a devastating cyclone. We really must begin to consider something beyond the immediate satisfaction of our pugnacity.

No One Knows What Will Happen.

Nobody has yet the slightest idea of what is to happen to Mesopotamia if the allies clear out the Turks. And none of these questions admit of a "just" solution; you may place a frontier here or there because it is convenient, or because it is insisted on by some one strong enough to hold it against all encroachers, but not because it is just.

I remember an old Irish inscription, "A line drawn from this lamp post through the one diagonally opposite is the true meridian," patriotically implying that the meridian at Greenwich is an imposture; and I know that men say similar things about the Rhine and the Carpathians; but justice is catholic and knows nothing of frontiers or of treaties, brought about by war.

Heaven itself could not make a just treaty between the present belligerents, and those who expect mortal diplomatists to do it are crying for the moon.

Besides, only cravens demand an eternal peace. Unless we drop the military attitude altogether and admit that fighting, far from being the breath of our snorting nostrils and the salvation of our souls, is a most unpleasant and terrifying obligation, we are bound in honor to make peace only on the understanding that we shall be ready to begin fighting again the very next day and yet again and again without a moment's hesitation to all eternity, if our honor and interest demand it.

Clamoring for Security.

The shameless way in which our funksters cry aloud that we must kick our enemy to death when we get him down, and that to allow him to recover his breath and have another go at us is madness and ruin, robs war of all its decencies and our traditions of all their glory.

No doubt the clamor for security—for making this the last war—is natural, because, as Mark Twain put it tersely, "the average man is a coward." But cowardice, like seasickness, has to be left out of account while war is inevitable as traveling; and, however our knees knock we must always be prepared to take our cowardice in both hands and fight.

A nation which gives up saying "We always are ready. Steady, boys, steady," and begins to shriek that, at all costs, it must never have to fight again, is evidently a station that can be bullied. Yet what is this war for except to prove that it is no use bullying us?

As, nevertheless, all the big civilized communities, however loudly they may shout: "Who's afraid?" are verging hard on this inglorious frame of mind and their only sincere prayer is "Give us peace in our time, O Lord," the great need of the hour is a statesman with character enough to point out that all the cards are on the table and all the bluffs blown on, and with ability enough to take seriously in hand what Mr. Wells and President Wilson are urging—to wit: the institution of a supernational tribunal and legislature.

Only Alternative to War.

For that is the only alternative to war. The Fabian society's specifications for this structure are, as far as I know, more complete, and more carefully discussed and thought out than any other that have yet been published; and as they do not differ from the numerous American and English plans that have been sketched, except in respect of their greater elaboration and their fuller information and documentation as to what has already been done, it will not be necessary this time to send Mr. Lloyd-George to Germany to ask what we should do to be saved.

The real difficulty is the first step which must be the proposal of a judicial decision. For that we need at the foreign office a spokesman of the British empire who will face the situation and can make the nation and the world face it.

We have not got that spokesman. Lord Grey scolds and recriminates, and cannot forget or forgive the omission of Germany to allow him to repeat his little success with a conference during the Balkan crisis.

Value of Recriminations.

When the imperial chancellor pays him an apparently undeserved compliment as to his attitude when the treaty of Berlin was violated by Austria he shouts, "That is a first class lie." When the Turks declare war he calls them degenerate.

Now there is undoubtedly a popular demand for this sort of thing. But there is also a somewhat superabundant supply of it from the press and platform. If Lord Grey would edit a paper or take the boards alongside Mr. Horatio Bottomley his scoldings, his recriminations, and his wounded diplomatic susceptibilities would enter into the vulgar currency of patriotism fitly enough. But they will never end a war or inaugurate an organization of supernational law.

They may stoke up a meeting of the Anti-Gentleman league, but they will not raise a nation to the plane of high and nationally disinterested thinking on which the destiny of European civilization should be discussed.

German Frankness.

We must not forget the Germans have already a striking advantage in the frankness of the Bismarck tradition. That frankness by no means departed from the diplomatic tradition of disingenousness to the extent of excluding lies, but its lies were real lies, meant to deceive, and not absurd attempts to whitewash blood and iron, nor governess' lectures on virtuous behavior addressed by the pot to the kettle.

The imperial chancellor, unlike our statesmen, catches the ear of Europe and America because, with all his concessions to German patriotism, he talks far more about real things than we do and calls a scrap of paper a scrap of paper.

In doing this he may be compared to a French savate player (uses both feet and fists) opposed to an English pugilist. The pugilist despises a man who kicks, and thinks that the simple counter is to seize the uplifted foot and throw the dastardly kicker violently on his back.

The savate player proffers his toe cheerfully, and, when it is duly seized, turns his back on the pugilist, drops on both his palms, and kicks him decisively in the frontal sinus with the free foot, the pugilist obligingly supporting the other one during the operation.

Just so does Lord Grey snatch at the frankness of Bethmann-Hollweg to claim some trumpery moral superiority, and thereby not only wastes a great deal of time, but presently finds our own military necessities (in Greece, for example) enabling his opponent to return his moral kick with crushing effect.

Real Statesman Wanted.

What we want is a spokesman who will never deny, never excuse us, never accept a seat in the dock even to secure a verdict, never bandy abuse, never waste time trumping up moral cases, never call his opponent a liar with or without an epithet, and never blanch before a mob, however patriotic; one who will ungrudgingly make our enemies a present of all the information they already possess and all the credit they obviously deserve, and who will make the gallery play to him instead of allowing it to make him play to it, whilst compelling the attention of Europe and educating both neutral and belligerent opinion by keeping hard down all the time on the realities of the situation and writing across the heavens those large issues between democracy and autocracy without which the war, bulky and destructive as it is, has no importance and no dignity, for if we are engaged in a mere junker dog fight it matters nothing to mankind whether the bulldog or dachshund be top dog.

Bound Man in Square Hole.

Lord Grey is not this kind of man; that much has been evident to all the world, not merely since 1914 but since 1906. His very virtues are a disqualification for his office; he has been the round man in the square hole all through.

Two first rate defenses of him have been published; one by Gilbert Murray, the other by William Archer—Murray defending him against the accusation of being a man of war and Archer against that of being a man of peace—and both have succeeded so completely that the two together have proven how impossible it has been for the powers to find out what England really meant to stand for or to feel sure that she meant to stand for anything.

Yet I cannot console Mr. Wells by any hopes that we shall put the right man in the right place. It is the misfortune of England that she is still far richer and stronger than she need be to hold her own. An unsuitable minister does not necessarily mean defeat to her; he is only a handicap.

History Repeating Itself.

Two hundred years ago she won the prototype of this war, although every word of Swift's indictment of the conduct of the allies was true. Only, she dragged it on, from sheer incapacity of her politicians to end it, for four years after she was offered the terms on which she finally sheathed the sword. And we are likely to do the same again; for Lord Grey and his colleagues seem as little able to end this or any other war as they were to prevent it. We gave them a mighty sword, and they had not the nerve to throw it into the scale when the beam was still balancing between peace and war.

When Germany kicked the beam they could not help themselves, and now they are brainlessly awaiting the upshot of the trial of brute force without, as far as any of us can see, the faintest prevision of the dangerous situation in which we shall be placed by a victorious demonstration that we hold the key of the world's cupboard and are too lazy to do anything with it but leave it to the party politicians as mere spoil, to be scrambled for by the winners in the demoralizing tossup of a general election on our system—which one is glad to find Mr. Wells denouncing.

They cannot even control their generals, whose caprices are now worth more than the pledges of the premier.

Wrong as to the Idiots.

When one recalls the wars of the French revolution, when members of parliament went singlehanded into camp to arrest generals in the presence of their troops and send them to the guillotine for insurbordination and failures which would secure them baronies in England today, one realizes how hopelessly our governors have failed to educate the rank and file to the pitch of democracy at which an army of 6,000,000 is a guarantee of liberty instead of a bodyguard of military tyranny, and how many millions will have to perish uselessly because we have such hazy notions of the difference between government and golf.

"War," wrote an officer from the front the other day, "is a game played by children and directed by idiots." He was wrong as to the idiots; for the truth is, it is not politically directed at all. It is fire burning itself out as best it may because the poker is too big for party politicians to wield.

Meanwhile, it will unfortunately always be popular for our front benches to declare that it is traitorous to talk of peace, and that they are heroically determined to fight to a finish. I say unfortunately, because any fool as strong as England can fight to a finish. Indeed, he must fight to a finish whether he likes it or not.

Empty Claptrap.

He can also declare that the peace to follow a finish must be dictated by him, though there is clearly no must about it even if he wins, since he cannot win single handed and will certainly be outwitted in the division of the spoils if he cannot hold his own in cunning with his allies.

All such declarations are great signs of folly, for nobody with any ideas of what to dictate or any sense of the neutral and circumstantial pressure under which the peace must be dictated would condescend to such empty claptrap.

I cannot recall a single front bench utterance on the subject of the war that has not left us with an idea that we might not have picked up at any recruiting meeting and thrown away as already in stock and considerably shop soiled.

If the whole German army were to throw its weapons down and its hands up tomorrow and Mr. Joseph King were to ask, in his reckless manner, "What are we going to do now?" I should expect Mr. Asquith to say, "I hope to make a statement next March," and to think, "God knows!" and Lord Grey to urge that Germany could not now refuse that conference.

Assume no more than that the allies drive the Turks out of Mesopotamia; yet I will give sixpence to any one who will tell me who is to have the Bagdad railway and who the Garden of Eden.

Men are saying desperately that if they must go on fighting until the government begins thinking they will have to fight forever. For consolation they must turn to Napoleon, who said that if you only go on fighting long enough the other fellow will stop.

Let us hope that the Hun will be the other fellow in this case and that things will tumble into shape afterward by mere gravitation. Our ministers can at least be trusted in that case to look as like Sir Isaac Newton as possible.

Under such circumstances I must not say, in the front bench manner, that Mr. Wells' book is worthy of his high reputation. I am silenced by a doubt as to whether he has a high reputation. I do not often see a review of his prophetic works which shows anything like an adequate sense of his extraordinary powers, and I sometimes see reviews that are not even commonly generous.

Betraying Abysmal Ignorance.

For our politicians, whom his books most immediately concern, they do not seem to exist; hardly a minister opens his mouth without betraying an abysmal ignorance, not only of Mr. Wells' prophecies, but of the popular text-books which he must have mastered before he was 10 years old, if indeed he was not born with a knowledge of the nutritive value of milk.

It is safe to guess that Mr. Wells read Macaulay's essays before he was 16; it is extremely doubtful whether any member of the cabinet has yet got so far as Little Arthur's "History of England."

Mr. Wells' conclusions represent the integration and ratiocination of a mass of historical and scientific facts, much of it necessarily the common inheritance of all thoughtful men, which, if it has ever been planted in the heads of our party leaders, has either been sterilized by the aridity or excessive sentimental moisture of the soil, or after some faint sprouting has withered and perished; for neither in our official counsels as to war economy nor our attempts at emergency legislation does parliament think or act in the least as Mr. Wells thinks or would have it act, or indeed at all otherwise than as a very average guild of thinkers might be expected to set about saving the country.

Pilots Without Compass.

There is hardly a problem that has not been worked out and solved for parliament by persons of the general type of Mr. Wells, if not of his individual genus; but it invariably proceeds as if every member were Adam the day after his expulsion from paradise.

And thus, however much genius England produces, she never gets any further than she can fight. The pilots who weather the storm never look at the stars and have never heard of the mariner's compass.

Infatuated with the skill with which they can handle the little fleet of party canoes in Election dock, they tackle the ocean with great contempt for faddists, and, like the pilot, cry: "I know every rock on this coast (crash!) and that's one of them."

If the greatness of a nation be measured by the blindness of the rules it survives, Britain may transfer her idolatrous worship of German organization, German infallibility, German profundity, German philosophic integrity, German self-esteem, as expressed by that thoroughgoing Englishman, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, to her own self.

If we can win in the field there will be nothing new about that, happily; but if our present political leaders can handle the victory to our permanent advantage I owe them an apology.

"THIEF! THIEF!" HE CRIES.

And There's a Little Excitement on Crowded Street Car.

Pickpockets yesterday took a wallet containing $275 and a check for $63 from the pocket of Cornelius H. Dobb of 128 South Leavitt street on a crowded Ashland avenue car at Twenty-second street. He caused excitement among passengers by his cry of "thief."

NEW REVENUE BILL REPEALS EMERGENCY STAMP TAXES.

Internal Revenue Bureau Rules Stickers Are Not Required from This Time On.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 9.—When the new general revenue bill became effective today business men throughout the country were relieved of the stamp taxes which they have been paying since Dec. 1, 1914, and which were to have continued until Dec. 31 of this year. The general revenue bill repealed the emergency revenue bill stamp taxes and the internal revenue bureau has ruled that revenue stamps are not required after today.

The stamp taxes repealed include those paid on telegraph and telephone messages, parlor car seats and berth tickets, bonds, debentures, certificates of indebtedness, certificates of stock, transfers, bills of sale, promissory notes, express and freight manifests, and bills of lading, bonding instruments, conveyances, insurance policies, entry of goods, passage tickets, power of attorney, protests, perfumery, cosmetics, and chewing gum.

During the first seven months' operation of the emergency revenue law these stamp taxes yielded more than $23,000,000. These taxes are recorded collectively and not under individual heads.

JUDGE FREES YOUNG MAN ACCUSED OF FLIRTING.

Fred Olson Says It Was Just an Accident When He Bumped Into Mrs. Brown.

Judge Goodnow, in the South Clark street court, yesterday refused to fine Fred Olson, 24 years old, 4050 Park avenue, on the testimony of Mrs. Ruth Brown, 20 years old, 4064 Sheridan road, that he caught hold of her and insulted her when she was walking on State near Adams street yesterday.

"I merely bumped against the woman—it was an accident," Olson testified. "I apologized to her, but she followed me and had me arrested."

Cadillac Riding Comfort—Something New

This new Cadillac Eight has one quality which amazes everybody.

You expect remarkable performance from a Cadillac, and the new car gives an increased measure of it.

But you cannot expect—because you cannot imagine—the new riding quality of the Cadillac.

The longer wheel base—the rebound snubbers—the lower hung chassis—the improved balance—these and other Cadillac refinements combined have produced a car which acts and feels unlike any other car.

You have a feeling of being protected from road shocks. You see the bump ahead in the road. You know the car must have hit it in passing. But you couldn't feel it.

That is all words can tell you. But a ride in the new Cadillac will make a reality of what has always seemed a faraway hope.

And remember this new Cadillac riding quality is not all of Cadillac virtue. It is but added to Cadillac performance and dependability—the first essentials in any motor car—the very foundation of Cadillac success.

Let us give you the ride that will astonish you.

The Car of a Thousand Speeds

Models from $3,150 to $5,250

¶ Two factors make the Owen Magnetic stand out above all other automobiles.

¶ First—Elegance of body and appointments—work of master coach builders.

¶ Second—Mechanical superiority—power is carried from engine to wheels by smooth, elastic magnetic transmission.

¶ Here is real motoring luxury. On a long road the sensation is like flying—in the constant stops and starts of congested traffic there is no jar. Nerve-racking jolts are gone because there are no change-speed gears. Instead of three or four speeds there are a thousand speeds—the power turns on and off like water. To the experienced motorist the performance of this car is uncanny.

¶ When desired, bodies to order by great carriage builders; chassis built and equipped by the Baker R & L Company, allied—both in finances and manufacturing—with the General Electric Company. Distinguished people own this car of real distinction.

A FAITHFUL SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE

Andrew Russel, candidate for the Republican nomination for state auditor, has the record to prove that he will be an efficient official.

During three terms as city treasurer of Jacksonville he served the people well.

During his present term as state treasurer he has made an enviable record for efficiency.

He has turned in more interest on public funds than has ever been turned in by a state treasurer during the same length of time.

He collected $2,000,000 inheritance tax in 1915 and by the end of this year will have collected $4,000,000, a million more than his predecessor collected.

Russel Promises Efficiency and His Promise Is Good.

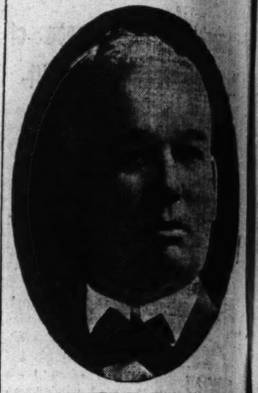
STEPHEN H. CUMMINS ANNOUNCES PLATFORM FAVORING FARMERS

CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE, THIS LAWYER-FARMER ISSUES A CLEAR CUT STATEMENT TO REPUBLICANS.

Stephen H. Cummins, lawyer of Springfield, Ill., candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large, believes that today is the day for clear cut policies. Vague generalities such as "A friend of the people," "The farmers' candidate," and other high-sounding phrases might have been vote winners in days gone by, but he believes the voter today, especially in the rural districts, wants to know exactly what a candidate proposes to stand for.

Mr. Cummins has a very definite platform and asks for the votes of those who agree with him that these things that he stands for are for the betterment of the country as a whole.



STEPHEN H. CUMMINS.

AN OLD PARTY WORKER AND LOYAL REPUBLICAN, ENDORSES WOMAN SUFFRAGE, RURAL CREDIT SYSTEM, ETC.

Mr. Cummins' Platform.

Mr. Cummins endorses and promises to vote for:
(1) Endorsement of Full Suffrage for women.
(2) Budget System.
(3) Protective Tariff.
(4) Adequate Preparedness.
(5) Republican National Platform in its entirety.
(6) Farm Loan System of Rural Credits.

Mr. Cummins is absolutely anti-pork barrel!

Mr. Cummins' Record.

Because the electors should know the caliber of the man who seeks office at their hands, Mr. Cummins opens the book of his life and shows a clean record. Not anywhere in the entire book does a blot or smirch appear. Stephen H. Cummins was born on a farm, lived the life of the farmer, and knows the needs of the farmer. Today he owns and operates two modern farms in Sangamon county, and gives them close attention despite his extensive legal practice.

During the twenty-eight years as a lawyer, Mr. Cummins has handled some of the largest and most important cases of litigation in Illinois legal records. When the Attorney General of the State of Illinois needed able assistance he has called on Stephen H. Cummins. No man of small ability ever is called to such cases. Despite the wonderful success Mr. Cummins has had as a lawyer, at no time has he hesitated to turn from a case where a large fee was forthcoming to defend a man who had little of the world's goods.

Mr. Cummins knows the needs of the country districts and his knowledge is not an academic one. What he knows of the farmer's needs he has gained through experience on his own farms and through across-the-fence and elbow-rubbing talks with his fellow farmers and neighbors. The chap who poses as a "farmer's friend" and doesn't know how many bushels of corn go to the hill may make a pretty speech but it takes a man with knowledge of just how tired one can be after a good day's plowing to really know the farmer's problems.

Mr. Cummins' Republicanism.

For years Mr. Cummins has been a "wheelhorse" of the Republican party in Sangamon county, state and national elections. When an orator was needed on the platform and on the stump Stephen H. Cummins was called on—and he worked and fought for Republican success, never faltering for defeat, never demanding praise for victory. It was his support that helped elect Lawrence Y. Sherman to the senate and Mr. Sherman has personally thanked him for his assistance.

Two Years Ago.

Two years ago Mr. Cummins entered the race for congressman-at-large and although the dark horse and a late entrant for the position he polled a surprising number of votes. Chicago favors him perhaps more than any "down state" candidate for they know him to be his. If the rural communities turn out and work for this man who is pledged to their interests Mr. Cummins can be nominated. The question of ability does not enter here for Stephen H. Cummins has gained his present prestige through ability. A desire to serve his country comes natural to Mr. Cummins as a family trait for the late Senator Cummins of Iowa, the best friend the farming interests ever had in the senate, is Mr. Cummins' own cousin.

ASKS FOR VOTES OF ONLY THOSE WHO BELIEVE AS HE DOES.

Mr. Voter, here is the proposition—if you vote for Stephen H. Cummins you vote for a man who will work for your interests. Look over the platform he stands on—and will stand on if elected. If you want a conscientious worker for the common good, work and vote for Stephen H. Cummins for congressman-at-large at the Republican primaries on September 13th. Mr. Cummins is appreciative and will thank every man who helps him to victory. This is a fair, square statement made in the interest of a fair, square, out-in-the-open non-factional candidate. Are you for Stephen H. Cummins?

GERMAN-IRISH ALLIANCE WANTS EMBARGO USED

Resolutions Passed at Picnic Affirm Loyalty of Two Races.

Resolutions calling upon the president of the United States to declare an embargo on foodstuffs and ammunition to force American claims on the allies were passed at the annual picnic of the German-Irish Alliance of Chicago in Brand's Park yesterday.

Delivered by former City Clerk John R. Haas the resolutions are, in part:

"We assert that we have shown by honorable deeds during the last century that we possess an undivided allegiance to this great republic.

"We declare that this nation stands in need of the united support of both our races, and it is only when we are united that we can bestow upon the United States its full power and common support to make our nation strong.

"We declare that the attacks made upon our races for the last two years, during us with disloyalty to America and with undue love for the land from which we came, have no purpose, except to weaken America.

"We declare that it is within the power of this administration, without shedding a drop of American blood, to remove the blacklist, to open the mail routes, to lift the contraband on foodstuffs, and to compel the withdrawal of battleships that menace our harbors. We, as two mighty races of this nation, declare for national honor an embargo rather than unholy trade and dishonest to this republic."

DETECTIVE LEAVES TODAY TO GET KRZYWOSZEWSKI.

Banker Accused of Looting Private Depository Now Under Arrest in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Detective Sergeant Richard T. Piper will leave for Grand Rapids, Mich., late tonight to bring back John A. Krzywoszewski, 1620 West Eighteenth street, charged with the failure and alleged looting of the private bank of which he was the head.

Detective Sergeant Piper will have a requisition for his extradition signed by Gov. Dunne. It is expected, however, that the fugitive banker will fight efforts to bring him back.

More recent investigations have made it seem probable that deposits which Krzywoszewski is alleged to have lost or carried away will be between $10,000 and $15,000, as the police at first estimated it. Others thought the loss would not be more than $5,000 or $7,000, but complaints have been received in such numbers by the police, some of them dating back to 1915, that it is believed the amount taken will reach the larger sum. The majority of the complaints are about the sending of money by foreign exchange which never arrived at the destinations.

CHICAGO MAN MURDERED IN JOLIET; SHOT SIX TIMES.

Body of Raphael Fichara, a Labor Contractor, Found on Railroad Trestle.

Raphael Fichara, 28 years old, of Chicago, a labor contractor, was found murdered on a trestle of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad in Joliet last night. He had six bullet holes in his body, which was badly mutilated by a train. Two of the bullet wounds were in the head.

His identity was learned from a card in his clothing. Forty dollars and a gold watch were found on the body.

He went to Joliet from Chicago three months ago, and the Joliet police who are investigating the case believe they have another mafia case to solve.

NEED OF EXPERT "LANDERS" BIG HANDICAP ON ZEPPELIN.

British Leader Says That Would Make Impossible Mail Service to America.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—An expert at the office of the aeroplane service today ridiculed the suggestion of the institution of service Zeppelins for carrying mails between Germany and America. He said it was not improbable that the airships could get across the Atlantic, but the trouble would start when the Zeppelin endeavored to land in America.

"Most people have no conception of what it means to land these giants," he said. "It is next to impossible to bring them down safely except when you have a big crowd of highly trained men at hand. These men have to work in perfect unison, and it is the easiest thing in the world to smash the whole affair.

"I venture to say that more Zeppelins have been severely damaged and totally lost by mishandling even on the part of the highly trained German landing crews than as the result of all other causes put together. It would be hopeless to expect amateurs to do the work successfully."

TORRENS BUSINESS FOR 1916 EXCEEDS THAT FOR 10 YEARS

Registrar Connery Gives Out Comparative Figures on Registration for Last Eighteen Years.

More business has been done in the Torrens office during the year ending Aug. 31 than in the entire ten years following the inauguration of land registration in 1899, according to a statement given out yesterday by Registrar Joseph F. Connery.

The figures for the past eighteen years, or since the beginning of the registration system in Cook county, follow:

Year.	Number instruments filed.	Year.	Number instruments filed.
1899	33	1908	2,462
1900	69	1909	3,315
1901	124	1910	3,868
1902	288	1911	4,549
1903	500	1912	5,228
1904	757	1913	6,906
1905	1,253	1914	8,789
1906	1,774	1915	9,830
1907	2,207	1916	11,960

"This record is unparalleled in the history of land registration in the United Staes," Peter Foote, president of the Torrens league, said. "It affords a striking evidence of Mr. Connery's zeal as a public official."

NEW YORK CENTRAL SEEKS TO SAVE $300,000 FEES.

Appeals to Illinois Supreme Court for Refund of Money Paid Into State Treasury.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 9.—The New York Central Railroad company today took an appeal to the Illinois Supreme court from the decision of the Sangamon county Circuit court in a further attempt to prevent Secretary of State Stevenson from turning into the state treasury the sum of $300,000 which the company paid under protest as an incorporation fee.

Circuit Judge Creighton this week overruled the demurrer of the defense.

The road paid the sum of $400,000 to the state public utilities commission recently at the time of its reorganization, and insists that the payment of the $300,000 would be double taxation.

FOR GOVERNOR.

There are three Republican candidates for nomination for governor in the primaries of next Wednesday, Frank L. Smith, Frank O. Lowden, and Morton D. Hull.

Mr. Smith has been in politics in Illinois a long time; a guess would make it upwards of twenty years. Exactitude is not important, except that there is no intent to fasten antiquity upon Mr. Smith. He is forceful and vigorous and knows the state intimately..

If political preference went by pleasing personality Smith and Lowden would give the Republican voters a hard choice. Frank Smith is engaging. He has impressed some observers who have known him a long time with his cynical sort of candor. Smith was a tory when a timid reform was making slow headway in this state. As a tory he was against it. He thought most politicians were hypocritical in their profession of it.

Smith belonged to what was known as the federal crowd, the organization of federal appointees, postmasters, internal revenue collectors, etc., headed by Shelby M. Cullom and Joseph G. Cannon.

When ideas, now accepted without a tremor by nearly all the politicians, by Mr. Smith and everybody else, raised their timid heads in this state, the generality of politicians, including Mr. Smith, were against them. That is not severe comment. Politics in Illinois detested the liberalism which was beginning to wail about the state.

The federal crowd was about the last to be convinced of the uselessness of opposing change in political procedure. Smith always was candid and honest in his attitude. There is that and an engaging personality in his favor and THE TRIBUNE believes that he is a good administrator. He has been a successful business man with wide interests. He was internal revenue collector of his district for a number of years.

Mr. Smith is making a campaign without the support of any of the organizations which have conducted Republican affairs or contested for control in the past.

Frank O. Lowden is in 1916 a vigorous new bloom on a political plant which has not really flowered since 1904. In that year Mr. Lowden was candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and THE TRIBUNE opposed him with all the energy it could. The case with him was somewhat the case as has been explained regarding Smith.

When Lowden ran for governor in 1904 he represented, with all the force of money and genial nature, the elements which were determined to prevent the growth of anything like liberalism in this state. Illinois had been under the control of William Lorimer to its disadvantage. Political trickery was so shrewd and sure that government was in the hands of a few men who were aloof from responsibility.

A system of this sort was bound to collapse some time. The state could not have Mr. Lorimer making and directing its governors, telling them what they could do, whether or not they could run for reelection, and indicating to the legislature how it should act toward public utilities and private interests.

Mr. Lowden was Lorimer's candidate in defeat. We imagine that Mr. Lowden has learned a great deal since then. We know he has. The old times in a little over ten years have become so ancient that they are forgotten.

Lowden, in spite of his personal and political attractiveness and his money, was defeated and Charles S. Deneen was nominated and elected. This is recalled merely as a shadowy background for the present Lowden candidacy, which bears little resemblance to the former.

Lowden, it is true, is favored by Mayor Thompson, but he would be a fool, politically, not to allow this outfit to do what it could for him if he can keep the public from attaching a stigma to him in consequence. That is precisely what he has been doing, or trying to do.

THE TRIBUNE does not believe that the state needs the sort of government that Bill the Big gives Chicago.

However, we do not believe that Lowden would be a factotum of Bill the Big if he were elected governor. Frank Lowden has not been remote from the influences of the times. He is not the same man who ran for governor in 1904. At least we do not think so. It is true that he has not been much of a congressman, but it does not follow that he would not make a good governor.

We appraise Lowden as essentially a state man. He needs the responsibilities and restrictions of a section such as the state. This is a guess, but it may prove a fair one.

Both Lowden and Smith are for a revision of state government, for a constitutional convention, and for the reorganization of government agencies for greater efficiency and economy.

Morton D. Hull is the third Republican candidate to be considered. Hull has been an active, energetic figure in the Illinois legislature. He has brains and convictions. He is a bit of a tory. He is a man of wealth who has devoted himself to a thankless sort of public service. He is analytical and shrewd, with limitations which have appeared at every opportunity given them.

In the legislature he would fight for five good measures with rare intelligence and then close his mind against a sixth one. He was indifferent to the constitutional convention a few years ago, but has declared for it now.

His instincts are conservative and at times a social question finds him unresponsive, but such a statement has to be qualified by acknowledgment of his many services for important social issues. His support comes from what remains of the Deneen organization. He also is the candidate favored by the Anti-Saloon league.

Hull, we imagine, would like to put in operation a skillful, just mechanism of government which would proceed with automatic fidelity to do what ought to be done administratively for the people of Illinois. He has not the personal attraction which Smith and Lowden can bring to bear on folk.

That may be an indication of strength. Good fellowship wrecks many an administrative function which has to be performed without the interference of the human equation. We cannot imagine a grateful constituency giving Hull a diamond pin or star. We can imagine an intelligent community appreciating what he had done for it.

If Hull had to go into a barroom and ask them to see what the boys in the back room would have he would be so miserable a failure in this effort of joviality that the bartender would bury his face in his apron and ask the porter to see that the gentleman got safely to the curbstone.

We do not intend to relate the details of Hull's record of usefulness, but merely to state an opinion for the guidance of any one who thinks it worth while. THE TRIBUNE has quarreled with Mr. Hull on more occasions than it has quarreled with Mr. Smith, and if not so vehemently, at least more often, than it has quarreled with Mr. Lowden.

Nevertheless it is the best judgment of THE TRIBUNE that the state of Illinois will do better under Mr. Hull than it will under Mr. Smith or Mr. Lowden. Government may not be so pleasant a human institution under this human mechanism which is identified by the name of Hull, but we think it will be more efficient than it will be under Smith or Lowden.

That conclusion is forced upon any unprejudiced person who will examine the records of the three men.

Smith or Lowden might prove of greater value to the Republican ticket in November, but we believe Hull would make the best governor.

Considering the other party, as it must be by any one admitting the possibility that Illinois will go Democratic, one can see no possible reason for a Democrat desiring the best state government his party can produce to do other than vote for Gov. Dunne. A continuance of his administration would not be catastrophic. If the state is to have a Democrat, we hope that Democrat will be Edward F. Dunne.

THE NEXT ASSEMBLY.

The report of the Legislative Voters' league brings up before the political conscience of the people of Illinois a deplorable state of affairs.

Not only is the grade of candidates for the assembly below the level of such a commonwealth as ours is or ought to be, but the opportunity of choice is taken out of the people's power in a great many cases. The two major parties will have named only 181 candidates for 153 seats in the house, so that after the primaries these will be virtually elected, unless voters turn to the Progressive, Socialist, or independent candidates in sufficient numbers to elect.

Because of this manipulation of the situation by the politicians the primary is more important than the election. When the primary is passed, the character of the assembly will be fixed, as was pointed out in Mr. Phillips' analysis in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Voters should not fail to realise this and turn out Sept. 13. The Legislative Voters' league report should be given study in the meanwhile. If not infallible it has been made up on the basis of conscientious investigation and is, on the whole, the best guide available for the responsible voter. Voters should remember that votes for state representatives may be p umped. That is, one vote may be cast for each of three candidates, 1½ for each of two, or three may be plumped for one. In cases where it is especially desirable to make sure of the selection of a good candidate, the votes should be plumped. Such a case, for example, is that of Allan J. Carter, who is running for representative in the Sixth district on the Republican ticket. Mr. Carter's qualifications of character and education offer promise of excellent public service, and three votes plumped for him—by placing a cross in the square before his name and leaving the others blank—will prove, we believe, an investment in good government.

The general assembly has much to do for our civic welfare. Illinois needs a good deal of important legislation and needs it now. Too many citizens neglect their duty with respect to selections for the state legislature, though following national politics with interest. If we are to have a state government at all we ought to see that it is honest and competent. Otherwise it is not only a waste of money, but is capable of doing a great deal of harm. Questions of prime consequence to the welfare of the state and its citizenship which will come before the next assembly are the submission of the constitutional convention to the people, administrative economies and reforms in the state offices, public utilities control, and probably legislation under the tax amendment, if the latter is adopted, as it is likely to be, at the November election. We need a responsible and capable leadership to get these things properly done.

FILLING IN SOME BLANKS.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—[Special.]—Japan is threatening the integrity of ——.

—— is in no condition to resist.

Her financial condition is desperate, and her army has no transportation equipment or big guns with which to conduct a modern war. It appears that submission to fresh and drastic Japanese demands is all there is left to do. No European aid can be expected, according to diplomatic judgment here. What will the —— do?

The above is a dispatch from Washington, with certain elisions. They were not made by a military censor. But the reader may fill in the blanks. The name of what country will he put in? Observing the date, he will write in China, but under another date may he write in another?

He will not have to change a line in the description of the helpless country.

CHANGE IN MILITIA LAW NEEDED.

[From the New York Times.]

Although a large part of the men called into service on the Mexican frontier are performing their tasks like patriotic citizens, with a clear recognition of the duty of a soldier to obey and not to question orders, there has been enough discontent to justify the belief that a change of the law so far as it relates to the militia will be necessary. Even the militiamen who are soldiering without complaining are dissatisfied. Very few of them enlisted for such service. . . . It would not be just to belittle the work of the guardsmen who have bravely taken up their new and onerous tasks. A large proportion of these men are the kind we should have and would be sure to get in a real federal force of citizen soldiers. If we are to have compulsory service in any form in this country it should be service for the federal government without political interference in the states. The states have a right to maintain militia as a home guard, and the president is empowered by the constitution to call upon that militia in times of peril, to quell insurrection and repel invasion. But when military extension became an imperative necessity a great mistake was made in the attempt to constitute the state militia a part of the national army. The mistake must be corrected sooner or later.

PRINCE ALBERT of Monaco's recent visit to Benedict XV. at the vatican is reported to have been signalized by a suggestion on the part of the pontiff to the effect that the public gaming tables should be abolished at Monte Carlo.

This is not the first occasion on which an intimation of this character has come to the prince from the vatican. He received urgent recommendations in the same direction from Leo XIII., who was much irritated when he found that they fell on deaf ears.

As for Pius X., he disapproved of the public gambling tables at Monte Carlo and of the conduct of the prince in deriving large revenues therefrom to such an extent that all diplomatic relations between Monaco and the papacy were severed, the situation being aggravated by the refusal of the late pope to receive Albert at the vatican on the occasion of two of his visits to the Eternal City.

It is extremely doubtful whether the prince will accord any more attention to Benedict XV. than he did to Leo XIII., and it is unlikely that there will be any change at Monaco as long as he lives. During the course of his reign of twenty-seven years he has been the object of numerous remonstrances of an analogous character. They came to him from the late King Humbert, from Emperor Francis Joseph, and from Queen Victoria.

It was on the strength of the prince's assurances and solemn pledges that he would decline to renew the arrangement made by his father with the Monte Carlo gambling establishment on the expiration of the contract in 1913 that Queen Victoria consented to receive him and his New Orleans born consort, the former Alice Heine, with sovereign honors at her court.

Queen Victoria has now been dead for some sixteen years, and the prince, with complete disregard of his promises to her and to other European sovereigns who had followed her example in receiving him at their court, deliberately renewed in 1913 the contract with the Monte Carlo gambling outfit for another fifty years or more in return for a sum down of $2,000,000 and a large increase in the annual royalties upon the receipts.

Alexander III. of Russia never accorded any credence to the alleged good intentions of the prince, and when the prince and his now divorced American born wife, encouraged by their welcome at the English court, announced their intention of paying an official visit to Russia and to the court of Petrograd the late czar caused them to be curtly notified by his ambassador in Paris that they would not be received if they managed to reach Petrograd and that he had given orders that if they attempted to make the trip they should be stopped and turned back by the police at the frontier of his dominions.

This is to show that the prince is accustomed to affronts on the part of his fellow rulers, and that he is not likely, therefore, to be willing to sacrifice the enormous revenues he receives from the Monte Carlo gambling tables for fear of the odium resulting from his refusal to defer to the remonstances of Benedict XV.

In order to convey an idea of the financial advantages derived by the prince from the tables I may mention that in addition to the $2,000,000 which he received in 1913 for the renewal of the contract the Blanc syndicate paid him down a further sum of $3,000,000 in April, 1914. Besides this he receives by his present contract an annual sum of $300,000, plus 8 per cent of the gross receipts from the gambling tables beyond $5,000,000. As the average receipts are about $10,000,000 in times of peace, this extra percentage usually yields the prince another $400,000 a year. Moreover, the annual grant will in 1917 be increased to $400,000.

Nor are these the only pecuniary advantages which Prince Albert of Monaco derives from his association with the Monte Carlo company. Thus he is a large shareholder in the concern and figures as such in the list of stockholders, his principal associates being Prince Constantine Radziwill, Edmond Blanc, and Roland Bonaparte, who each married daughters and heiresses of old François Blanc, the founder and creator of the establishment.

The company also pays all the expenses of the administration of the government of the principality, the princely bodyguard of 150 men and officers, the judiciary, the police, the maintenance of roads and public works, the lighting and water supply, the educational institutes, the telephone service, the printing of the official journal, and last, but not least, the official washhouse, or state "buanderie." In fact, the prince is free to spend the money which he himself derives from the concern as he pleases, since everything is found for him.

The prince has a queer mixture of blood in his veins. His patronymic is Grimaldi. But he is a Grimaldi only in the female line, the Grimaldis being an old Genoese family, a member of which was one of the commanders of the French troops at the battle of Crecy.

The Grimaldi dynasty became extinct in the male line by the death in 1731 of Anthony I. of Monaco, who was succeeded by his only daughter, Louise, married to Jacques de Goyon-Matignon, one of the Breton nobles of the court of Versailles who, with the authorization of Louis XV., was permitted to assume his father-in-law's French dukedom of Valentinois.

It was the son of this union, Honoré III., who was the Monaco counterpart of Louis XVI., since the French revolution in Paris at the close of the eighteenth century was followed by a similar insurrection at Monte Carlo. When the Tuileries was sacked by the terrorists after the downfall of Louis XVI., Prince Honoré's castle at Monte Carlo underwent similar treatment at the hands of the Monaco mob. Honoré, who died in prison at Paris as "Citizen Monaco," had a son, who succeeded as Honoré IV. after the downfall of Napoleon and the restoration of the principality of Monaco as an independent state in 1815. He married Louise de Mazarin, daughter of the last Duke of Mazarin, and through him the French dukedom of Mazarin, with the consent of Louis XVIII. of France, passed to the princes of Monaco.

THE TEETH DURING CHILDHOOD.

THERE is an old saying that the body changes once in seven years. Why seven was hit upon nobody knows. The saying originated in the opinion of some old philosopher who evolved it out of his inner consciousness as a piece of pure speculation. At the time there was no proof that the body changed in whole or in part in seven years or in any other number of years. Nor was proof required. The custom of the times did not require proof of theories and speculations. It was enough that the theory came from some philosopher and that it fell on minds that wanted to accept.

The body is in constant change. Every seven minutes there is much change and every seventy minute period witnesses very much more. No kaleidoscope presents more radical or rapid change. To this rule the teeth and the bones are in some measure an exception. After these structures reach maturity there is little wear and little regeneration.

If a person gets a poor start he can get over it as regards most of his organs. Not infrequently a poorly muscled child develops into an athletic adult. One need not be discouraged if he has a poor liver or poor kidneys or a poor brain. He can build up stronger organs if he will go at it intelligently and persistently.

As to the teeth the die is cast in early childhood. The child with poor enamel or with crumbly teeth develops into the adult with poor teeth or no teeth at all. The development of the teeth begin at the seventeenth week of embryo life. That is about twenty-three weeks before birth. The wisdom teeth begin to calcify at 9 years of age and erupt at 21 or thereabouts. What happens to the child between its seventeenth week of embryo life and its ninth year of ordinary life settled the tooth question for that child.

Development of the teeth starts in the crown, and that once formed is the unchangeable part of the tooth. The root is not completely formed when the tooth erupts. It grows after the tooth comes through, it changes somewhat while the tooth is firmly fixed, and as the time for shedding comes it absorbs and disappears in part. At the time of birth the crowns of all the milk teeth are complete. No part of the tooth remains to grow except the root.

The nourishment received by the mother and by her passed on to her child has settled the question as to the quality of the baby's first set of teeth. If she furnished her unborn babe all the lime salts and other chemicals needed by the growing teeth her baby will have a good set of milk teeth. On the other hand if a baby has crumbly, soft, brittle or easily decaying milk teeth, the trouble was with the mother and is not with the baby's milk If the teeth are notched or cupped the probability is that the baby has inherited some disease from the mother.

At the twenty-fifth week of embryonal life the formation of one of the permanent teeth—the sixth year's molar—begins. At birth the crown of this molar is about half completed. When the baby has reached one year of age the status of his teeth is about as follows: Four milk teeth are erupted. The crowns of twelve other milk teeth are fully formed, the roots partly so, the crowns of the four sixth year molars are nearly formed, and the crown of the permanent central incisors are about one-third finished.

At the end of the second year his tooth status is as follows: Twenty teeth have been erupted. The roots of twelve of these are full grown. Of the remaining eight about half grown. The crowns of the four sixth year molars are about two-thirds complete. The crowns of the four central incisors are about two-thirds finished and of the lateral incisors about one-third so.

At the end of the third year all twenty of the milk teeth are completely formed and erupted. The crowns of the sixth year molars are complete, as are the crowns of the central incisors. The crowns of the lateral incisors, eye teeth, and stomach teeth are well under way.

By the end of the ninth year of life all of the milk teeth have been lost. In their places the central and lateral incisors and the first and second bicuspids have come through. The sixth year molars are in place, the crowns of the canines and second molars are complete, and that of the third molars or wisdom teeth are beginning to calcify or harden.

At the end of the fourteenth year the sixth year molars, the central and lateral incisors, the first and second bicuspids, the canines, and the twelve year molars are in place and the crowns of the wisdom teeth are more than half formed.

The shape of the teeth, their quality, and their proper eruption or cutting are influenced by disease and by an illy balanced diet. If the child has inherited syphilis or rickets it is apt to show in the teeth. If the child has a severe illness of any sort the quality of the teeth may suffer. But the principal cause of teeth of poor quality is an improper diet. Children who get too little milk, butter, and meat, or too much sugar and starch are especially liable to have poor teeth.

If it is noticed that a child 9 months of age has two soft teeth, where did the trouble lie? The probability is that the mother had a severe illness during the latter half of her pregnancy or she ate too little, or what she ate was not what she should have eaten.

We must not forget that faults in the sixth year molars (which teeth are not cut until the child is in school or about ready for school) may be due to improper nourishment of the child by the mother during the last months of pregnancy.

Let us say that the baby is improperly fed during the sixth month of its life. What teeth will be affected? Not the incisors, for the crowns of these are fully formed. Perhaps, though not probable, the canines and first and second molars. So much for the milk teeth. The principal effect will be felt by the sixth year molars—permanent teeth.

Let us say the child has a severe illness or is improperly nourished, grossly so, in the twelfth month of life, what teeth will be affected? None of the milk teeth, since they are fully formed. The sixth year molars, cut at 6 years of age, and the central incisors, cut at 7 years. The effect on the teeth, then, will not be known until about the beginning of school life, and it will affect only two sets or a total of eight teeth.

A severe illness or badly balanced diet in the second year will affect the sixth year molars and the central and lateral incisors.

School children who live on a very badly balanced diet or who suffer some very severe illnesses are prone to have poor wisdom teeth and poor 12 year molars upon reaching years of maturity.

The percentage of improperly fed children is very high among babies in the first year of life. Dr. Durand, who has given some study to this question, says that imperfections, faults, fissures, and absences of enamel are vastly more frequently found, and early decay is three times as frequent, in the first molar as in the third molar. The first molar calcifies in the first year of life, the third molar in the ninth year.

There is very little change in the teeth. Speaking generally, wear is not replaced. As the dense part of a tooth wears away its softer parts become denser. A few minor changes of which this is a type may occur, but, speaking generally, the teeth do not change. They remain as they were when they cut through gums until they decay. When they erupt the account is closed.

In the light of these facts it appears doubly necessary that the child in the teeth forming years should be shielded from very severe illness and above all should be properly fed.

DIABETES.

A Reader writes: "[1] Will you please tell me something about the starvation cure for diabetes? As I understand it, the patient eats nothing at all for three weeks, living on black coffee alone, some whisky being given at the last as a stimulant. After this, one is supposed to be entirely cured and can again eat anything desired—using ordinary discretion.

"Has this treatment been proved successful, and should it ever be undertaken without the aid of a physician?

"Two months ago I was found to have sugar in the urine. After doing without sweets for one week, there was still a trace. Since then three tests have been made—all showing a trace of sugar, though I have eaten no sweets except fresh fruits, and a dessert just three or four times, and no starch at all except white bread.

"Is this conclusive proof that I have diabetes? Would you advise me to take the starvation treatment, or will a diet of no sugar and starch be sufficient? If so, how long must I continue this diet before a cure is effected?

"[2] Also would like for you to tell me whether or not infantile paralysis is transmissible through newspapers and mail coming from New York and Chicago, where that disease is prevalent."

REPLY.

1. You have been badly misinformed as to the starvation treatment of diabetes. Hill says: "The longest we have starved any patient is four days." Not infrequently after that one fast day a week is required. After the starvation cure one is not "supposed to be cured and can eat anything desired." If the ex-diabetic again eats like a hog he will develop diabetes again. Your history indicates that you have a mild case. Get a copy of Hill & Eckman's "Starvation (Allen) Treatment of Diabetes" and follow it under medical direction.

2. No.

CONTRACTING TYPHOID.

F. E. B. writes: "Please give some information how a person can contract typhoid fever. [1] Can a person take the true typhoid fever from a rundown system without having eaten or drunk a germ. [2] Why does this fever practically make its appearance from August until later in fall? [3] Suggest how to fumigate a house, and how soon after the fever leaves?"

REPLY.

1. No. Typhoid is contracted in 90 per cent of the cases through drinking water or eating food that has been contaminated.

2. Typhoid fever is present all the time. In most localities there is more in the fall than at other times during the year. For this there are several reasons. One reason is the great prevalence of flies. Another is the increased danger from infection of milk, water and other food, and otherwise by persons who have the disease. The rule is that typhoid begins to increase in the spring. As the summer goes on the increasing number of cases increases the chance of infection. When the weather gets cold the number of cases lessens and this lessens the number of foci of infection.

3. Nothing is gained by fumigating a house after typhoid fever. The urine and the stools should be sterilized by bleaching powder or by a crude carbolic preparation. This sterilising should start when the diagnosis is made. It should not be discontinued until one month after the fever has left. Flies must be kept out of houses where there is typhoid fever.

BATH ITCH.

I. M. writes: "You mentioned in your article a few days ago that there is no such a thing as bath itch. I am much annoyed by just such an itch and would greatly appreciate it if you let me know the cause and what relieves it. My body begins to itch just when I am about dry."

REPLY.

Bath itch develops in very sensitive skins when too much grease has been removed from the skin especially by warm soap baths. The cure is to bathe less frequently and less thoroughly. If the case is mild, take bran baths instead of soap baths. To prepare a bran bath put half a gallon of bran in a bag. Allow this to steep for ten minutes in a tub containing thirty gallons of water. As a face wash use a handful of bran or half a handful of almond meal in place of soap in a bowl of water. If the condition is very bad clean your skin with oil and baths only at long intervals.

FARMERS' BULLETINS.

D. A. L. writes: "You refer to Farmers' Bulletin No. 717. How can we get these bulletins? I think it would be well to give the address in THE TRIBUNE."

REPLY.

Practically every government publication not out of print can be had from the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C. It is usually possible to get farmers' bulletins from the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

DIFFERENCE NOT GREAT.

L. T. W. writes: "Will you please let me know through he columns of THE TRIBUNE if the climate about twenty-five miles west of Chicago, or locality near Naperville, is more beneficial for asthmatic and bronchial troubles than that of South Chicago?"

REPLY.

It would be somewhat better for bronchial troubles, not because of the distance from the lake, but because the air is cleaner. However, the difference would not be great.

BELT LINE NOISES.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Attention is called to trains being operated on the Belt line from North avenue to Chicago at night especially. All night long the banging of cars together is enough to make one feel they are at Verdun, and I look with wonder in the morning to see if the ends of freight cars are intact, so great is the force with which they collide. This has been going on for about a month now, and while I full well know some noise is necessary in the switching done, still a great amount of it can be obviated. MRS. S. E. K.

Supt. G. J. Shreeve of the Belt Railway company says that their traveling engineer has been watching conditions in this vicinity for several nights and does not believe that there will be any further complaint. He says that this complaint has been investigated and that there was more whistling than usual on one particular night on account of the heavy fog in that neighborhood making it necessary to move trains slowly for safety. WILLIS O. NANCE,
Chairman City Council Com. on Health.

PAY OF THE NATIONAL GUARDSMAN.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 4.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I enlisted in the Illinois national guard June 25 and took the federal oath in Springfield, Ill. I was discharged for disability July 3 and signed pay roll for $8. When do I get it? E. F. M.

The pay roll which this gentleman claims to have signed was sent forward from this department on the 5th day of August, 1916, and was made payable to Capt. Edgar A. Ewing, and he should apply to him for the money in question. The amount due on roll was $6.

PEDDLER'S LICENSE.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would like to know if the law requires a license to run a coffee business from dealer to customer?
TRIBUNE READER.

I beg to advise if it is the intention to solicit orders for coffee, delivery to be made at some future time, no license will be required. However, if it is the intention to go from place to place, within the city, selling or offering for sale coffee which you carried for the purpose of delivering same to the buyer at the time of the sale, you will be obliged to take out what is termed a pack peddler's license, the fee for which is $3.75 for a period of three months or less. If this same method is used in selling the goods, but a wagon is employed, a wagon peddler's license will be required, the fee being $12.50 per quarter year or less.

PAVING OTTO STREET.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly advise me when Otto street, between Robey street and West Ravenswood avenue, will be paved or improved in some way. All other streets in the immediate neighborhood are paved. The condition of the street makes it unpleasant and difficult for me to drive on in any kind of a vehicle.
E. C. H.

No proceedings are under way at the present time for paving Otto street between Robey street and West Ravenswood avenue, but such proceedings will be started upon receipt by this board of a petition signed by the owners of some of the property fronting on the proposed improvement.
M. J. FAHERTY,

PUSHMOBILES.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly inform me whether or not the law prohibiting pushmobiles has become invalid. In our neighborhood pushmobiles are flourishing in great numbers. My apartment is located on a corner, and the noise caused by these playthings is unbearable. J. D. R.

The law prohibiting pushmobiles is in force. Report the trouble to the nearest police station and it will be taken care of.

JUDGE NEWCOMER'S PLACE ON THE BALLOT.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Some time ago I noticed an item in THE TRIBUNE that Judge Newcomer of the Municipal bench, who is a candidate for renomination, was in some manner forced to take fourteenth place on the ballot at the primaries, although his name appeared in fourth place in the regular order of filing.

I may not be fully conversant with the way of doing things, yet am of the opinion that when names are once filed according to the law that they would remain in that position. There may, of course, be some advantage to the candidate in having a preferential position, but the voter who is making his selection of capable, tried, and true men surely will not be influenced by position on the ballot. Judge Newcomer has made a splendid record on the bench and is surely worthy of re-election.

It may not be generally known that when Judge Newcomer was a member of the legislature that he introduced and secured the passage of the Juvenile court act, the Illinois act being the first of its kind passed in any state in the union. GEORGE E. GREEN.

THE SIXTH DISTRICT.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—William Lorimer is now seeking the Republican nomination for congress in the Sixth district. Not more than a few years ago this gentleman was evicted from the United States senate by a vote of the senators, which sustained the charge that his seat was obtained dishonestly and by the practice of corruption. To date no refutation has been successfully made to these charges and they stand as undisputed in the eyes of the law.

Not more than a few years ago a bank operated and controlled by this gentleman was closed and the deposits of its clients largely lost, it is charged, through mismanagement, negligence and dishonest practices. These charges have been incorporated into an indictment of our federal grand jury and are still pending and undetermined. With this indictment, a conviction under which might mean a penitentiary sentence, hanging over his head, Mr. Lorimer nevertheless is now seeking to be nominated as a candidate for congress. If this were merely a display of bad taste on his part it might be looked upon with tolerance, although with much disparagement. But as the records stands, it carries considerable menace to the public good. If nominated, what possible defense can the Republican party make of Mr. Lorimer to urge his election, and, if elected, there is the possibility of the Sixth district being treated to the spectacle of its representative in congress being placed on trial in the federal court for a serious offense.

Opposed to Mr. Lorimer are several estimable candidates, but the danger lies in the division of the opposition. If Mr. Lorimer is to be defeated it can only be accomplished by uniting on one candidate who apparently has the best chance to win. It seems to me that the newspapers owe this duty to the Sixth district to sound the alarm of united opposition. Ald. Carl T. Murray, who is also a candidate, has a record of constructive legislative action in the council which would seem to entitle him to united support for the nomination.

He has displayed intelligent usefulness in the handling of municipal legislation, and above all has been honest, clean and incorruptible. Is it too much to hope for that intelligent action will be taken to unite behind Ald. Murray to the end that Mr. Lorimer may be defeated and the Sixth district saved the humiliation of presenting as the Republican candidate one whom the senate rejected as unworthy and now under serious indictment.
RESIDENT SIXTH DISTRICT.

AN APPEAL TO SOCIALISM.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—No one thing has done more to awaken the people to a suspicion as to the value of arbitration than your insistence upon it, for most people no longer believe that you care for the welfare of the common people, but, rather, that your whole effort is to protect property interests. We should be very grateful to the kindly powers which have prolonged the trouble over the discharge of the teachers in our city, and the great railroad difficulty, for many of us have gotten our bearings at last.

We know that the only remedy for these things is in political action, and the only party which today represents the interests of the people as a political party is the Socialist party. If enough of us will vote with the third party we can secure sufficient representation in city council to own lighting and transportation plants in the state to control state utilities, and in national affairs to take over railroads, mines, telegraph, and telephone utilities.

Any thinking person well knows that changes will in no way affect the freedom of the individual, but will benefit him. Let us throw our strength to the support of the third party, the party of the workers, the Socialist party.
NELLIS H. BALDWIN.

THE BELGIANS' CHOICE.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am sure the letter of Mr. Bennett, the war correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, from Brussels, is a revelation to many Americans. Are the Allies going to succeed in freeing Belgium from the German yoke? If they do, it means every stone of the country will be turned, nothing but debris left. What are the wishes of the Belgians—to be a part of the great German empire and prosper, to be free from Germany and the whole country burned and destroyed? A. E. NELSON.

WAR AT HOME

By Robert Herrick.

THE other day when I drove into the small seaport town of P., that serves this country region for general market, I was struck by the lively air of business in the streets and stores. The retail shops, especially those where provisions are sold, were doing a rushing business, and heavy drays of flour and other merchandise were passing through the streets. The fact was that people had begun to think there might be a strike after all and that many of my neighbors had the same purpose I had in driving over to P. that day, to stock up against the eventuality of a threatened paralysis of our provisioning system. They were ordering sugar and flour in quantities unknown before by the merchants of P. Every ham had been cleaned out of my grocer's and I took his last bag of sugar. He swore he didn't know where he could get any more, and as for tinned things, he had but a meager stock left. I took whatever I could get, like the others, and departed, the car loaded to the gunwales with provisions. I suppose the same scene has been enacted in every market town from Maine to California the last week. For it really looked on Wednesday that the impossible was about to happen! So much so that the large summer hotel beyond P. I was told, had lost 300 patrons overnight, and, not trusting the railroads to deliver so much baggage before the fatal day, the hotel had arranged to have trunks trucked back to the cities, in some cases hundreds of miles away.

Samuel Gompers
President American Federation of Labor (a caricature)

ALL this was a novelty and more or less of a joke for us, for being close to the sea we can always go a-fishing for cod and flounders, and being in the midst of a farming country there are potatoes, cabbages, and turnips in the fields a-plenty and coal and gasoline can be brought by water to P. For people living in inland places the threat of interrupted transportation must be more serious, much more serious. For all easy going American citizens, however, it is a useful demonstration of modern economics, and will teach them how dependent we are upon each other and on the railroads to get our respective needs and offerings exchanged. The local shops haven't enough food of any sort to last the town a week, and I doubt if P.—the seaport ten miles away—could do much better; it looked pretty well cleaned out last Wednesday. The situation these days must be a faint—a very faint—replica of what went on in Europe the last week of July, 1914, while the people of all nations waited for the disruption of society by the impending mobilization and war. A huge industrial strike like the one contemplated by the railroad brotherhoods is nothing but war—a blood'ess war, to be sure, but none the less war with its crudity, savagery, abandonment of reason in favor of brute force, and wanton destruction of civilization. It is the civil appeal to force just as shell and bombs are the national appeal. Both are almost equally needless and reprehensible; heavy should be the penalties that society puts on those individuals chiefly responsible for bringing about such resorts to force to attain their ends!

BETWEEN the two kinds of warfare there are many striking parallels. In the first place both have been long in the making, to acute observers, though they both seemed to break in a clear sky. A final struggle between the railroads and their men, between capital in general and labor in general, has been threatening for decades. Indeed, war has broken out here and there sporadically (as did the enmities of Europe), and more often has been put off by concessions and compromises that did not promise any stable or long continued peace. The root of the grievance, the sore itself, has always been left, poulticed but unhealed. Each time that such an industrial peace has been accomplished by a giving in of capital to the demands of their employés because capital could not afford to lie idle and could always pass on the costs of the compromise to the general public, wise heads have realized that this process could not continue forever; that a day must come for a general reckoning when it no longer seemed possible for capital to pass labor's bill over to the general public to pay, when it would be preferable to fight rather than to be bullied by constant threats, and in any way get the question settled for .. term of years, even if it cost terribly.

Yet the ordinary citizen engrossed wholly in his own affairs, moderately prejudiced one way or the other, believed that a great industrial war was unthinkable these days—just as the average citizen of the world held that a general European conflagration was unthinkable in July, 1914. People were saying then that the bankers would prevent such a disaster to civilization, and they are saying now that first the president, next congress, and finally "public opinion" would intervene and prevent such a national catastrophe as a universal railroad strike.

Another striking resemblance to real war was that the aggressors having chosen what they believed to be the "strategic moment" (we are all military in our figures of speech these days, alas!), as Germany chose "der Tag" when she believed her opponents were most unprepared, acted upon a pretext which they profess to consider too sacred for any form of arbitration.

Germany took Austria's grievance against Serbia as her trivial pretext for loosing a European war. The railroad men professed to desire the eight hour day, but everybody knows by this time that it is not an eight hour day which they were after, but more pay.

GERMANY found her cause undiscussable, refused England's suggestion for a conference of the powers, for much the same reasons that the brotherhood leaders found arbitration by any body whatsoever undesirable. They said, in their remarkable proclamation to the American public, that certain class questions are unarbitrable, among them the eight hour day. They steadily refused to arbitrate their pretext because they know that any form of arbitration would immediately reveal that it was a pretext, and apparently they did not feel convinced of the plausibility of the real issue, a substantial increase in their pay. They easily persuaded the president of the United States of the natural justice of their claims; he saw a great light suddenly in face of the impending election and immediately resolved that the managers' insistence upon arbitration was unreasonable, since the men were so much opposed to it!

I do not pretend to understand the rights of the vexed question, to know offhand whether railroad employes are getting all they should for their services, are receiving their share of the joint product which they and the managers are creating. I am unable, like the president, to pronounce offhand that a 20 per cent increase in wages (which is what the "eight hour day" means) is just or not. I don't believe that the president has a much clearer idea than I have of where justice lies between the managers and the men, in spite of his glib judgment that the opinion of mankind favors the eight hour day. But I do know, I am unshakably convinced, that "the president's settlement," the so-called "solution," may last over the elections, but not much longer. It is another concession and compromise (like Agadir), with no real promise of final settlement, merely a new stage on the long road to the bloodless war.

In after years our great pacificator will be regarded as the man who evaded every sharp issue presented to him for decision, handing on the problems with all their thorns attached to his successor. His is no way in which to find out the truth between the assertions of the managers and the demands of the operatives on the railroads, in the coal mines, the steel mills, in any or all of the vast industrial machinery of our society.

The method is all wrong whether the men or the masters are right in their contentions. If it is wicked for nations to refuse to submit their grievances t diplomatic inquiry and adjustment, as many believe, it is surely criminal for any group of citizens in a republic to threaten all other citizens with the penalties of war and refuse to arbitrate the dispute. That must be the ultimate reaction of the public mind in his country: the brotherhoods and labor in general have lost because their leaders showed their hands so rawly in the recent crisis. The usual American citizen does not believe there is anything affecting any group of his fellow citizens that is above the processes of reason and deliberation, beyond the range of a peaceful solution. Americans do not believe in the resort to force for the settlement of disputes between nations, and much less in family affairs.

APART from the question of method, however, is the real cause of industrial unrest, beneath all pretexts, and that is the division of the profits in cooperative protection. It is an eternal question: it has been growing more acute ever since modern industrial processes superseded hand processes of production. But because the problem is chronic and acute is no justification for giving it up in despair as beyond the realm of human intelligence, which is what both managers and men are likely to do.

Some approximately just basis for the division of profits of labor can be discovered by the human mind with patience, effort, experimentation, the will to find a way. The present methods of determining wages seem to an amateur like myself empiric and crude; they consist of custom and compromise—the minimum of concession to the maximum of demand. Some more scientific method surely could be devised if the terrible urgency of the situation were universally recognized.

And the decision arrived at, without the employment of force, must be made binding on both parties. If our great industrial democracies are to endure, they must find within themselves the compelling force to prevent a lawless resort to force, to render all citizens amenable to the judgments of the proper tribunals. For peace within the gates is even more necessary than peace outside. The threat within against civil peace is more dangerous than the threat from foreign states.

Joffre to His Men.

Following is a translation from the Nouvelles de France of the proclamation of Gen. Joffre, commander in chief of the French army, to his soldiers at the beginning of the third year of war:

OUR third year of war has begun. For two years now you have endured unflinchingly the weight of relentless fighting. At every point you have foiled the schemes of the enemy. You have conquered at the Marne and stopped the onslaught at the Yser. You have fought with indomitable fierceness in Artois and Champagne, while the foe have struggled vainly for victory on the Russian fields.

It has been your successful resistance for five long months at Verdun that has destroyed the Teuton hope of winning that stronghold.

It has been your stubborn valor which has enabled the allies to forge the munitions that are being felt today along all the German front.

The moment is drawing near when our combined forces will crush the German military power.

Soldiers of France, be proud of the work you have done! You are to complete it soon. Victory is certain.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL

By Sterling Heilig

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—"Those too timid to go by tunnel will go by tube!" Such is the talk in Paris and London. "The tunnel will require ten years to excavate. The tube from Dover to Calais can be run up in four years, at a cost not above $5,000,000." Nothing could show better the imminence of the tunnel itself than this sudden story of the tube.

Any one who, before the war, had proposed a high bridge of metallic tubes across the English channel, for the pneumatic conveyance of mails, parcels, and persons, would have been laughed at as a visionary. Yes, a tube in the air—across the channel. All objections are answered by a catchword: "And the Brooklyn bridge, does it blow down? Does the Brooklyn bridge impede navigation?"

We are getting a glimpse of tomorrow.

England is to cease to be an island.

The French, of course, have always been willing. There has been a French company, law, and governmental concession since 1875, and 2,000,000 francs of actual digging was done (at Sangatte) up to 1880, under the direction of the eminent engineers, Ludovic Breton (brother of the painter, Jules Breton) and Albert Sartiaux, chief technician of the Nord Railroad company.

In England, only recently a house of commons committee, composed of sixty Liberals, sixty Conservatives, fifteen Nationalists, and five Labor members agreed ona motion, which will probably pass the house before these lines are printed:

"Resolved, That present circumstances demonstrate the great advantages which would have resulted for the United Kingdom and its allies from the existence of a tunnel under the channel. Consequently, it is important that the plans be immediately completed and the construction of the tunnel be undertaken at the end of the war, as soon as the necessary labor can be secured."

SO speaks the British parliament—which always killed the project previously! What a change in England! The French desired to pierce the tunnel as early as the great Napoleon. Charles Fox favored it. "The union of France and England," said Fox, "will make for the happiness of the world." The rest of England, to a man, opposed it. France again proposed the tunnel in the time of Napoleon III., and an English engineer, Sir John Hawkshaw, undertook to obtain a British charter, but Queen Victoria and her military advisers were hostile, and the Franco-Prussian war stopped everything. Then came the French company of 1875, in which the Rothschilds and the Nord Railroad company were interested. In 1880 the Southeastern Railway company of England came to an understanding with them and undertook to get a bill through parliament. Success was in sight. In 1886 a protocol was actually signed by France and England. Then Lord Wolsley killed the project with a word:

"A tunnel road from France to England," said Lord Wolsley, "would put England at the mercy of a French invasion. But I would have no objection to a bridge."

So, do not deem a bridge crazy.

Lord Wolsley liked it, and a world famous French engineer, extremely well known in America—I refer to M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla—taking a hint from Lord Wolsley, devised his "mixed passage," half bridge, half tunnel. In the Bunau-Varilla project the bridge would run some miles out into the channel from Dover to a species of artificial island of cement and masonry, through which railroad trains would slope down into the channel, which would continue to France. A few cannon shot could destroy the bridge in case of a French invasion.

And time has passed. England no longer fears a French invasion—"20,000 picked French troops disguised as tourists." On the contrary, it was Germany, in the heyday of her early war successes, which proposed, by her engineers, generals, and editors, to "pierce the tunnel with forced French and British labor" and "set up strong German military posts at each end, as a guarantee," once her conquest of the French and English coasts should become definitive.

That settled it for the British war office. Lord Kitchener, Lord Roberts, and Marshal French saw light, as did Paul on the road to Damascus. Immediately they put themselves on record as favorable to the tunnel—without Germans.

THE tunnel, therefore, practically exists. Its length, as traced in modern plans, seems to be some thirty miles, but not all under water. [The bee line distance from Calais to Dover is only twenty miles.] The tunnel's cost is estimated at $80,000,000 to $100,000,000, or something like $2,500,000 per mile. The piercing of the Simplon tunnel cost $1,300,000 per mile; that of the Paris railway tunnel between the Austerlitz and Orsay depots $1,650,000 per mile; and the Paris subway between $500,000 and $650,000 per mile.

As to its financial success, it has never been doubted that a railroad tunnel uniting the two richest countries and capitals of Europe would pay handsome dividends.

By the tunnel a business man will be able to go and return between Paris and London by direct trains in the same day, and yet have sufficient time to close a deal.

But by tube the business man or moving picture star can swoop across in twenty minutes, and——

THIS, I think, is the grandest part of the great story. We hear talk about the tube, but nothing of it practically gets into the papers. Is it the censor? Is it the Bunau-Varilla bridge brought up to date? It is not said so. Doubtless the Bunau-Varilla cement, masonry, and steel piles, to carry the tube bridge across the channel over the route discovered by Bunau-Varilla as having a bottom almost entirely of "Rouen chalk" (completely favorable to the sustaining of bridge piles) remain free to any engineer who chooses to utilize them.

Also a rumor connects the tubular end of the story with an English syndicate composed very much of great names out Birmingham way. We may judge that many of the tubes will come from Birmingham. Half the suspension steel cables may come from France. Some, they say, perhaps, even from America.

So, now for the tube. Imagine a high bridge of continuous smooth joined tubes across the channel—high up, not to impede maritime traffic. They are two great tubes, about one yard in diameter, for passage through them in each direction. They are suspended from pillars like lighthouses, alternating red and green lights by night and fog, and so a guide and aid to navigation rather than a hindrance.

The laying of the pillars and the suspension of the tubes belong to modes of engineering and construction already perfected by long practice. The discovery of a route of "Rouen chalk" bottom practically all the way across the channel is considered to be a decisive advantage. Modern suspension bridging will permit pillars 1,000 yards apart. This means some eighteen pillars in depths varying from forty to forty-five yards, two in fifty yards, and the remainder in depths between fifteen and thirty yards, down to ten yards close to the coasts of France and England.

Now for the pneumatic surprise. We know practically nothing except the word "pneumatic." It increases the interest. Imagine that the two great tubes have been suspended. Later they may be four for increased traffic. They are one yard in diameter.

People will have to cross inside that tube of one yard diameter. How? In cars, of course. But who can stand up in a car which is not one yard high? Or sit?

The passengers must sprawl. The passengers will lie on luxurious cushions during the entire trip of twenty minutes (some say fifteen minutes).

THE motive power will be pneumatic—i. e., compressed or liquefied air. In Paris "pneumatic," when taken in connection with "tube," is popularly imagined to have analogy with the pneumatic tubes by which the quick delivery of specially stamped letters is secured throughout the capital inside close fitting little cartridges of cylindrical form driven at great speed by compressed air in a partial vacuum.

The mistake is natural. The little cars of the channel tube are cylindrical in form; but they will not fill the tube as a projectile fills a gun barrel and they will not be driven against a vacuum.

On the other hand, a startling innovation in this sense is described. The tube being a tube and the trains passing through it with extreme rapidity, the entire mass of air in the tube can be kept moving in the same direction as the train with notable advantage. By what system of powerful air turbines this is to be done and at what speed is detailed in the story.

There is talk simply of a monorail and condensing power plants at Calais and Dover.

Will it pay? Why not? Its public will be financiers, big business men, members of parliament, king's messengers, the stock exchange world, money brokers, theatrical stars and first nighters, milord and boulevardiers, racing men and jockeys, rich women and dressmakers, moving picture managers, society people with a date for dinner, pleasure seekers starting on an impulse—in a word, the great, rich rush between Paris and London to whom time is money and ease and distinction more than money.

TERROR

By Edward A. Goldbeck

POLITICAL theory in the United States was originally religious. The Puritans, who left their country so that they might live true to their faith in a new and better world, rejected the authority of the church, its dogmas and rules, and took the Bible as the only canon for man, church, and state. From the Old and the New Testament they derived the entire system of public and private law. At least such was the theory; for the practice they brought with them English precedents, English traditions. Anyhow the Puritan commonwealth as it developed about 1620 in New England had a theocratic character. The idea that the Puritans were at any time enthusiastic defenders of political or religious individual liberty is erroneous. It is true that they fought for political liberty (more adequately: for the rights granted them) against the English government, but they stood up for corporative independence only and were not at all afraid of limiting the freedom of the individual. They were still less imbued with the notion of religious tolerance. The clergy was ruling tyrannically, supported by a docile minority of privileged citizens who had to be members of the religious community. In spite of that the Puritan constitution did not lack a democratic element. The idea of the contract is peculiar to Puritanism. The congregation exists on the basis of a contract which its members have stipulated. This conception gives a certain value to the individual, and it was the germ of democratic evolution.

THE individualistic idea that, as Goethe has it, "there is a right born with us," was strengthened in the struggle with the home government, which leaned on written law, authority, and tradition. The liberties for which the colonists pleaded originated, so they said, not from the monarch or from the parliaments, but from "the great Legislator of the universe." Therefore the consent of the governed, the contract, was to them the necessary foundation of any legitimate government.

When afterwards, in 1787, the colonies resolved to strengthen their alliance by a constitution, they abstracted from bitter experience the doctrine that every government is essentially tyrannical, and that is the reason why they carefully restricted the executive power. The only guarantee against despotism seemed to be to transfer the power to the people. "Where annual elections end, tyranny begins," said John Adams. But we must not forget that the "people" at that period were nothing but the land owners. Even Franklin, in discussing the subject of representation, said that "as to those who have no landed property . . . the allowing them to vote for legislators is an impropriety," and Hamilton formulated the same opinion still more incisively. Economical and religious limitations to the franchise created an oligarchy.

AFTER a period of aristocratism and centralization which is designed by the names of Hamilton and Adams and which was the conditio sine qua non for the upbuilding of a durable government there began under Jefferson (1801-09) the democratic reaction. Jefferson was deeply convinced of the fact that all government is an evil. According to our modern ideas he was a queer type of executive. He regarded Shay's rebellion in Massachusetts with great composure, even with complaisance. (Cf. C. E. Merriam's interesting book, "A History of American Political Theories.") "God forbid," he said, "that we should ever be twenty years without such a rebellion." While acknowledging the need of an aristocracy, he distinguished between a "natural" and an "artificial" aristocracy, this one of birth and riches, that one of parts and efficiency. And here again we must remember that this staunch democrat lived in an agricultural society, where almost everybody was interested in the maintenance of law and order because he owned some property.

To Jefferson it seemed that "such men may safely and advantageously reserve to themselves a wholesome control over their public affairs and a degree of freedom which in the hands of the canaille of the cities of Europe would be instantly perverted to the demolition and destruction of everything, public and private." The Americans, he thought, will continue to be virtuous and retain their democratic form of government as long as they remain an agricultural people; but "when they get piled upon one another in large cities, as in Europe, they will become corrupt, as in Europe." Has this prophecy miscarried? The rapid industrialization of the United States shows some concomitants which invite meditation of the great Virginian's words.

THE second and much more radical impulse came from the west. Under Andrew Jackson's presidency (1829-37) religious and economical limitations were canceled, the tenure of office was shortened, and the people elected the magistrates.

In our own time we see a third wave of radicalism rushing on. Typical of this latest assault of radicalism is the attempt to put legislation entirely into the hands of the people while eliminating or subjugating the representative element. Millions of voters think that the referendum, the initiative, the recall are necessary and will prove useful. They have no confidence in the legislators, they do not believe in their intellectual superiority, in their moral integrity, and they despair of improving the quality of the available material. So they prefer to give the power to the masses themselves, which cannot be bribed or intimidated, but, as I beg to add, can easily be hoodwinked or cheated.

This little retrospective excursion proves that we have gone from theocracy to oligarchy and from oligarchy to democracy. Where are we going now? That is, as Falstaff says, a question to be asked.

Aristotle, the founder of political theory, distinguishes three forms of government—monarchy, aristocracy, democracy. Each of these, he says, has its parekbasis, its caricature into which it is apt to degenerate. Monarchy, the rule of one, becomes tyranny (tyrannis); aristocracy, the rule of the noblest, deteriorates into oligarchy, the rule of the few; democracy, the rule of the people, is supplanted by ochlocracy, the rule of the mob.

If the wizard of Greek antiquity is right the danger which might threaten our democracy is ochlocracy, the rule of the mob, the rule of the masses.

IN Europe very many bulwarks protect society from such an evolution. Although in all civilized European countries the general tendency is democratic, the masses are still very far from ruling. In Germany there is a strong monarchy, an army which could be used to suppress upheavals, an influential aristocracy, a well to do bourgeoisie, an efficient bureaucracy, deep rooted respect for the professional classes, and other motives acting as a brake. In France there is a powerful finance, a well disciplined army which the statesmen employ against the people without any scruples (Clemenceau, Briand), a thoroughly centralized administration, an immense middle class which fears and hates Jacobinism. In England there is a clever and not unpopular aristocracy closely connected with the haute finance, an old tradition in favor of the upper classes, a natural aversion against sudden revolutionary changes. Although in all these countries the development points to democracy, the tempo will be relatively slow and the checks we mentioned will prevent the dictatorial rule of the masses within measurable time.

William B. Wilson
Secretary of Labor (a caricature)

In this country there is only one counter action against such a deluge—that is, the power of capital. We do not want to keep the masses down and we have no means of doing it. Theoretically we are committed to "government by the people" and practically no dams could be opposed to the devastating flood of ochlocracy. The masses are omnipotent and if they would organize and concentrate on certain political purposes there is nothing they could not do. (A couple of years ago the vice president of the United States hinted at this fact.) They would not even need any force; the vote would be sufficient to confiscate the fortunes of the "rich robbers" and to equalize conditions. That could be done by dint of the income tax and an inheritance tax. Officials and judges may be recalled; there is no reason why the president himself should not be subjected to recall. The constitution? The masses can change it; they are the sovereign.

Is this not a terrible condition? It would seem so to every European. The American only smiles; he is not afraid. Why not? There is but one reason—he believes that the masses are fair. The fairness of the man in the street is his dogma. The moment this faith should fail us we would have to realize that America is doomed.

But fairness, like all other human qualities, is something acquired.

THE reader may apply these remarks to the attitude which the president has adopted in the railroad matter. The brotherhoods were threatening, they refused arbitration; in other words, they refused to be fair. They said: Might before right! They blackmailed the nation. The highest executive approved what they did; he did not try to enlighten the leaders, to show them the grave consequences of their attitude; without an attempt at persuasion, without the shadow of resistance, he gave up the basic principle of our political life. This is a beginning, and it is the duty of every citizen to see that it may not be the beginning of the end.

A minority terrorized the nation. Exactly the same thing happened in the French revolution. Mr. Gompers said feelingly that a little suffering did not matter if only the cause could win. That is just what St. Just, Robespierre, and Danton thought and said. They all believed in the sacred cause.

The example of the brotherhoods is too alluring; it will be imitated. The victory was too easy; another host will be on the march soon. We are coming, Father Woodrow! Mr. Wilson has put a premium on the bandit strategy of the brotherhoods.

Of course he gave some reasons, for show. Are we really going to repeat like parrots the abominable nonsense that public opinion has sanctioned the eight hour day? Do you really believe that the economical life of an immense country can be nailed down to an all embracing formula? Are there no differences? Of course there are lots of exploited and overworked people in this country, but have you ever had a workman in your house or flat? Did you see him light his pipe, fix up his tools, slouch to and fro? Did you hear him whistle or sing or chat with the upstairs girl? Was he sweating, panting, gasping under his burden when you by chance came into the room? What he will do for you is very dubious; there is only one thing you may be sure of, that is his punctuality in vanishing at the stroke of the clock. A vague philanthropism, modern overvaluation of manual labor, and that discretion which is the better part of valor prevent us from stating aloud what everybody whispers; that in very many cases the workman's eight hour day is a six hour day and even less. When the war is over and a hysterical competition sets in on the world market, either public opinion will have to reconsider its alleged sanction or Germany and England will beat us to a frazzle.

MR. WILSON is great at indicting himself. The note in which he paternally chastised Carranza was a document whose facts would have sufficed for impeachment. In his message to congress demanding strike legislation he stated that the discussions between the railroads and the brotherhoods had been going on for a year.

What did our precious secretary of labor do in the meantime? To foresee and prevent, that is the task of an administration. Isn't it clear that the Eastland case, the Mexico policy, and the strike disaster are inseparable? Wilsonian policy is years of apathy and then a spasm of energy. Hurrah for the man who saved the country! To attain this stage effect he humiliates the presidency and congress and betrays the interests of the nation.

When the leaders of the brotherhoods were still hesitating, because they knew that their position was rather parlous, the president, the guardian of national welfare, rushed into their embrace: "Why, certainly, brethren and voters, you are right! I have not studied the question, but I realize it intuitively. What you want is more dough, but let us talk about the eight hour day. It doesn't sound so mercenary, and muddling issues is my specialty. As for those railroad barons, there is nothing left but to terrorize them. I'll stick to the principle of arbitration, and to prove it I will abandon it right away. Just in this moment, when the nation is awakening to its duties, when it is going to write 'solidarity' on its flag, you come and say: The nation be damned! What does it matter if these 100,000,000 people suffer? Give us an increase of 25 per cent! On the other side of the ocean there is a riot of self-sacrifice. Millions are gladly defying death, lifelong sickness, mutilation for their country's sake. Let us show Europe that we have learned from her heroism. La bourse ou la vie! Terror is the watchword. I am with you, and, believe me, the bigwigs will be too proud to fight!"

Where are we going? A question not to be asked, says Falstaff.

GRAIN MARKETS SUSTAIN SHARP PRICE RECESSION

Foreign News Tends to Disturb Market; Government Report Disappointing to Many.

Wheat trading yesterday was erratic, although prices ranged lower most of the day and finished practically at bottom levels. Resting spots showed declines of 2⅛@2¼c. There was heavy local selling toward the finish, influenced materially by Winnipeg advices stating that thrashing returns were coming in much better and that the movement was increasing. News from abroad was rather disturbing, and Broomhall's advices indicated that foreign buyers are inclined to limit their purchases, pending developments in the Balkans.

Selling pressure was heavy at the outset, many who bought wheat late Friday letting go because they were disappointed in the government report. Others were of the opinion that the crop losses were discounted by prevailing prices, and there was also a tendency to reduce risks over Sunday in fear of unfavorable developments.

Northwest Situation Bullish.

Analyzation of the crop situation in the northwest proved more bullish than the government figures indicate. B. W. Snow, in a special report, says that the northwest has never before faced such a condition and that the mills in that section annually grind more wheat than will be available this year. Export sales of 700,000 bu wheat were reported at the seaboard, most of it gulf wheat at big premiums. Local shipping sales were 15,000 bu. Seaboard clearances were 1,366,000 bu. Export and foreign interests were credited with buying wheat futures here yesterday.

Liverpool spot wheat was 2@3d higher, while the cargo market there started 7½@9d higher and finished 6d higher. Broomhall reports India and Australia offering more freely. Primary receipts for the week totaled 9,474,000 bu, against 11,210,000 bu a year ago. Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 250,000 bu for one day.

Corn Prices Sharply Lower.

Corn displayed pronounced weakness and closed 1½@2c lower. Most of the commission houses had corn for sale and there was also considerable local pressure, the chief selling inducement being the fact that the government report showed more corn than was generally expected. The weakness in wheat also depressed the market, as did the limited shipping outlet as a result of car scarcity. The trade had more reports from Iowa and Illinois points showing corn to have many barren stalks and poorly filled ears.

Cash corn was 2@5c lower, with shipping sales 35,000 bu. Receipts of corn here last week were 1,613,000 bu, while 547,000 bu were shipped. Seaboard clearances for the day were 91,000 bu. Liverpool spot corn unchanged. Primary receipts for the week totaled 3,720,000 bu, compared with 2,510,000 bu a year ago.

Export Interests Buy Oats.

Oats weakened in sympathy with other grains and finished with losses of ¾@1c. The trade was featured by active buying by cash interests, and it is estimated that foreigners took about 1,000,000 bu oats out of the pit. Longs sold freely, being influenced by the government report and by prospects of liberal supplies of feeding stuffs this year. Cash oats were 1c lower and the limited shipping facilities are affecting the market to no small extent. Local shipping sales were reported at 35,000 bu. Receipts of oats here this week were 3,551,000 bu, with shipments 2,311,000 bu. The seaboard reported 300,000 bu oats taken for export. Primary receipts for the week totaled 8,529,000 bu, against 8,848,000 bu a year ago.

Hog Product Is Irregular.

Provisions were irregular, with nearby deliveries of pork and lard strong and the balance of the list weaker. There was free selling of January lard and ribs by longs, also some tendency to realize on other product on the strong spots. Nearby months met with good support. An easier feeling again prevailed in the cotton seed oil market, while spot lard at Liverpool was 9d lower. Lard continued to be the most active of the list.

Trade in cash product inclined to lag a little. Local shipments of meats last week were 17,781,000 lbs, compared with 13,875,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments totaled 7,244,000 lbs, against 4,700,000 lbs last year. Hog prices at the yards weakened. Western markets received 232,200 hogs for the week, against 316,000 head a year ago.

Rye Prices Advance.

Rye was ¾c higher, with No. 2 selling at $1.24½. Receipts were 8 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

The northwest mills are likely to have difficulty in buying enough wheat to supply their needs this coming year. At all the big winter wheat markets there is a strong demand for wheat aside from the northwest demand. According to Snow, the three big spring wheat states have only about 49,000,000 bu wheat aside from durum and the amount required for seed, while the Minneapolis and country mills in the northwest grind annually about 155,000,000 bu of wheat. This indicates an urgent demand for all the offerings of winter wheat, and the movement from the west and southwest to the spring wheat centers is likely to be the greatest in the history of the trade.

War news was again a factor in the wheat market yesterday and encouraged a good deal of local selling of wheat. The report that the Germans were withdrawing men from the west front to the Roumanian frontier was one of the features that induced selling as well as reports that Russian troops were being concentrated against the Bulgarians. Balkan news developments are expected to be influential in making prices the next few weeks, and any successes for the allies would be construed as bearish. Domestic news is as bullish as any time so far, with cash premiums at record levels and no heavy pressure in any direction. However, the demand is slack at times, although foreigners are credited with buying futures on the declines.

Choice wheat at St. Louis yesterday sold at $1.70, and the general market was strong, No. 2 red being quoted at $1.65. New No. 3 hard here sold at $1.58, or 2½c over the December at the time the sale was made. Other grades were firm, and spring wheat of better grades are selling at unusually high premiums. Offerings here were moderate. Outside markets were firm relatively. Local sales were small at 15,000 bu. New York reported a good export business and there was a cargo of hard wheat worked via the gulf. Duluth also reported a good demand.

The cash corn market was weak, 2c off on better grades and 3@5c lower for the poorer corn. The demand was slack and shipping conditions are unfavorable. The break in futures caused some selling. Oats were 1@1¼c lower. Some export demand was reported for oats. Shipping sales were 35,000 bu corn and 55,000 bu oats.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 90 cars; corn, 222 cars; oats, 237 cars; rye, 8 cars; barley, 67 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 29,000 head and for all next week, 115,000 head.

Eastern interests were credited with buying 1,000,000 bu oats here yesterday in the pit.

Rosario wheat futures were ½@¾c higher with holders reserved.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—COFFEE—The market for futures opened at an advance of 2@4 points this morning, with March selling at 9.87c and May 9.68c, or about 18 points above the low level of Thursday. Brokers with cotton trade connections were moderate buyers, possibly on the continued dry weather in Sao Paulo and steady Brazilian markets. The demand was by no means active, however, and prices turned easier late in the morning under scattered trade selling and small offerings from European sources. December was relatively firm, selling up to 9.37c, but March reacted to 9.48c and May to 9.60c, with the close 1 point higher to 5 points lower. Sales, 26,750 bags. September, 9.49c; October, 9.49c; November, 9.41c; December, 9.38c; January, 9.42c; February, 9.46c; March, 9.49c; April, 9.54c; May, 9.59c; June, 9.64c; July, 9.68c; August, 9.72c. Spot firm; Rio 7s, 10c; Santos 4s, 11¼c. The cost and freight situation was unchanged. Sales of good to fair roasting Santos 4s were reported at 11.40c, London credits, late yesterday, with today's offers ranging from 11.40c to 11.70c. The official cables reported a decline of 50 reis at Rio, but other markets unchanged. Cloudy weather was reported in Sao Paulo, with temperatures ranging from 54 to 91 degrees. Bank Share Quotations.

Local bank stocks continue inactive. A good underlying demand exists, but buyers have not felt disposed to advance their bids to the asked prices. There will undoubtedly be more activity in these securities when money rates show a trifle higher.

Chicago Securities.

On the local stock exchange business was dull. There is some enthusiasm expressed over the outlook for Diamond Match and Swift & Co.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

It was officially announced that the United Motors corporation had purchased control of the Klaxon Horn company. It is announced at the same time that the Willys-Overland company will discontinue the manufacture of horns and will contract with the Klaxon company for a terms of years. The Cadillac, Buick, Olds, Oakland, Scripps-Booth, and Chevrolet companies will also execute contracts for the use of Klaxon horns.

The Chicago stock exchange has issued a notice to the effect that the federal stamp act, requiring stamps on transactions in securities, has been repealed, the change in the law to take effect Sept. 8. The committee on securities of the exchange has ruled that transactions taking place on Sept. 8 will not require government revenue stamps.

Some investigation indicates that New York private banking interests are buying the railroad stocks. These include Union Pacific, St. Paul, Atchison, New York Central, and Norfolk & Western. The margin of safety of dividends is regarded as being ample.

While there was no change reported in the price of lead by the American Smelting and Refining company, it was understood outside dealers were selling the metal at 6⅞c a pound, being an advance of near ½c over the smelting company's quoted prices.

It is announced the Prairie Oil and Gas company will take only 50 per cent of the production of the Mid-Continent field. This is taken to indicate that the decline in the price of crude oil shortly will be checked.

According to Wall street, the public is coming into the industrial list on a scale larger than at any time within recent months. Many inquiries for industrial issues are reported by commission houses.

The Pierce Oil company in the first six months of 1916 is reported to have earned net profits equal to $2 a share on the stock of the company. The par value of the shares is $25.

Seasongood & Mayer of Cincinnati were awarded the $500,000 Hamilton county new court house building bonds.

HOLIDAY CAUSES SLUMP IN REALTY FIELD

FALL PROSPECT CHEERS DEALERS IN ALL CLASSES

Poor Showing for Week Falls to Check the Optimistic Views of Traders.

HOLIDAY at the beginning of the week seems to have had a demoralising effect on the week's real estate market, as the showing was about the poorest of the year. There was practically only one bright spot in the market, apartment house property, which during the previous week made an exceedingly poor showing.

Last week's business in this class of property was the best for several weeks, and included several large transactions. There also was a free movement of lots and other cheap property, but in the way of really noteworthy transactions there was almost nothing doing outside of apartment house property.

Several Big Deals on Tapis.

There is no reason for discouragement in the week's showing, as the undertone of the market is good, if one is to judge from the reports of brokers, who tell of a generally increased inquiry for most classes of property. Several good sized deals in the downtown district are reported to be in various stages of negotiation, with excellent promise of a successful conclusion to several of them. The same is true of outside property, and the improvement is such as to encourage brokers in the belief the fall market is to be much better than seemed likely a few weeks ago.

Building operations are falling off, and as a consequence purchases for purposes of improvement are on a smaller scale. Many important projects continue to be announced, but it is evident the fall building is to be on a much smaller scale than was spring building.

Recorder's Figures Show Gains.

The figures of the recorder's office for August and the eight months of the year furnish the best possible evidence of the continued healthy condition of the market. Thus, the August transfers show an increase of 144 in the number of instruments recorded, as compared with August, 1915. In total considerations there is a slight falling off, a little over $28,000, but this is of no significance in view of the many deeds with nominal considerations.

For the first eight months of the year the showing is a remarkably good one, with an increase of 2,834 in number and $12,483,566 in total consideration, the figures being 37,045 in number with a total consideration of $82,675,703, as compared with 34,211 and $70,092,137 in considerations.

Torrens System Report.

The Torrens system makes a good showing with a total of 436 transfers for August, with a total consideration of $461,220, as compared with 377 and a total consideration of $478,846. For the eight months of the present year the figures are 3,182 in number, with a total consideration of $3,756,088, as compared with 2,783 in number and $3,679,891 in total consideration for the same period in 1915. This is an increase of 399 in number and $77,097 in total consideration.

The applications for initial registration for August were 97, with a total valuation of $48,900, as compared with 66 and total consideration of $206,300. For the eight months the number was 702, with a total valuation of $3,001,195, as compared with 527 and a total valuation of $1,985,170 for the corresponding period in 1915. This is an increase of 175 in number and $1,016,025 in total valuation.

BOOMING FALL BUSINESS SEEN BY SUBDIVIDERS.

After a dull summer the subdivision market seems to be looking up. In one subdivision alone sales aggregating about $150,000 have been reported, while in another, on the west side, it is reported there were more sales during the last five days than for the twenty prior days.

In commenting on the condition of the market and the outlook for fall real estate business W. H. Britigan & Co. said:

"Things look promising for a fine fall market now that the railroad strike is settled. The dullness of the summer months was responsible for a slowing down of the market and this resulted in a condition that was bad for the subdivider but fine for the purchaser. We need periods of relaxation to keep the market wholesome."

William E. Harmon & Co. are sending out letters to Chicago architects inviting them to enter into $500 prize contest for model houses which can be built in Harmon's new subdivision, "Englefield." After prizes are awarded plans and specifications of these original designs will be given free to any one who will build one of these houses in the subdivision within a specified time. In this subdivision there will also be given a contract which provides for a return of the money in case of purchaser's death or a delivery of deed without further payments, at the option of William E. Harmon & Co.

A. T. McIntosh & Co. are preparing to offer to the public 5,000 lots in the South Side home additions. This was the A. G. Spalding property which was purchased by Mr. McIntosh a few months ago.

One of the most attractive of the year's subdivision properties on the west side is Britigan's Parkholme subdivision, located west of Forty-eighth avenue and running from Twenty-second to Seventeenth streets. Part of this property was formerly the old aviation field. Over $100,000 is being spent this fall for improvements and more than $200,000 will be spent in the spring. This subdivision is being fully improved and it is now ready for buildings, a score of which will be started within a few days.

Leases and Loans.

There was nothing of importance reported in either leases or loans last week, the showing in both being an exceedingly poor one. There was nothing of any moment doing in the downtown district, where conditions continue to be dull as regards store, office, and loft space.

In the mortgage loan market conditions remain practically unchanged. There is not the demand for building loans there was a few months ago, but interest rates remain practically the same, 5½ per cent being the prevailing rate for the best class of outside loans, with 6 per cent for the less desirable class. In the downtown district 4½ per cent may be said to be the minimum rate, with little inquiry on the part of borrowers.

The Central Realty and Investment company have leased for the estate of Leon Mandel to the Lozier company the store at 1462-64 South Michigan avenue at an annual rent of $4,000; for the estate of Emanuel Mandel to the Central Sales company the store at 1716 South Michigan avenue at an annual rent of $3,000; for La Verne W. Noyes to the Pittsburgh Lamp and Brass and Glass company space in the Shops building for a term rent of $9,000; for the same to Ira L. Jones space in the same building for a term rent of $11,000.

$50,000 PAID FOR RESIDENCE IN NORTH DEARBORN STREET

A transaction in high grade residence property made a matter of record was the sale by H. F. Wilkins of the property at the southeast corner of Dearborn street and Burton place for an indicated consideration of $50,000, subject to an incumbrance, the purchaser also giving a purchase money mortgage for $15,000.

The Chicago Title and Trust company took title for the purchaser, whose name is withheld. The lot is 25 feet front, with a three story brick dwelling containing about fourteen rooms. Mr. Wilkins, who is vice president of the Cudahy Packing company, purchased the property about three weeks ago, and extensively remodeled the house and built a garage on the rear of the lot. It has been known as the Stanley residence.

REALTY BOARD TAKES OUTING

Members of Chicago Organization Forget Care at Flossmoor Club.

The annual outing of the Chicago real estate board at Flossmoor on Thursday was a marked success, as these functions always are. The attendance was large, almost perfect weather conditions prevailed, with the result that the attractive program of games and sports provided by President Steinbrecher and the outing committee of the board attracted an unusual number of participants.

Golf led the way with sixty-eight entries in the various contests, but the multitude of races and other contests for which most attractive prizes had been donated by Harrison B. Riley, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, A. Lincoln Green, president of the Chicago Real Estate Index company, and President Steinbrecher, attracted many entries. The Dolan Cigar shops also donated a handsome meerschaum pipe.

Go on Special Train.

Following the arrival of the special train at Flossmoor a light luncheon was served at 11:45 after which the various games and sports began. At dinner served at 6 o'clock, the prizes were distributed to the many winners, Hyde W. Perce being master of ceremonies. A pleasing incident of the dinner was the raising of $180 for the Glenwood School for Boys, whose band furnished music throughout the day, the boys also acting as caddies.

Members of the winning baseball team the "Sox," comprised Percy Jones V. J. Curto, R. W. Ohmstead, E. B. Brown, Homer H. Schneider, Ivan O. Ackley, F. Kramer, Emil H. Schintz, and Walton Bell. William Scott Bond and Hyde W. Perce officiated as umpires. The other team was composed of George L. Holmes, John P. Hooker, P. A. Odell, Fritz Steinbrecher, W. L. Hoagland, E. J. Lindahl, George F. Koester, A. J. Lapd, and O. S. Anderson.

BUSINESS PROPERTY MAKES POOR SHOWING FOR WEEK.

Business property, which made such a fine showing during the previous week, cut a poor figure in last week's business. There was absolutely nothing doing downtown, while outside property was represented by only a few transactions, which were also of a generally unimportant character.

The most important covered the property at the southeast corner of Twelfth street and Sawyer avenue, 75x118 feet, which was first sold by Morris Siegan to Abraham J. Franks for an indicated consideration of $65,000, subject to an incumbrance of $36,000. The property then was leased by Mr. Franks to Charles H. Horberg and Morris Siegan for a term of ninety-nine years from Sept. 1, 1916, at an annual rent of $3,600 for the first five years and $4,020 for the remaining ninety-four years.

The average is about $4,000, which, capitalized on a 5 per cent basis, gives a leasing value of $80,000, which is at the rate of about $1,066 a front foot and 69 a square foot. The lease provides for the construction of a building within twenty years to cost not less than $30,000, and to insure this the lessees are to deposit with the Chicago Title and Trust company cash or securities valued at $20,000

Margaret W. Rhodes of Pasadena, Cal., has sold to Adela G. Springer the property at 3033 Michigan avenue for a reported consideration of $31,000. The lot is 36½ feet front, and is improved with a building containing one store and two eight room apartments. Miss Springer owns the property adjoining on the south, being the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Thirty-first street. H. G. Howard & Co. and Charles W. Huggins were the brokers.

HIGH GRADE FLAT BUILDING IN SHERIDAN ROAD PLANNED.

Another high grade fireproof apartment building is planned for the exclusive residential district on Sheridan road near Surf street. It will be erected by John S. Holmes, who has closed the purchase of the ground, 97x143 feet, east front on the road, 100 feet north of Surf street, from Callistus S. Ennis et al, for an indicated consideration of $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000. The building, work on which will not begin before spring, will be eight stories high, according to present plans, and will contain apartments of ten rooms. Its cost is placed in the neighborhood of $225,000.

RENTING AGENTS TO MEET.

The South Side Renting Agents' association, John A. Carroll, president, will hold a dinner at the Edelweiss Garden, Sixtieth street and Cottage Grove avenue, tomorrow at 6 p. m. at which the various needs and the progress of the south side will be discussed from various angles. It is expected the aldermen of the ward and one of the south park commissioners will be present, as well as a professor of the University of Chicago, all of whom will talk. The proposed south shore drive matter will be given particular attention.

TRADING BRISK IN APARTMENTS; TWO BIG DEALS

Flat Transactions the One Bright Spot in Week's Dull Market.

As indicated elsewhere, apartment house property was the one bright particular star of the week's market, the showing made being the best for several weeks.

The south side furnished the two most important transactions, in both of which the consideration exceeded $100,000.

The most important of these covered the high grade twelve apartment building in Hyde Park place, 100 feet south of Fifty-third street, which was sold by S. M. Kline to John J. Shea for an indicated consideration of $140,000, subject to an incumbrance of $90,000. The building is on a lot 150x150 feet, east front, and the apartment contains nine rooms.

In this connection Mr. Shea conveyed to Wendell S. Merick the property in Ingleside avenue at the southwest corner of Sixty-sixth street, 198x125 feet, for an indicated consideration of $49,200, subject to an incumbrance of $2,200. The corner is vacant, while the rest of the frontage is improved with two residences and apartment buildings.

Thirty Apartment Building Sold.

The other transaction covered the thirty apartment building at 6152-6158 South Park avenue, which was sold by Nicholas Hobscheid to Wilson Critzer of Detroit, Mich., for an indicated consideration of $142,000, an interesting feature of the transaction being that it was under the Torrens system.

The building is stated to have a gross annual rent of about $13,500 and the property was sold subject to an incumbrance of $62,000. Mr. Hobscheid accepted in part payment a highly improved pear farm near Medford, Ore., valued at $40,000. The deal was negotiated by Franklin C. Browne of L. M. Smith & Bro., and the latter will look after the South Park avenue property for Mr. Critzer.

Michigan Avenue Corner in Deal.

Another big south side apartment house deal, also made a matter of record, covered the property at the southeast corner of Michigan avenue and Fifty-sixth street, lot 100x161 feet. The building, which contains twenty-four apartments of four, five, and six rooms and was erected about ten years ago, has been sold by J. W. Eggleston to Agnes M. Kelly for an indicated consideration of $60,000, subject to an incumbrance of $32,500.

WELL KNOWN MEN AND WOMEN SELECT SUMMER HOME SITES IN KENLOCH PARK

This Property (Which Contains Lake Eara) Was Long the Private Estate of a Millionaire

NOW SUBDIVIDED AND OFFERED TO DESIRABLE PEOPLE AT $350 PER LOT AND UPWARD

THIS singularly beautiful spring-fed lake, stocked with game fish, is only 38 miles from the loop. It is in the heart of the colony of wealthy men who maintain farm homes along the Desplaines River near Libertyville.

Lake Eara and the wooded hills which surround it, known as Kenloch Park, have remained secluded from the public because the whole was comprised within the estate of a nationally known millionaire.

I have bought this property and am going to make it the very finest park of summer homes in the Central West. I will sell only to the right kind of people and under severe restrictions. I will insure the maintenance of this estate forever as a private park to which only residents and their friends will be admitted.

The former owner retains a small frontage on the lake, and I have sold another frontage to the exclusive Kenloch Country Club, now being organized by wealthy men who have summer homes in the vicinity of Lake Eara. The golf links of the club are now being laid out by the famous professional—Marshall.

A few other tracts have been purchased by prominent Chicago business and professional men who constitute the Kenloch Park Committee. Future sales will be made under the supervision of this committee, which will see that no sales are made to undesirables and that restrictions are enforced.

This list of recent purchasers indicates the character of neighbors you will have if you locate at Kenloch Park:

EVANS BEATS GARDNER FOR NATIONAL GOLF TITLE, 4-3

OPEN CHAMPION TAKES AMATEUR HONORS ALSO

First Player in History to Land Both Crowns in Same Season.

LOSER A WORTHY FOE.

BY PERCY C. PULVER.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Two men came out of the west, champions, and both from Chicago to struggle for the ribbon of the links in the final grapple at the Marion Cricket club today, and when the decisive putt had been laid so close to the cup on the fifteenth green as to leave no doubt as to the outcome, one of these two was Charles Evans Jr., had emerged champion of them all.

In realizing the goal that for more than a decade he had been rainbow chasing, the genial "Chick," with a persistency that would not be denied, dethroned Robert Gardner, last year's winner, 4 and 3, over the thirty-six hole route.

Double Crown for Evans.

Now Evans wears the double crown, amateur and open. Never before, either in this country or Great Britain, has the same man won both the amateur and open title in the same season. Some few have landed both crowns, but never in the same year. Evans won the national open title at Minneapolis in June.

Yet almost as much credit belongs to the vanquished Gardner as to the victor. Although too good a sport to say anything, it is a fact that Gardner was laboring under difficulties not only with an infected finger, which had been bandaged all week, but with a sore hand as well.

Match Squared Four Times.

At no time in the match was Evans down after winning the first hole in three, a stroke under par, though on three occasions in the morning and once later on the playing through champion fighting determinedly, managed to draw up on even terms. A spurt towards the end of the early round, however, wherein Chick won three of the last four holes, enabled him to gain an advantage of three up at the halfway point and eat luncheon with a relish and a light heart.

Considering the strain the golf was good, though some of the earlier matches during the week showed lower figures. With the usual approximations, Evans had a 76 in the morning as against 79 for his opponent. During the outward half later on Gardner reached the turn in 37, two strokes better than Evans, who then stood only 1 up. At that point it looked like anybody's match.

Gardner Outdrives Rival.

Gardner generally outdrove his rival, but the difference in yardage was not enough to make any difference on the second shots. Possibly on one or two occasions at least Gardner erred in judgment, a case in point being at the seventeenth hole in the morning. This is 210 yards, and against the wind it looked almost a full bang for any one. Evans, having the honor, took his brassie and hit a sweet ball, true as an arrow and coming to rest not more than twelve feet from the flag.

"That was one of the finest shots I ever saw," remarked Jerome D. Travers, former amateur and open champion.

Gardner attempted to make the distance with a cleek, and it was apparent the way he put his back into the stroke that he was pressing, the ball being sent about hole high in the rough.

Another Slip by Loser.

Again, in the afternoon, at the twelfth, there was a cleek shot that cost Gardner dear. At the time the Hinsdale man stood only 1 down. He had the better drive and Evans, playing the odd, found the side of the ditch a few yards off the green. It looked like an awkward situation, and Gardner, who knew where Evans' ball was, should have played it safe—in other words, keep away from the out of bounds terrier on the right. That was just what he did not do. He sliced ever so slightly, but on the baked out turf the ball

EVANS TELLS OF SHOTS WHICH WON HIM TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—"I can't tell you how pleased I am to win this championship at last," Chick Evans said after winning the national amateur golf title today. "I had tried so long and failed, and they kept saying I never would win it. It was a hard match. In my opinion the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth holes went a long way towards determining the outcome. That long putt of mine at the tenth did not do Gardner any good, and under the conditions the next one I holed at the eleventh meant a good deal. Then at the twelfth he lost a chance when he put that cleek shot out of bounds."

SOX TRIM INDIANS 5-4; SEVEN GAMES IN A ROW

Drive Cleveland Hurler Off Mound as Williams Holds Foe.

NIP RALLY IN NINTH.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Lambasting Lambeth until he limped off the mound at the end of five rounds, the White Sox continued their rush toward the congested top of the American league pennant ladder yesterday by scalping Cleveland's Indians, 5 to 4, in the final game of their local set. It made seven straight cops for the Rowlands.

While the south siders were pounding their way through various obstacles, Lefty Williams held the visitors to a pair of base hits which would have netted nothing at all but for a two handled bobble in the third inning. The combination gave the Indians one run and they went into their last inning four laps behind.

For a spell Williams toyed with them and they resented it to the extent of a single, double, and triple before anybody was out, but just as the worried fans were hoping for help, the diminutive Sox southpaw took a hitch in his belt and retired the next three batsmen.

Leibold Gets Two Hits.

The Rowlands were bereft of the aid, assistance, and happy smile of Felsch, who developed a stone bruise in the combat of the day before, but Nemo Leibold filled in at center and at bat with satisfaction, making two safeties and a sacrifice besides handling everything that came in his direction.

Four runs were pounded out of Lambeth's stuff before he gave way to Fred Beebe, who was so generous that he issued three passes in one inning, giving the Sox what proved their winning tally in the sixth. A pinch hitter pushed Beebe out of the fray and let Gould finish.

Until the last round Williams had the Indians eating out of his south fist. The only one of them who could swat him dangerously was Lambeth, who mauled out a double and a wicked looking fly in two times up. Speaker fell a victim on strikes twice in succession and went hitless until the soft boiled finish.

Indians Score First Run.

At that, the Indians scored the first run. Two were out in the third before Lambeth pulled a fly past Jackson for two bases. Graney hit a nasty hopper that got away from Eddie Collins, letting Lambeth score. John Collins winged the ball home and it eluded Schalk far enough to let Graney reach third base, where he was stranded. That was all the damage done to Williams until too late to hurt.

The Sox had a tough time getting started. They got the first man up on in the first and second innings without result. Not until the fourth could they break across the plate. A boot by Kavanagh gave Jackson a life, with none out. Ness and Leibold singled to right, scoring Mister Joe and driving Ness to third. He waited there while Terry forced out Leibold, but registered when Schalk forced out Terry.

Sox Register Two in Fifth.

The fifth brought another pair of Sox counters. J. Collins led with a triple into the left field corner. Weaver popped out too short to do any good, but E. Collins dellvered a single that let Shaun trot home. Jackson singled, and the two of them engineered a double steal of third and second, which permitted E. Collins to scamper home on Ness' fly to Graney.

That was sufficient for Lambeth. Beebe started the sixth by passing Terry. Schalk flied, but Williams walked. John Collins popped out, and it was Weaver's turn to walk, but he scorned it and pulled a double over first base, scoring Terry. E. Collins took the pass intended for Buck, filling the bases, but Jackson forced him and the side out.

Four runs behind, the Indians started a noise in the ninth, when Speaker singled, Roth doubled, and Kavanagh cleaned up with a triple before a man was out. Wamby flied out far enough to score Kavanagh and put the visitors within one of a tie. That was all. Gandil skied and Coleman whiffed.

Notes

Seven straight.

St. Louis comes today.

The Rowlands gained half a lap on the Red Sox and kept step with the Tigers.

The White Sox have twenty more games to play, sixteen of them on Comiskey park.

A crowd of 15,000 was out to root for the continuation of the White Sox spurt.

The way Lambeth hit indicated that he came honestly by the first syllable of his patronymic.

E. Collins emerged with a swat average of 1,000, getting two hits and two passes in four trips to the pan.

Bob Roth started for the clubhouse after scoring in the ninth and took Graney's bulldog along with him. A wag in the grand stand yelled, "Hey, Bob, whatyer doin'; walkin' the dog?"

Joe Jackson's pants were so badly torn sliding to third in the fourth inning that he had to call for help and Manager Rowland turned bushelman long enough to pin up the rent.

Williams began brilliantly by striking out Graney, Turner, and Speaker in the first inning. He repeated on Speaker in the fourth, and also whiffed Coleman twice after the sub catcher was put in to bat for Tom Daly.

PILOT AITKEN WINS THREE MOTOR RACES

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 9.—John Aitken, piloting a Peugeot, won all three of the events of the Harvest auto racing classic today. He drove the last eight miles of the 100 mile event with a broken steering arm. Aitken led consistently throughout the race, except for a lap or two, with Eddie Rickenbacher a close second.

When the steering arm broke Rickenbacher took the lead. As he was on his ninety-fifth mile and going ninety miles an hour a rear wheel crumpled. His car whirled several times and stopped in the grass at the side of the track. Neither Rickenbacher nor his mechanician was injured. Aitken then finished with a safe lead over the others. The time was 1:07:08.04, an average of 89.44 miles an hour.

The next six were Hughie Hughes, Hoskins special; Wilbur D'Alene, Duesenberg; George Buzane, Duesenberg; Dave Lewis, Premier; Omar Toft, Omar, and George Henderson, Maxwell, in the order named. Ralph De Palma was eighth.

In the fifty mile event Hughes was less than the length of a car behind Aitken at the finish. The time was 32:40.61, an average of 91.81 miles an hour. Louis Chevrolet, Sunbeam, was third, with Wilbur D'Alene and Dave Lewis following in the order named.

The best time was made in the twenty mile event. The average speed in that was 93.08 miles, with the time 12:37.35. Howard Wilcox, Premier, was second, Chevrolet third, and Hughes fourth.

SOCCER SEASON OPEN TODAY WITH BILL AT SLAVIA PARK.

As a curtain raiser to the regular season the Chicago District Soccer league will stage a double header at Slavia park, Forty-sixth street and Kedzie avenue. Picked teams from the Bohemian and Scandinavian clubs will meet at 1 o'clock and picked teams from the south and west sides will clash at 3 o'clock.

The proceeds will go to Mrs. J. Munroe, widow of the former McDuff player. There is great rivalry between the Bohemians and Scandinavians, and a big crowd is expected.

The Primrose and International Harvesters will play this morning at 10 o'clock at Forty-eighth avenue and Sixteenth street.

The Chicago Professional Soccer league, composed of Pullman professionals, Chicago Americans, Hyde Park Blues, and Wanderers' Football club, will open its seasons this afternoon at Fifty-second and Cottage Grove avenue at 3 o'clock.

FORT DEARBORNS LAND GAME, 5-2, AT DES MOINES

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—The Fort Dearborn Bank team, Chicago amateur champions, won the first game of the series here with the Des Moines Gas team, 5 to 2. The contest belonged to the Fort Dearborns after the first inning.

The visitors acquired all their runs in the first three innings, but after the third Justice for the locals held the Bankers to two hits and did not allow a runner to reach second base.

Sullivan, who pitched for the Fort Dearborn aggregation, was hit hard, but received good support from his mates and was helped by poor base running on the part of his opponents. Failure of a Des Moines runner to touch second base while running from first to third in the sixth frame broke up a rally.

A home run by Wottell over the right field fence in the second inning won the game for Chicago. Wright singled and Pruess walked, but Pruess was forced at second before the circuit clout was made. Score:

C. A. A. Track Team Second; Sprint Events to Andy Ward

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—In the presence of 30,000 persons, undoubtedly one of the largest gatherings at a track meet in this country, westerners, especially athletes from Chicago, put up some of the best exhibitions ever seen in this section in connection with the National A. A. U. outdoor track and field meet today.

Six records went by the boards. One new American mark was established when George A. Bronder of the Irish American A. C. threw the javelin 190 feet 6 inches. Honors of the meet went to the Irish American A. C. with 38 points. The Chicago Athletic association was second with 25, and the Illinois A. C. of Chicago tied with Wisconsin for fourth place.

Ward Wins Two Races.

Little Andy Ward of the C. A. A. showed a clean pair of heels to his opponents in the century and furlong. He trotted 100 yards in even time and made the 220 yards in :21 3-5. Arlie Mucks of the University of Wisconsin won the shot put and discus throw and tied Ward for individual honors.

Sherman Landers of the Oregon High school of Illinois, competing for the C. A. A., won the pole vault with a vault of 12 feet 9 inches. Edward Knourek of the Illinois A. C. and F. W. Floyd of the Missouri A. C. tied for second place with vaults of 12 feet 6 inches. They divided the points. In the toss-up for the medal the I. A. C. athlete won.

Meyers Takes Mile Run.

The next victory for a Chicagoan was in the mile, when Ivan Meyers, formerly of De Pauw university and now competing for the Illinois A. C., won in handy fashion from the best eastern distance runners. He led from start to finish, and when the home stretch was reached he had enough stamina and reserve to stave off the best efforts of his rivals.

The next Chicagoan to win a gold medal was Dan Ahearn of the Illinois A. C., who took the running hop, step and jump. The Irishman won with leaps which amounted to 46 feet ½ inch. He easily was the class of the field.

Four Stars in Hurdles.

Four of the greatest hurdlers in the world, three of them being tied for the record, toed the mark in the final heat of the 120 yard high hurdles. They were Robert Simpson of the University of Missouri; Fred Kelly, Olympic champion; Fred Murray, national and intercollegiate champion, and Earl Thompson, a young Californian with a mark of :15.

The four hurdlers got off the mark as a man, and it was not until they had cleared the fifth obstacle that Simpson showed in front. His style carried him along at a pace never before seen on an eastern cinder path. He cleared the last hurdle a foot ahead of Kelly, but in the run to the tape Kelly cut the lead in half. The time, :14 4-5, ties the accepted world's record.

It was a meet featured by great footracing. Ted Meredith, the sensation of the year in middle distance running, was beaten by long Tom Halpin in the half mile.

COLLINS LEADS CHICAGO TRADE GOLF TOURNEY

Indian Hill Player Has Low Net in Commerce Body's Match at Muskegon, Mich.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 9.—[Special.]—Playing a consistent game over the tricky eighteen hole course of the Muskegon Country club, George R. Collins of the Indian Hill Golf club took first honors in the annual tournament of the Chicago Association of Commerce today.

Collins' card of 87—3—84 entitled him to the president's trophy for low net and the chief prize or the low gross trophy, but he was restricted to a single cup and chose the former.

The Michigan course was one of the hardest played on by the Chicago golfers in the seven years of their annual event and they were balked in attempts for low cards by unfamiliarity with the traps and bunkers. All contestants said it was a great test of golfing ability.

Collins Finishes in Morning.

Collins, who quit the game five years ago and took it up again late last summer, was the twelfth player out of the field of ninety to turn in his score, leaving a mark for all the rest to shoot at. He finished his round in the morning. The last to finish got in at dusk.

Eighteen prizes were distributed. Collins' foursome included most of the talent, as E. M. Cummins, an Indian Hill comrade, who started in the same quartet, annexed low gross honors with 88. Frank J. Bersbach, a third Indian Hill player at scratch in the same foursome, took third low gross with gross and net of 90. J. I. Oswald of Ridgemoor won the ways and means trophy with 106—16—90, being the only golfer to make the difficult twelfth hole in two. This hole is located on a plateau on top of a 100 foot sandy bluff, surrounded by woods and traps.

D. C. Robertson, Midlothian, was the only contestant eligible for the foreign trades division prize. His net of 97 was a worse score than the 95 of J. F. Nickersen, who presented the trophy, but the latter would not take his own cup.

President Wins Trophy.

Nickerson broke into the prize list by taking a special second prize. President John W. O'Leary of the association won the membership committee's trophy with 116—25—91. T. E. Dougherty of Glenview and M. N. Billings of Wheaton tied for the interstate cup, with net results of 87, but the latter won out in a three hole playoff, giving Dougherty second prize.

Jack Hoag of Glen Oak and H. M. Schraudenbach of Evanston tied with net scores of 90 for the newspaper trophy and second cup in the local trades division. Hoag won in a three hole playoff and selected the newspaper prize. Frank L. Shepard, Edgewater, won the first fellowship committee cup on a toss after a tie of 120—25—95 with George W. Rossiter of Ridgemoor.

Winners of Division Trophies.

Other trophy winners:

Civic industrial trades—Howard Elting, Exmoor, 93 net.

Local trades—Charles R. Burras, Glen Oak, 88 net; second low gross, A. S. McIntyre, Harlem, gross 90, handicap plus 11, net 101.

Second Fellowship cup—Clayton Seaman, Glen Oak, 105 net.

Second local trades—H. M. Schraudenbach, Evanston, 90 net.

Second foreign trades—J. F. Nickerson, Westward Ho, 95 net.

Second civic industrial—Harry L. Grant, Evanston, 92 net.

Second membership—Hugh Hartman, Idlewild, 95 net.

Winner 12 Above Par.

Collins' card was twelve above par. The course bothered everybody in the morning round, but many cut down their totals in the afternoon. Only the first eighteen holes counted in the prize totals.

The association golfers left 120 strong on the steamship Alabama Friday night and began the voyage back to Chicago after the celebration at the Muskegon clubhouse tonight. The association's glee club furnished music and Carl Latham was toastmaster at the annual golf dinner.

La Grange.

Second round matches were the order of competition at La Grange yesterday, with many close contests resulting. In the play for the club championship H. B. Simons will meet H. E. Spear, while B. N. Anderson and R. F. Barnum will meet in the semi-finals next week. Simons defeated C. M. Denise by 4 and 3, while Spear eliminated E. M. Hicock, 3 and 2. Anderson won from A. R. Johnston, 4 and 2, and Barnum disposed of E. T. Franklin, 3 and 2.

Riverside.

W. N. Anderson will not buy a belt, for a while at least. By registering a card of 104—30—74 in the 18 hole medal play handicap at Riverside he won the club championship belt, which will remain in his possession until the next like tournament.

EVANS DEFEATS GARDNER, 4-3, FOR GOLF TITLE

Chick First Player In History to Land Both National Crowns.

ran like a thing possessed, finally trickling beyond the boundary.

Even then he might have halved the hole, as Evans could not get better than five, but Gardner, who with rare exceptions had been putting beautifully, failed on a four footer and took six. He became two down there, and it so stiffened Chick's backbone that he proceeded to lay up one of the most daring shots of the match.

Loser Takes Long Chance.

It was his tee shot at the short thirteenth. The pin had been placed at the back end, dangerously close to trouble, yet Evans, hitting an iron with all the boldness in the world, actually landed his ball in that limited area between the flag and the edge of the green. It stayed there, thanks to that rare quality of back spin possessed by so few. When Gardner saw that shot he probably attempted the impossible and pulling to the trap, lost the hole and became 3 down, with only five holes to play.

Probably the hole that pleased the gallery most—that is, that part of the throng which managed to get near enough to see it—was the ninth in the afternoon. Evans, who a short time back had become 1 up again by winning the seventh hole in three, laid his ball a couple of club lengths from the pin. It is a trick hole, 170 yards long, with trouble on all sides, and, with Evans' ball resting comfortably where it was, it looked almost any odds that Gardner would falter.

On the contrary the 1915 champion stuck one well inside Evans' shot. It was then put straight up to Chick, who tried hard to bring off the putt, but failed by a hair. Gardner coolly rolled in a five footer for a two. And maybe the crowd did not howl.

Chick Makes Long Putt.

Immediately following this Evans rose to the occasion in a manner that must have had a good deal to do with the final outcome. His drive had been pulled to a trap at No. 10 and from that hazard brought up in a poor lie close to the bunker in front of the green. Gardner got home nicely on his approach and when Chick on his third rolled some thirty-five feet past the hole it looked as if the match would be halved once more. Right there Evans brought off his only long putt of the day, the ball going through true as a die, straight into the cup. Gardner, failing on a putt of half that length, had to accept a half.

Not the least inconspicuous member of the gallery was the mother of the winner, who followed the golfing fortunes of her son throughout the entire battle. She shared in the congratulations and attention that fell to the lot of her boy when he was presented with the golf championship medal by Frank L. Woodward, president of the United States Golf association, on the green where he clinched the match. Gardner, Corkran, and Guilford at the same time received runner up and semi-finalist medals, respectively.

Large Gallery Sees Match.

The setting for this most extraordinary of all golfing feats was fully worthy of the event, for the largest gallery that has witnessed an American golf match since Ouimet defeated Ray and Vardon in the famous playoff at Brookline in 1913 was present.

There was hardly a cloud in the sky and only a slight wind blowing when the players teed off and conditions improved if anything during the afternoon round. There was a gallery of fully 8,000 along the course when the players drove off and it increased all day until close to 10,000 were present for the finish on the thirty-third green. There may have been larger galleries in the past, but certainly none more brilliant and picturesque.

The thousands of women with their bright colored sweater coats and the men in fancy golfing toggery presented the effect of a kaleidoscope as they scrambled or ran from tee to green with or ahead of the players.

DETAILS OF TITLE GOLF MATCH

MORNING PLAY.

FIRST HOLE. Par 4. Gardner outdrove Evans thirty yards. Evans pitched within four feet of the pin. Gardner ran beyond the hole, was too strong in getting back, and so lost. 5—3.

SECOND HOLE. Par 5. Each played practically without a flaw, so it was two fives.

THIRD HOLE. Par 4. Both got fine drives. Evans pitched into the trap at the left. Gardner ran up, just short of the green. Evans chipped up within a foot of the hole. Halved in 4.

FOURTH HOLE. Par 4. Evans on his first drive went out of bounds, while Gardner went like an arrow 275 yards. Evans in driving his second from the tee hooked in half behind a sand pit, but had no great trouble in reaching the green on his next. He was so far away, however, it was easily Gardner's, 5 to 6. All square.

FIFTH HOLE. Par 5. Evans outdrove Gardner. The latter got away a fine second that landed in the edge of the rough. Gardner then went into the brook, dropping back at one stroke penalty. Evans, instead of reaching the green, was among the sandy hummocks to the left and played out poorly Gardner pitched over the water, but was far away from the green. Evans holed a medium length putt for the hole in 6 to 7. Evans 1 up.

SIXTH HOLE. Par 4. Their drives were equal. Gardner overran on his second and then was too strong in getting back. Evans lost his advantage to the green by a weak putt. Then he missed his next putt, which was under four feet, and with it the hole, 5 to 4. All square.

SEVENTH HOLE. Par 3. Evans appeared to have slumped back to his indifferent putting. Evans was in a pit, while Gardner laced out a tremendous drive that carried him far beyond the green. He got back finally, laying his ball dead with rare skill. Evans scooped from the sand so well as to be roundly applauded. Gardner missed a fine putt that barely carried his ball past the cup's run. Evans sank his putt of a yard or more for the hole in 3 to 4.

EIGHTH HOLE. Par 4. Evans hooked in the rough. Gardner was straight, but a bit short, only to get into a ditch on his second, but he escaped. Evans was shy of the green and then short in running up, but halved in 4 by a good putt.

NINTH HOLE. Par 5. —Gardner sliced away up the steep side hill among the trees. He played out beyond the green, missing his next, while Evans was dead to the cup. Gardner picked disgustedly. Neither played out there. Evans 2 up at the turn.

TENTH HOLE. Par 4. Gardner went into the sand hills on his drive. Evans had a fairly good drive and a better second. Gardner, in escaping from the hummocks, went into a trap, but escaped so skilfully as to get out, and picked up. He had a good lie, but the sand was heavy and deep. Gardner, 5; Evans, 6. All square.

ELEVENTH HOLE, par 5—Gardner outdrove Evans by twenty yards, and when their balls came to a rest on the green they were less than a foot apart. They had uphill putts and Chick was short by a foot. Gardner overran the hole and he missed his second. He missed coming back and then conceded the hole. Evans, 4; Gardner, 5. Evans 1 up.

TWELFTH HOLE, par 4—Both players carried the quarry with their irons and reached the green. Halved in four. Evans, 1 up.

THIRTEENTH HOLE, par 3—Gardner drove to the rough. Gardner's approach passed the hole and he missed a putt for 3. Evans, 3 to 4. Evans, 2 up.

EIGHTEEN HOLE, par 4—Gardner drove to the rough and just short of the green, while Evans was on in two, twenty-five feet away. Gardner overran the hole and he missed a long putt for a 4. Evans down in two putts, winning 4—5. Evans, 3 up.

AFTERNOON PLAY.

FIRST HOLE. Par 4—Both were on in two. Evans' approach putt was nine feet over the cup and he missed for a four. Gardner won, 4 to 5. Evans 2 up.

SECOND HOLE. Par 5—Both made tremendous drives and were up in two; remarkable play. Gardner laid his approach putt within a foot of the pin. Evans' third hit Gardner's ball and stopped near the cup. Halved in 4.

THIRD HOLE. Par 4—After long drives Evans was in a trap to the right and Gardner on the far edge. Evans out was ten feet over the hole, and Gardner laid his approach putt dead and won, 4 to 5. Evans, 1 up.

FOURTH HOLE. Par 4—Gardner's drive was in the rough, leaving a difficult second. Gardner topped his approach, but the ball reached the green and rolled into a trap. Evans was on in two. Gardner's third went over the green into the crowd, which surrounded the green thirty deep. His fourth he laid dead. Evans' putt was short and he missed his fourth. Gardner sunk his fifth and conceded Evans' putt, halving in five. Evans, 1 up.

FIFTH HOLE. Par 5—Evans sliced his drive into a pit, while Gardner's was straight. Evans was seventy yards out on his second, while Gardner drove a screamer to the edge of the brook. Evans' mashie shot was pulled to the rough. His chip shot was on the green twenty-five yards beyond the hole. Gardner overplayed the green on his third, but Evans was away. Gardner chipped close and won, 5 to 6, squaring the match.

SIXTH HOLE. Par—They reached the green on their seconds. Gardner taking three putts and losing, 5 to 6. Evans, 1 up.

SEVENTH HOLE—Par 3. Gardner topped his tee shot while Evans was on. Evans putted poorly and struck five feet from the hole. Gardner's second landed on the green and his third went to the sight of the cup. Evans winning, 3—4. Evans, 2 up.

EIGHTH HOLE—Par 4. both pitched beautifully over a dangerous trap to the green and halved in fours.

NINTH HOLE, par 3.—Evans drove first five feet from the pin. Gardner then did the wonderful trick of going inside, Evans' ball being within three feet of the hole. Gardner won, 2—3. Evans, 1 up.

TENTH HOLE—Par 4. Gardner was on in two and Evans in three as the latter drove into a trap. Both lay about twenty-five yards from the hole. Evans holed a wonderful putt and halved in 4.

Eleventh hole, par 4. Both drove just short of the green and their chip shots were on. Gardner rimmed the cup and they halved in 4. Evans, 1 up.

TWELFTH HOLE, par 4. Evans' second caught the edge of the creek and in the rough. Gardner's second was out of bounds and his third landed on the green. Evans made a wonderful recovery, bringing well up on the green. Gardner's long putt failed by five feet. Evans won, 5—6. Evans, 2 up.

THIRTEENTH HOLE, par 3. Evans was over and Gardner was in a trap at the left. Gardner was on in two and took two putts. Evans laid his second close and won, 3 to 4. Evans, 3 up.

FOURTEENTH HOLE, par 4. Both were on in two and halved in four. Evans, 3 up.

FIFTEENTH HOLE, par 4. Gardner was in the rough on the left and Evans on the right. Gardner failed to get out on his second, but Evans got home. Gardner overplayed the hole to the edge of the green on his third, but he rolled his fourth within a foot of the hole. Evans played his up dead and Gardner grasped the hand of Evans in acknowledgement of defeat.

HUSKY FRESHIES TO GIVE MAROONS STRONG ELEVEN

Little Gloom at Midway This Fall, with Veterans Back and Promising Recruits.

BY MAROON.

There is no gloom on the Midway this fall. As the gridiron seasons roll around each year it has been customary for "bear stories" to emanate from Stagg's training camp. There are two reasons why prospects forbid the annual September gloom stories from the Midway. No conference team lost fewer men by graduation than Chicago, excepting Minnesota. In addition to the large number of veterans, the freshman team of last year is one of the best that the south side school ever had, and in weight and height it possessed a line that dwarfed the varsity forwards last fall.

Let the figures tell the tale of the line as Midway fans see the Maroon forward wall for the opening game:

	Weight.	Height.
Watson, right end	185	6 ft. 2 in.
Higgins, right tackle	210	6 ft. 3 in.
Gorgas, right guard	205	6 ft. 2 in.
Fisher, center	185	6 ft. 1 in.
Smith, left guard	185	6 ft. 1 in.
McPherson, left tackle	196	6 ft. 1 in.
Townley, left end	185	6 ft. 1 in.

Looking for Quarter Back.

For the first time in many years Stagg will have two men for nearly every position, and in most cases two men of almost equal strength. The big problem seems to be to find a quarter back to fill the vacancy left by the graduation of Capt. Russell. "Pete" did not have the opportunity to shine last fall individually as in past seasons, but he handled the team in masterly fashion, and was the cog around which Stagg used his double backfield shift. It didn't seem to make any difference if Stagg changed his backs every quarter, for Russell got a smooth running trio out of any three of them.

There are several promising men for quarter back, but none who has shown necessary ability in directing the attack. Pershing looks like the best bet, but Agar, Gordon, and Graham are possibilities. All are veteran half backs except Graham, the former U. High star, who was kept off the gridiron last fall by an injury suffered in pole vaulting.

Possible Back Field Lineup.

The probable back field, according to early dope, places Pershing at quarter and Norgren, Cahn, Agar, and Gordon, veterans of last year, and Graham and Ranich, last year's freshman stars, for a triple half back shift. Schafer, a fair fall back of two years' experience, is without rival for the fourth position. "Warhorse" Parker of the basketball team should prove a good understudy.

In the line Stagg has Fisher, Brodie, and Capt. Jackson, veterans. The first pair are sure bets at guard and center, while Capt. Jackson may be shifted to end, as Brelos and Townley are the only other wing candidates. Gorgas, McPherson, Kimball, Bondzinski, and Higgins are five giants who will fight for the remaining three positions. All except Bondzinski were members of last year's freshman team.

GRIDIRON HOPES OF PURPLE HIGH AS START NEARS

Murphy Has Strong Material, but Men Lack College Experience.

BY EVAN STONE.

Northwestern optimism is an old story, but there really is football optimism in the north shore camp this season. Northwestern adherents see their squad starting the season with men who may be called football material without stretching the term. Fair critics assert the candidates are far superior to any that Northwestern has had since football was resumed as a Purple sport and that, barring number, Coach Murphy will have men equal in football ability to some of his opponents.

The names of many of the sophomore candidates are familiar, but one weakness must not be overlooked—the men will be new to college football.

Unofficial, or conditioning practice, will begin tomorrow. Coach Murphy, with an honesty equaling that of the other conference mentors, will observe the antics of his men from "somewhere in Evanston." Capt. Driscoll expects to lead a squad of twenty-five out for the initial warming up.

Official Drill Next Week.

Official practice will start a week later, with Murphy in charge. The rooters are speculating on the chances of Elmer McDevitt's return from the border, where he is an officer in the Minnesota guard, in time to coach the line. McDevitt has assisted Murphy during the last two years and has won respect by his coaching ability.

Fifteen "N" men are scheduled to return. Of these perhaps only Capt. Driscoll and Bob Randolph are sure of regular berths. Other veterans who will make the youngsters hustle to beat them out are: Zanger and Ulrich, guards; Rose, Underhill, Williams, and Wilmarth, backfield; Crane, end, and Baby Smith, who probably will be shifted to a guard position. Smith is reported to have grown some during the summer. He weighed 230 pounds last year.

Star Sophomores Available.

The sophomores from whom the Purple plans to draw its strength number eighteen. Elroy Cigrand and Tub Koehler, erstwhile high school stars at Aurora and Wendell Philipps, respectively, lead the list for backfield jobs, while Putnam, Daley, Jesse Randolph, Sidney Bennett, and Martin Lynch are leaders for places in the line. Two youngsters, both with high school reputations, will contend for the quarterback position. Brightmire, a diminutive lad from Indiana, and Ellingwood, a product of Evanston High, are the quarters. Capt. Driscoll probably will shift to a backfield position if either of the sophomore candidates can fill his last year's berth acceptably.

Other promising men from last year's freshmen team are: Olin, Johnson, Brumback, Osgood, and Mueller, ends; Hutch, Bradt, and Huristone, halfbacks, and Schmidt and Walpole, linemen.

Altogether Coach Murphy expects a squad of forty men out before the season opens with the Lake Forest game.

No "Mark Up" in Price

The Truth Made Men Stop and Think

A RECENT statement by the President of the Chandler Motor Car Company on "motor car values and motor car prices" occasioned more searching thought on the part of prospective motor car purchasers than any other announcement that has been made by the Automobile Industry this year. It came as a revelation to many who had considered themselves well informed.

That statement led to the purchase of Chandler Type 17 Sixes within the past three weeks by hundreds of men who had been attracted, by extravagant advertising or otherwise, to some one of the several "marked up" cars in the medium priced field.

If you read this statement by the President of the Chandler Company, as you probably did, you know what we mean by "marked up." You know that in recent months sums ranging from $80 to $200 have been quietly tacked on to the selling prices of these Chandler competitors.

The explanation of the marked up prices has been the abnormal conditions, said to exist and really existing in a degree, in the motor car material market.

But you know, too, that the Chandler car has not been marked up.

And so you can still buy this great car—greatest of all the Sixes—at the same price established eighteen months ago, long before the war had made any effect on the material markets. And bear this in mind, that every change made in the Chandler car in all these past months has been a refinement and an improvement. Every addition to it has represented increased manufacturing cost. Not a single thing has been cut out of the car.

Bear in mind that today, while others are asking you to add eighty, a hundred, a hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars to your check, $1295 plus freight buys you this big luxurious highly refined Chandler—this Chandler with the marvelous motor, the exclusive Chandler motor which has been developed and perfected through four years of intelligent manufacturing and four years on the road in the service of thousands of Chandler drivers.

Bear in mind that the Chandler is still featured by its Bosch Magneto ignition—which others leave off, even the marked up cars, because it costs so much more; still featured by its solid cast aluminum motor base extending from frame to frame—where others use cast iron; still featured by the sturdiest, simplest chassis; still featured by ball bearings in rear wheels, differential, transmission and elsewhere, which helps make it the lightest running car on the road.

Bear in mind that in this Type 17 Chandler you get the exclusive Chandler full floating rear axle with its silent spiral bevel gear differential. And that you get the highest standard of carburetion that the market affords; Gray & Davis separate lighting and starting system; big double external and internal brakes, which stop the car at the instant of command and hold it safe on any grade.

Bear in mind that you get all of these highest grade, high priced features and scores of others which, together with Chandler workmanship, go to make up a car the superior quality of which cannot be questioned in comparison with the quality of any one of the many "marked up" cars.

And remember, too, that in the Type 17 Chandler you are offered the beautiful tonneau cowl bodies which preceded the mid-summer "new models" of other makes by seven months time.

In the Chandler you get mechanical excellence, luxury of body design, trim and finish, at the minimum of purchase price.

If we asked you to pay $100 more or $200 more that wouldn't make the car a bit better.

In considering your purchase of a new car, think for yourself.

Measure what Chandler offers you along side of what any other car in the medium priced field offers you, regardless of price, and we think we know what your decision will be. Measure it along side of what any other car offers, keeping the marked up price in mind, and we know what your decision will be.

Oldsmobile

Light Eight (F. O. B. Lansing) $1195

What do YOU think of a car so perfect in mechanism—so simple in operation—so sure in performance that it enabled a comparatively inexperienced woman driver to achieve this record:

Miss Amanda Preuss of Sacramento, Calif.—unaccompanied and unassisted—toured from San Francisco to New York in her Oldsmobile Eight in 11 days 5 hours and 45 minutes!

Including detours, this meant a trans-continental trip of 3520 miles. Miss Preuss averaged 313.18 miles per day. Her average per gasoline gallon was 14 miles—despite terrific handicaps of the dreaded desert trails—and the rain-ruined roads encountered through the Rockies!

Miss Preuss will be here to greet you at this Factory Branch Monday and Tuesday, September 11 and 12.

Meet her—see the car that made this wonderful record.

It is simply the same stock model of the Oldsmobile Light Eight De Luxe that you can secure for $1195—f. o. b. Lansing. An eight-cylinder car weighing less than 2800 pounds, yet a car that easily holds all roads at all speeds.

A sumptuous car—one that will gratify the pride of possession of your wife and daughter. A car so astonishing in performance that it will satisfy all that you have ever longed for in a car.

Yes—we wish to demonstrate this Oldsmobile Light De Luxe to you. When—and where—shall we call?

PERRITT BEATS PHILS, 3-1, 3-0; 37,000 AT TILT

Giant Hurler Allows Only Eight Hits as Mates Bat In Victories.

New York, Sept. 9.—Pitcher Perritt gave a wonderful exhibition when he defeated the Philadelphia champions in both games of a double header, 3 to 1 and 3 to 0. The double defeat tumbled Philadelphia from the lead.

Perritt permitted only eight hits, three of which were bunched in the sixth inning of the first game, when the champions scored their only run.

According to a statement made by President Hempstead, the double header drew the largest paid attendance at a league game in this city. Hempstead said the club never had been sold out so completely. The crowd was estimated at about 37,000. Scores:

HER EYES ARE WITH HER THOUGHTS, AND THEY ARE FAR AWAY.

Reproduction of a Painting by Calderon.

Every week The Sunday Tribune will reproduce in four colors on this page one of the world's most famously beautiful paintings. There will be a brief biography of the painter and a story of the painting. Herewith is reproduced another in the series.

Her Eyes Are With Her Thoughts and They Are Far Away. By P. H. Calderon, R. A. (1833-1898). In the Collection of Mrs. George Holt.

By Louise James Bargelt.

A GREAT deal of English painting, like English poetry, has a tender, feminine trait. The English have solved the secret of interpreting innocent feminine beauty. Their artists frankly prefer women and children to men and the public adore young maidens in all their fresh, pure witchery.

Calderon is no exception, but rather an exaggeration, of this national British preference. He is a conventional academic artist in whose blood, during the later years of his career, much effeminate classicism was infused. Therefore too often his pictures lead one into a bewilderingly seductive region of typical English girls who are neither gay nor sad, nor of today nor of yesterday, nor of modern nor of ancient times.

This one of a girl in white whose eyes are lost in following after the wishes of her heart, is among his best. There is a piquant, spiritualized beauty in her face and form. She is standing on the verge of womanhood. She has not yet experienced either the great joys or bitter disappointments of life. It is passing by her like a summer's day. She is dreaming it, not living it, and finding delicious joy in its mystical sweetness. Her pensive revery pervades the whole picture and the pale method of Calderon's painting, esthetic in its delicate attenuation of color, carries out its general purport.

Calderon is the favorite of sweethearts. If he draws at times too perilously near the boundaries of candied genre painting, he manages to preserve, in this instance at least, a distinctive noblesse. It was not until the later years of his life that he turned his attention to classic subjects. He wanted the opportunity they afforded him for flesh and drapery painting, and all of his pictures of this period possess a certain silky softness of texture.

Calderon was born at Poitiers in 1833. He was the descendant of the great Spanish poet Don Pedro Calderon de la Barca, the literary genius who is accredited with having written more plays than any other man of any time or country. He was not 20 when his name first appeared in the catalogue of the Royal academy, and in 1864 he was elected an associate of the academy. Three years later he was elected to full membership and to the keeper of the Royal academy in 1887.

It was his painting, "Broken Vows," which really decided the question for him as to whether or not he could pursue the profession of artist. His model for the picture was the girl he married, and its success made his marriage possible immediately upon its acceptance.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

The Vicarious Adventurer

by Horatio Winslow

She Was Dying Because She Had Lost Interest in Living. It Was All on Account of a Love Affair, an Unhappy One, but Finally She Found One That Was Happy—and She Lived.

OF the altogether unusual state of things that brought into the darkened room Hampton Fisk, unwilling but resigned, and that hurried him out upon the street, a sworn Vicarious Adventurer, I shall now tell you. With a parting word her mother closed the door and left them together. What he saw when his eyes became accustomed to the veiled light was a white face circled with dark hair and almost lost in the pillows. Below the wavy hair fallen over the forehead, a pair of strangely bright eyes peered up at him.

"Isn't this different?" she said. "I always counted on meeting you again, but not quite in this way."

"Again?" he repeated stupidly; for, as he looked down at her, pity for her plight began to be tinged with an active pity for himself. He had never seen any one quite so appealing.

"You've forgotten, of course, but when I was just a teeny little thing and you and Jimmy were graduating, and you were such a big man that commencement——"

"Of course I remember," he interrupted hurriedly, "only—well, you see—"

She laughed with a gayety that made him forget her weakness.

"You don't remember me at all. I was just a little girl in short dresses and you were surrounded with beautiful and admiring ladies and all that, and I swore to myself that I'd grow up and meet you again—and here it is at last, and I'm dying. Isn't it—different?"

"You're not dying," he asserted with an attempt to be positive.

"I am, too, dying—or, at least, I can't live, and that's the same thing, isn't it? Everybody knows it. I hear them say so when they think I'm asleep. Even Dr. Beye says so.

"I don't believe you are."

"But it's true, and—and I've always wanted to know you ever since you and Jimmy roomed together at college, and you never came to see us. You were horrid.

"But——"

"Yes, you were horrid. But talk to me. Tell me something. Give me something to think about. You see, they say I positively must forget all about—Europe."

He leaned forward in his chair, puzzled.

"Must forget about Europe? Why?"

"O, for reasons. Tell me about yourself. Haven't you had a dandy career, though! Before the mast, and then in the constabulary in the Philippines! Did you have hairbreadth escapes? That's what I've always wanted—hairbreadth escapes. Tell me about some of them, please."

With this for an invitation he plunged head first into a recital of all that had been gay colored in his life, while she listened with glowing eyes.

"Isn't that fine! If I were only a boy! And now I'm not even a live girl. Of course Jimmy told you all about it. Poor old Dexter put his foot in a hole, off I went, and here I am. Operation Wednesday and then—that's all. If I'd only had a chance to do something in my life, something adventurous—to rescue somebody in distress or—or something like that! Just once!"

In a slow way an idea was taking shape in his brain.

"Look here, Alice——"

"That's splendid; do call me Alice. Mother and I have always called you Hamp here at home, even if we haven't known you. And you see I haven't time to get acquainted with many more people."

He hitched his chair nearer.

"Alice, I've a bully idea."

"Tell me quick."

"Well, it's just this: Jimmy said you had—well, sort of lost interest in things generally, and that Wednesday you wouldn't get well—that is, as soon as you ought to—because you didn't seem to care—er—what happened."

"That's it exactly!"

"Then see here. Wouldn't it make you more attached to life if you could do something in the adventure line yourself—just once?"

"I—here?"

"Something not altogether by yourself. I don't mean that. But suppose you should let me be your arms and legs? You'll be the instigator of the enterprise; you'll fit out the expedition and I'll carry it through."

In her voice was a fresh shade of interest.

"Wouldn't it be exciting! But what can we—"

"You!"

"Well, what can I do, then?"

"What do you want to do?"

She bit her lips in thought. "Hamp, you've opened a new world. It will be simply the best ever. And do you really want to?"

"Want to? Why, I've been spoiling for something to do ever since I hit civilization again. Just give me a start, that's all."

"Well, then, we—I, that is—I'm going to rescue somebody from something."

"Anybody in particular?"

"No, just somebody—somebody in distress. You find him, and— O, how foolish all this is!"

He stood up, a set, serious look on his face.

"No, it isn't foolish, Alice. You want to adventure and save somebody and you're going to do it, and you'll find out all about it tomorrow night—Tuesday."

She laughed softly.

"It's glorious. And you won't let yourself get hurt?"

"Not if I can help it. And I'm going to start right now."

She reached out a feeble hand to him.

"It's a go, Hamp. The Adventure company, limited, is under way. Rescue him nicely now, and romantically—O, very romantically. Good-by, my Vicarious Adventurer."

Downstairs Brother Jimmy was pacing the length of the front hall. The Vicarious Adventurer caught him by the arm.

"Jimmy, I won't be able to take dinner with you. I know we haven't had a good talk for about seven years, but there are lots of days ahead, and maybe you don't feel like talking now. You see, I've got an important mission under way for your sister—very important. See you tomorrow." And without further explanation he hurried out to the street.

Followed a moment of embarrassed silence.

As he passed the corner the absurdity of his task and the practical impossibility of accomplishing it struck him so suddenly that he halted in his tracks.

"But I've got to try," he argued to himself as he put his legs in motion again. "I've got to have a good try at it because—because I'd make a triple plated idiot of myself any time for that girl. She's a—a wonder. But how to carry this through, that's the question. Whom do I know in New York, anyhow? Bob Anderson! No-o, he won't do; he wouldn't understand. There's Danny McGraw, that little devil I helped out in Manila; he's running a lunch counter somewhere on Twenty-third. Now, if anybody can get me started it's Danny. If I can find his hangout——"

Boisterous were the greetings which little Dannie McGraw extended to the man who had helped him out in Manila, but his face grew puzzled as the Vicarious Adventurer explained (with some omissions) his needs.

"Yuh can't do it, Hamp," he concluded decisively. "Yuh can't find things like that in N'York. But lookahere, won't a good story do just as well? A good story that ain't true goes better than a bum one that is—ai..'t I right, Hamp? Well, now, listen here: There's a guy setting over there drinking coffee I talk to sometimes. He's a story writer—almost. He's really a plumber, but he pretty near gets his stories in the big magazines. And when it comes to imagination—say! Now, yuh go over to him—I'll give yuh a knockdown—and——"

. . . . . .

On Tuesday afternoon she awaited the Vicarious Adventurer, propped a little higher on the pillows. It seemed to him that her voice was flushed with a livelier tone and that she was gayer and stronger than on the day before. But she did not give him a chance to ponder long on these thoughts.

"Did you?" she whispered the moment her mother left the room.

"I did," said the Vicarious Adventurer, "that is to say, you did."

"O, tell me about myself. What did I do? And who was it? Was he nice?"

"He was a young fellow, say 24. Good looking, and——"

"What color hair?"

The Vicarious Adventurer had not foreseen this; nevertheless, he answered glibly:

"He had red hair. Not flaring red, you know, but——"

"Just a nice, comfortable red. And blue eyes, of course. And was his nose disgracefully regular?"

"Not exactly," he humored her. "It twisted just a little."

"How nice! Red hair, blue eyes, a nose just the wee bit twisted. I knew a boy once who——. When did I see him first?"

"You saw him on the Bowery, in a place called Beefsteak John's. He was about to be kicked out."

"Why was he going to be kicked out?" Her voice quivered with pity. "I hope I didn't let it happen."

"I should say you didn't. You just put your hand in your pocket and——"

"How nice to have pockets!"

"—and pulled out a great big dime and paid for the meal he couldn't pay for."

"And what then?"

"H'm!" said the Vicarious Adventurer. "Then—then he burst right out crying."

"I shouldn't like that."

"It only lasted a minute, and then you patted him on the back and said, 'Buck up, old scout; things aren't so bad they can't take a turn!'"

"And what did he say?"

"Well, he told the whole story. He hadn't had any food or sleep for two nights, and he didn't care what happened to him. 'But what's wrong?' you asked. 'You look as though you were the goods and you talk the same way. Why are you down and out?'"

"Did he tell you—me?"

"You just bet he did. That confiding way of yours turned the trick in a minute. He said there was a girl."

"O, bother girls!"

"That's just what you felt like saying to him, of course, but you didn't. There was a girl, he said, and they were to be married. He was making good in some business when all of a sudden a German baron appeared on the scene."

"Just like a novel!"

"Exactly. The girl's aunt favored the baron. This aunt is the only relative the girl has, and she worked on the poor thing somehow till the engagement was broken and the poor fellow forbidden the house. He fell sick and lost his job; spent all his money, you see; worked around till he was on the ragged edge of nervous prostration because the girl wouldn't even read his letters. He's certain that the aunt has been up to some devilment."

"Then what?"

"Well, you said, 'I know what will fix you, old boy. You need a good meal and a bath and a suit of clothes and some sleep. Then we'll begin to do things.' So you bought him the first three and paid for his room at a decent hotel, and then——"

"And then?" queried the sick-a-bed girl eagerly.

"Then the horrifying truth came out. The girl is to be married to the baron on Wednesday morning."

The Vicarious Adventurer leaned back complacently in his chair.

"My goodness! I hope I didn't sit back and fold my hands the way you're doing now."

"I should say not. You got her address, and you hotfooted it right up to her home. She was going to some function or other, but you said you had an important message—and you got by with it."

"How did she look?"

"O, she was a swell one, all right."

"But I talked right up to her."

"You bet you did. Still, you were diplomatic about it, too. But it wasn't any use. She said, 'I don't care to see him, and I shall not see him. I do not wish to explain because there is nothing to explain.' But as she left you, you felt that, secret'y, way down in her heart, you know, she loved him as much as ever. And it was that aunt and her doings that kept her from making up with poor Reddy."

"Who?" The color had gone out of the face on the pillow.

"Reddy—the fellow you were rescuing, I mean. The girl——"

"What a cat she is! I'm glad he isn't going to marry her."

"But he is."

"But he can't."

"But he can, and you're going to help him do it. You saw him this morning. He's been around to his old firm and they haven't found anybody to fill his place, so he starts in again next week. That settles the financial end of it. And Reddy is just as sure as you are that if he could once talk with her everything would come out all right. And you're going to arrange that interview."

"How?"

"Don't know yet. But you are going to do it tonight. There may be trouble. You don't mind mixing it a bit if the worst comes to the worst?"

The face on the pillow glowed with anticipation.

"I just love a fight."

The Vicarious Adventurer rose to his feet.

"Tonight's the big night, and tomorrow——"

"You'll come tomorrow morning, won't you, Mr. Vicarious Adventurer? Because tomorrow afternoon——"

He caught her hand, and motived by a sudden impulse carried it to his lips.

"Tomorrow morning it is. You'll hear about the good turn you've done Reddy before you sniff the ether, and after you wake up again you're going to have a lot more adventures—a lot more."

At the street door he found Jimmy waiting him.

"It's wonderful, Hamp, how that talk of yours has fixed Alice. I'm beginning to hope that maybe she'll say to herself she wants to live, wants to live in good earnest. Damn that——" He stopped abruptly.

"Damn whom, Jimmy?"

"O, nothing, Hamp. But, old man, you know that she's got to live. We've come to know each other so well lately. She was always so jolly and laughing and full of fun. We've got to pull her through."

"She's going to live," said the other through his set teeth.

The session that evening between the Vicarious Adventurer and the ingenious plumber was long and interesting. At its conclusion the Vicarious Adventurer cold bloodedly ripped his coat near one pocket, and with fortitude worthy of a great artist projected a dark bruise under one eye. After this preparation he spent the night in a vain quest of sleep, and when the slow morning hours had dragged to 10 he sought the sick girl.

The atmosphere of tensity and gloom which overhung the household was not lightened when her mother said: "You—you won't stay long, will you, Hampton? I know she wants to talk to you, but she's my little girl, and perhaps after this morning I won't have the chance to—to——" She broke down utterly.

But Alice herself was in a most sprightly mood.

"What happened?" she called eagerly. "What did you do? O, my Vicarious Adventurer, was there a fight? A real fight?"

"There was—a dandy! You see, you had to take a desperate chance."

"And so——"

"And so you said: 'See here, Reddy, there's just one thing to do. We'll fit you out as an expressman carrying some American Beauties to her, and insist on her signing for 'em personally.' Great! Everything went out of sight till the critical moment. Reddy was safe in the house and you were waiting outside when all of a sudden—Bang! Up came a big white motor car with a man in the back seat you knew instinctively was the baron."

"I'm just shivering with excitement."

"Well, there was just one thing to do—follow the baron. And you did it. But when you stepped boldly past the buttons who opened the door for you, there was a row on the inside and no mistake. She was standing in the hall looking at Reddy, and her aunt was alongside, scorn flashing out of her eyes, and the baron was squirming around, apparently waiting for the right moment to grab old Reddy by the collar. But all wasn't lost. You were there."

"Good little me!"

"You broke out in an impressive voice: 'Madam, if you wish to learn something to your advantage, go out and look in the back seat of your intended husband's automobile.'"

"How foolish!"

"Wasn't it—but it worked. The aunt said no, but the girl's curiosity was up and she simply swept out to the curb where the white auto was chugging. And then——"

"Faster! O, faster!"

"You reached out and bundled her into the rear seat, and Reddy had sense enough to hop in beside her, and you poked the baron in the eye, and while he was thinking it over you clipped the chauffeur alongside the ear and slipped in the clutch. Then Reddy and the chauffeur had it out while the machine bowled down the street, with the baron hollering in the background."

"I'm proud of myself; yes, I am."

"Next, with a twenty dollar bill you finished the subjugation of the chauffeur, and sent the machine spinning into the shadows of Central park, and the girl didn't object worth a cent. Finally Reddy said, 'Shall I take you back to him or not?' and she said, 'No!' So you turned the car over to the chauffeur, and all three of you tubed over to New Jersey, where Reddy and the girl were married, and right now they're living happily ever after at a hotel here in New York."

The girl's eyes were sparkling and her cheeks were flushed.

"O, you must bring Reddy to me! You must! You must let me see him and talk to him—before this afternoon!"

The Vicarious Adventurer squirmed inwardly.

"But——"

"Yes, there's plenty of time. You must bring him. I had no idea life was so fine. It makes me want to live. And you must bring Reddy, please. Please, my Vicarious Adventurer!"

"I'll bring him," he said. "I'll bring him into this room before 1 o'clock."

Once on the sidewalk he clenched his fists. "I'm a blamed fool, but I'm going to make good. If she wants to see Reddy, she's going to see him—only how can I fake him up?" His brow wrinkled into a large V, balancing on the tip of his nose. "I'll try a Y. M. C. A., that's what I'll do. There may be some young fellows there with red hair and blue eyes and a bum nose."

But there weren't. The only man in the house answering to that description was away on a vacation somewhere. An old style hack, with an old style cabby on the box, gave him another idea.

"Look here," he said to the veteran, "I've got to find a red headed man with blue eyes and a twisted nose; anybody with those marks goes. Drive me along the street, close to the curb, and every time you see a red headed man, yell."

But it was a bad day for the reds. Three times the cab stopped, but each time the bewildered man proved lacking in one of the important particulars.

"Try the water front, cabby. Maybe we'll have better luck there."

"Shall I keep going, sir?"

"Keep on going."

He closed his eyes for a moment to pray that somebody somewhere would send him the man he wanted. As his eyes opened he started.

There, not thirty feet away, was his quarry. He was a young fellow, bronzed from the open air. His hair showed the proper flame, his eyes were blue, and his nose was perceptibly kinked, suggestive of the fourth down on the last chalk line. He fitted in every detail.

"Stop" shouted the Vicarious Adventurer. A moment later he had seized the object of his search by the elbow and shoulder.

"Jump into this cab sir. I'll explain as we go along. Uptown, cabby, at a gallop."

As the hack began to roll on its wild ride, the Vicarious Adventurer explained. "There's a girl at the point of death. She needs you because I've told her all about you and how——"

The ingenious plumber could not have conceived a more tractable Reddy. He nodded his sympathy. He professed himself eager to further the plot. He, too, wished to become a vicarious adventurer.

They reached the vague destination of uptown.

"Where to, sir?" asked the cabby.

The Vicarious Adventurer gave him the street and number.

"Stop!" It was the voice of Reddy. "Stop, I tell you. I can't go there. I won't because——"

The Vicarious Adventurer said nothing. But what had been fiction became fact. He pinned back the arms of Reddy against the cushions, and partly because he exulted in real action and partly because he was very much in earnest, he was far from gentle.

"Yes, you can go there," he told Reddy, "and you will go there, as I've explained, without whimpering. If you don't——" The cab swayed to his gesture.

"I'll go," said Reddy.

At the house they tumbled out of the cab. The door was unlatched, and they went into the hall and up the stairs without ringing. It was the mother's voice that bade them enter the sick girl's room after they had tapped lightly.

The Vicarious Adventurer pushed Reddy in ahead of him, with a warning grip upon his arm. Then he entered.

"Alice," he said, "this is Reddy."

He cast a warning glance at the mother, but it was she who spoke first.

"How do you do?" she said.

"How are you, Reddy?" offered Jimmy.

There was no natural warmth to their greetings, but the Vicarious Adventurer told himself they played their parts well.

"Hello, Reddy," called the girl with more warmth.

"Hello, Alice."

It came to the Vicarious Adventurer, all at once, that something was wrong, that somebody had blundered. He realized, without knowing how, that Reddy was not the stranger he had supposed. He understood vaguely the latter's objections in the cab.

Followed a moment of embarrassed silence. Then Jimmy turned to him.

"If you don't mind, Hamp——"

He walked obediently from the room. It was a long ten minutes before he was hailed, and then Brother Jimmy flung himself at his neck. Brother Jimmy was chortling incoherently.

"Bulliest mess we could have cooked up," he said. "Hamp, old man, it turned out as slick as a whistle. To think——"

"But——"

"And you started it all; yes, you did. Of course, Hamp, she saw through the dope you were handing her, she's so blamed clever at jokes herself. But it delighted her. And she thought it was the best ever when she told you to produce the red headed guy. She told me about it this morning. Made me promise not to tell, but—shucks! I knew you wouldn't care. And then you cap it by trotting in Jack McCullom."

"Who?"

"Jack McCullom. Wake up, Hamp. You knew about him, didn't you? What! Alice never told you! Why, engaged, you know, and just before the accident there was a flare-up and he zipped away to Europe. That's why she lost her interest in wanting to go on living."

The Vicarious Adventurer wetted his lips.

"And now," he stumbled, pointing toward the door, "now they've made it up, like the Reddy in my story, and——"

Brother Jimmy thumped him a prodigious blow on the back.

"Made up nothing! He was man enough to tell her of another girl he's met since. I was on my toes. I think, Hamp, I'd have killed him if the news had hurt Alice. But it didn't. She said, 'I'm glad, Reddy'—said it from her heart, mind you. You understand, don't you? She's been worshiping an idol, and now that she's wise to the underpinning she doesn't want it at all. Told him she thought once he was the finest man in all the world, but that now——"

The Vicarious Adventurer could not speak. After all, he was very much a coward in some things. Then his cheeks, which had gone pale, flooded with red, and his heart, which had seemed to stop beating, began to pump wildly.

"May I see her for a few minutes?" he asked Brother Jimmy. "Right away?"

"O, I guess so," said Brother Jimmy with affected carelessness. "Trot along in, Hamp."

A little later the Vicarious Adventurer came out of the room again. He grabbed Brother Jimmy's hand.

"She's going to get well," he told him. "She wants to live, and the doctor says she's going to. Nothing can stop her now. And afterward——"

The ingenious plumber was best man at the wedding.

ROBERT HARRON

At the age of 14 Robert Harron of the Triangle forces was an errand boy at the Biograph studio in New York. He was not born to be just an errand boy, however, as David Griffith, then a director with the company, discovered him. He sent the young man in question to playing juvenile leads. As time went on under the able direction of one of filmland's greatest directors he developed into one of the most promising young actors of the screen. He has been with the Majestic, Lasky, etc. He plays with Triangle and most of the time opposite Mae Marsh. He is a good looking chap and is not married.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS.

LOOKIN' AT THE STARS.

A garden quaint—an old oak tree,
Sweet twilight, and a rustic chair—
The picture oft comes back to me
Of granddad as he rested there.
At close of every weary day,
With all its little frets and jars,
"My tired heart can rest," he'd say,
"Just lookin' at the stars."

Ah, well, the world goes up and down—
Why, that was fifty years ago,
And here's a merry little town
Where granddad's garden used to grow.
These years have made a wondrous change—
The world seem molded all anew.
Time is a sculptor, working strange
Where granddad's garden grew.

But when each noisy day is done
I find, though time has played its game
And made its changes one by one,
That hour of rest is just the same;
For there's a world-wide garden here
Where stars with heart warm glow still shine,
And every day it seems more dear—
This star bright hour of mine.

I wish—O, more than I can say—
That granddad cou'd come back tonight
And view the sky of "photoplay,"
With meteors so wondrous bright.
I wish, whene'er I see them shine,
That he might break time's sealing bars
And rest his tired heart with mine—
"Just lookin' at the stars."

BACK TO THE SOILED.

Dear Miss Tinee: Supplementing washday and Saturday night we have a new back to the soiled movement. It is where you'd expect to find movements—in the movies. You may know it by its "No Children Allowed" and the lithographic vivandieres luring lusciously all over the lobbies. The high priestesses of this epidemic of epidermis and carnival of cuticle are the paulinefredericks, the clarakimballyoungs, the thedabaras, and more. It doesn't take a strong harker to hark back to the white slave plays, where the sweet young thing is ru-yuned in Act I., sold into vile slavery in Act. II., seen sitting around in a red kimono, drinking crème yvettes, oyster cocktails, and cold tea out of champagne bottles in Act III., and nobly rescued in Act IV.—or V., as the case may be—by some patriotic organization. When that clutter of carrion was carted out into the alley we thought it was good night, good luck, and a fast track to it.

But, no. No, no. She has come back to us in the movies. But, Silas, how she has changed! No longer she is the sweet young thing that was ru-yuned in Act I. She has evidently been ru-yuned away back in the prologue or the first rehearsal.

Why, to paraphrase Lackaye, are so many of the movies made to be obscene but not heard? Why do they reek of rot? Why is the movie rapidly becoming one of the six best smellers? I ask you from my heart out; I am curious to know, I am curious to know.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE — by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Dr. Stephen Royce and Dick Freneau, an adventurer, love Gloria Stafford, daughter of the multimillionaire. Gloria, lost in the Florida everglades, is really saved by Royce, but Freneau, who also searches, gets the credit by a mean trick of fate. Freneau proposes and is secretly accepted, but Stafford pere makes them promise to wait five years. Meanwhile Freneau pursues his affairs with Lois Freeman Stafford, wife of David Stafford, Gloria's brother, and becomes partner to the broker, Mulry. When the five years end, Gloria, out of school, is so matured Freneau doesn't recognize her—a terrible slight. Freneau, however, re-establishes himself with her and plans a hasty marriage, as he and Mulry need money badly. Lois learns of the intended marriage and threatens suicide rather than witness it. Freneau temporizes—declares he loves her (Lois) but must marry Gloria for financial reasons. Lois believes David, her husband, by an anonymous letter, learns of Lois' infatuation for Freneau—whose name is synonymous with disgraceful affairs. In fact, Gideon Trask, father of Nell, one of his unfortunate victims, is on Freneau's trail swearing revenge. Planning to test her, David tells Lois he is to be out of town a week—but doesn't go. Meanwhile Lois promises to meet Freneau at the soldiers' monument, from where they will go to a Catskill village for a week. Each has damaging love letters in possession. Royce knows of the appointment. To deceive Gloria during his absence Freneau has written love letters, dating them from various cities. Mulry mails them. Freneau goes to the monument. There he is killed. Three men are seen near him. Gloria sees it all from her window. Royce thinks it is merely delirium. The fake love letters begin to arrive and add corroboration to this theory. Gloria learns the truth, vows revenge on the unknown slayer, but Royce prevents her from asking aid from the police and newspapers. He thus avoids scandal. Gloria, discovering the deceit of the fake love letters, begins to doubt the quality of Freneau's love. She also suspects Lois, but accepts an invitation to visit her. Nevertheless, Gloria swears to find Freneau's murderer, Royce to the contrary. Gloria, hoping to learn something from Mulry, follows him to Palm Beach, where she saves him from death by drowning. There she also learns from a Seminole Indian that it was really Royce and not Freneau who rescued her five years before. Confronting Royce with this, he still denies it. In the New York night court Gloria runs across Mulry and Freneau's murderer. Before she revives from a faint he is released. Later she follows him. Gloria, following Gideon Trask, gets in an East Side barroom fight and is rescued from danger by Dr. Royce. Both are arrested and taken to the station. There Gloria encounters Mulry, who tells her that Dick made him write the fake letters because he was ill and feared his illness would worry her. Gloria, following Trask, finds Casimir, his sick wife and baby, takes care of the former and adopts the latter. Then, resuming her search, she follows Trask aboard his canal boat and accuses him. Trask locks her up, but she turns the tables and escapes.

SIXTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

WHEN Gloria saw that the captain of the tug had noticed the slight detail of the parted hawser and the lost convoy she was vexed. When she saw the tugboat turning around to recapture the barge she felt that it would be hard to explain about the prisoners she had fastened down in the cabin. She supposed it was mutiny or something for a passenger to tie up captain, crew, and cook, and change the course of the ship. She believed that people who did that were usually hung from the yardstick or something. She hoped that the old barge did not have such a thing on board.

The nearer the tug came the louder the pilot and the crew yelled at her and the less Gloria wanted to meet them. She had never met any tugmen and she felt no ambition to get into their social set. It was growing so dark by now that they could not see who was at the tiller and they kept calling her "Trask" or "O, Jed!"

At length Gloria decided that she was not needed any longer. She had noted the little boat bobbing along after the barge and she felt that she might as well capture that. It was more nearly her size. She would be safer alone on a skiff than on the barge when the tugmen released that fiend of a Trask. He had planned to kill her before she tied him up. He would certainly do no less now that once he had escaped. Jed had evidently picked himself up from the rocking-chair trap, untied Trask, and unmuffled Nell. The three had been pounding and howling for some time. The hatch held for a while, but they were going at it now with something as heavy as a battering ram. It would yield soon surely and then where would she be?

She ran to the edge of the barge and hauled in the painter attached to the little boat. The barge was swishing in the tide and it was trying to run over the skiff. But Gloria had no other avenue of escape. She hung across the edge of the barge and dropped into the skiff. Her aim was not very accurate and the river nearly got her. But she sat down quickly and steadied herself and the boat. She began to ply the oars with great eagerness, but little progress.

At length she noticed that she had forgotten to cast off. She ran to the bow and tried to untie the painter. The wet knots were torture to her delicate hands, but at last she was free and the boat fell away from the barge. The river was dark and menacing, and its current was like some invisible genie dragging the skiff away to its lair. Still, when Gloria saw the tug come alongside the barge and make fast, and saw Trask, Jed, and Nell dash up the companionway and meet the tughands on the deck, she felt that the current would be kinder to her than the men would have been.

The tugboat crew went back to their quarters. Trask ran back to stare at Gloria. He shook his fist at her and she rowed faster. But the barge moved northward following the puffing tug.

Gloria breathed a sigh of relief at her escape. Then she realized that after all Trask had also escaped. She was so angry at this cancellation of her success that she started to row back after the barge. What she would have done had she overtaken it she did not stop to think. The current prevented the possibility of knowing. The Hudson streaming toward the sea carried Gloria with it in spite of all her efforts at the oars. She gave up at length and devoted all her energies to rowing ashore. The nearer shore was the farther for her, because a landing on the west bank would compel a lengthy roundabout to fetch her to her home on the east bank.

She rowed for the New York shore.

Finally she felt the keel grate and she landed on a rocky point. She forgot the little dinghey and it slipped back and danced on down the river to some unknown fate. Gloria felt better on the firm earth and she grew angry again. She stared at the barge, now a mere smudge on the vague horizon. She whispered to herself, "I'll get him again and he won't get away."

Gloria thought of her father's yacht. She believed that it had been recently put into commission. If only she had it now! But it was loafing at anchor in the river at her father's country home, the last she had heard of it.

To get a yacht! That was her small requirement now. She must get home to get it. She plunged along till she came to a lonely road.

Gloria trudged till she was worn out. All the motors she saw seemed to be going the wrong way. When finally she heard one coming behind her she was so delighted that she turned and held out her hands. She wanted to embrace the driver for being so kind as to be going her way.

Anybody looks well coming to a rescue, but the young man driving the southbound automobile was too good looking for his own comfort or any one's else. He accepted Gloria as a passenger with more enthusiasm than she relished. He jumped to the ground, lifted his hat, assisted Gloria into the front seat, and took his place beside her. He shot the car forward with a swagger and his compliments began to puff out of him. Gloria endured a number of his flatteries because she needed his motor, but she grew angrier and angrier, and when he began to call her "Cutie" she decided that his usefulness had ceased to exist. One of the twain simply had to get out and walk. Gloria was sure that it was not to be herself. She plotted carefully how to throw this new skipper overboard. The victim helped her to an idea by leaning close to her and murmuring: "Kind of cozy, Cutie, huh?"

"Very," said Gloria, fuming at his impudence.

"We make a great team, huh?"

"Great," said Gloria.

"Atta girl," said the youth and slid his left arm around her.

Gloria laughed harshly and somehow managed to knock the hat off her wooer's head. The wind whipped it back and the driver shut off the engine and threw on his emergency brake.

"So sorry," said Gloria, smiling in the dark.

"At's all right, Cutie," said the young man. "Back in a minute."

He slid from his place and ran back along the road for his hat. Gloria had been studying his methods of running the car and comparing it with her own. As soon as the driver ran back Gloria pressed the self-starter button and put the car into motion.

The man heard the engine sputter and he yelled, "Hey!" thinking the gasoline to blame. He was sure that he had forgotten to stop his engine and he was afraid that the car was running away with its pretty passenger. He ran after it, forgetting his hat in his alarm, lest Gloria be dashed to pieces on the side of the road. The clean way the car leaped across the hill and the hand Gloria waved in farewell reassured him as to her safety, but filled him with disgust and with fear that she was some new type of automobile thief.

Gloria's conscience was clear. The young impertinent had earned his punishment. The walk would do him good. She would restore his car to him by hunting up the owner of its number when she had time. If necessary her father could buy the car. It was a nice car. She loved its appetite for miles and fed it well. And finally it brought her to her home.

Dr. Royce and Judge Freeman were at the house. They sat with Gloria while she told them of her adventures as she ate a hastily reassembled dinner. She said to Dr. Royce: "I am surprised, Stephen, at your leaving me alone by myself to solve my new problems. Of course, you didn't know where I was going, but you usually manage to arrive in the nick of time. You ought to have been there."

"I wish I had been there," Royce replied.

"Then you will come along and help me to capture the man who killed my beloved Dick?"

"All right, captain," said Royce with a plucky smile, though her allusion to Freneau cut him to the quick.

Judge Freeman seemed to be agitated by the plan Gloria outlined for the pursuit and capture of Trask. "You must not permit this, Pierpont," he protested anxiously. "Your daughter has no legal right to arrest the man Trask. If she should capture him she would have to turn him over to the authorities and she would have to face a public explanation."

Gloria retorted with vigor: "You had him, judge, and you said that he slipped out of your fingers. Now you advise me not to go after him again. You let him escape once and want me to let him escape a second time. Why, I do not know. Why won't you tell me why?"

Judge Freeman looked away guiltily. His eyes turned to Pierpont and his answer was to him and not to Gloria.

"You must realize, Pierpont, that such a cruise is no place for a girl of Gloria's position and breeding."

"That's true," said Pierpont. "It's all off, Gloria."

"No, it isn't!" Gloria cried. "If you don't help me to catch that fiend I'll get the police after him."

"What police?" Pierpont laughed. "The local chief? He couldn't capture a snail."

"The man is out of his jurisdiction, anyway," said the judge. "It would be quite a complicated process getting the fellow arrested and he would probably be hard to find."

"My way is a very simple way," said Gloria. "Instead of sending, go! That's a good motto. But the judge will neither send nor go, and once more I want to ask him why?"

The judge was not used to being cross-examined and he bore it ill. He faltered:

"Some day you'll know and you'll realize that I acted for your peace of mind."

"My peace of mind depends on capturing that man!" Gloria answered curtly, "and anybody that wants to can come along now."

Royce saluted and waited for orders. Pierpont decided to go. Judge Freeman refused and repeated his warnings, but Gloria would not even tell him good-by. She, her father, and Royce went down to the yacht landing and were carried aboard in a little boat, the oars flashing in the moonlight and the sailors coming handsomely alongside.

It was splendid to feel the deck underfoot. Gloria chuckled at the contrast between the yacht and the canal boat. She rejoiced in the famous speed of the engines and she could imagine the prow slicing the waves in pursuit of the lumbering barge. She was on a race horse and she was chasing an ox. But race horses are delicate giants and so are race cars and racing yachts. This sea rover declined to rove. There was engine trouble in the works and the captain brought the hateful news that the yacht could not budge for several hours. Gloria was bitterly disappointed and completely baffled.

"It's the old story of the tortoise and the hare," she grumbled. "While we are sleeping here the barge is moving along every moment. We'll never find it. It'll get away for keeps this time."

"Never despair," said Royce stupidly.

"Don't speak to me," said Gloria. She flounced away to the stern deck to be by herself. Then the soft breeze blew away her anger and her furies. In spite of herself she fell asleep. Her father came up to urge her to go to her cabin, but she refused to move.

Later Gloria was half-awakened by a little chill. She was too cold to stay where she was and too drowsy to move. She saw a shadowy figure tiptoeing up. She knew that a steamer rug was gently laid over her. Half a-dream, she murmured, "Thank you, Stephen."

She did not know whether he heard her or not.

When she awoke the yacht was redeeming its lost reputation. It was hastening up the river at a splendid gait. The sun was just crossing the eastern wall of hills.

Gloria went to her stateroom to bathe and dress for a new and busy day. Breakfast was served on deck, and the Palisades slid back with encouraging rapidity.

Before Gloria had finished her breakfast a tug, towing a barge, was sighted on the northern edge of the water. Gloria went to the pilot house to stimulate the pursuit.

Gradually the barge grew larger and larger and its ugliness more distinct. The men on the tug paid no heed to the yacht following closely. But Gloria saw a gaunt figure on the barge watching anxiously. Soon he was distinguishable as Trask. Gloria left the pilot house and went forward to make sure. She recognized him as he recognized her. She called to him to surrender. He laughed. Then she saw that he had a rifle in his hand.

Trask had been mystified beyond endurance by the whole transaction. He had left Freneau's body in the moonlit snows in front of the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument on Riverside drive. He had watched the papers for days, expecting to read in each one an account of the finding of the body.

He had been driven frantic with anxiety by the silence of the journals. He had begun almost to wonder if he had really killed his man or only dreamed it, when suddenly the headlines had flared out with the statement that Freneau's body had been found in the lower bay, miles below the spot on Riverside drive where he had left it empty of soul.

He had cudgeled his brain trying to conceive who could have disposed of the evidence of his crime and with what motive. The papers said that Freneau had committed suicide, and nobody disputed it.

Trask had begun to grow used to the hope that his crime was to go undiscovered, to remain another of the many instances that disprove the old fallacy, "Murder will out." It seemed safe for him to return to his business as bargeman, yet he had no sooner entered his own cabin than a strange girl appeared, unexplained, and charged him with the murder. She avowed, in fact, that she had seen him do the deed.

Then she escaped, but after that nothing occurred to hamper Trask's northward voyage in his canal boat. His night was sleepless, however. He started up dozens of times, seeing Gloria's little white finger pointing at him, hearing her cry out again:

"You killed him! I saw you!"

The daybreak found him stretched out at the stern of the canal boat, looking south for some possible avenger. He saw the yacht swooping up the stream long before Gloria made him out. He seemed to feel that the uncanny speed of the boat meant business. So he hunted out his old rifle and kept his eyes on the yacht as it followed with relentless persistence. Finally he made out Gloria on the prow, pointing at him. On the deck were several men, all staring at him.

Now Trask felt assured that Gloria was a witch. She had appeared in his cabin, then vanished, only to reappear with a posse of yachtsmen. He felt that he had been a fool to let her dupe him when he was alone. Now she had a little army and navy of her own. But if he got rid of her he would be rid of the only witness against him. So he reasoned with a madman's logic. He leveled his rifle at Gloria. He took careful aim. He fired.

THE TEENIE WEENIE
BOAT RUNS AGROUND

by Wm. Donahey

"ALL hands on deck!" shouted the General early one morning, and when the little sailors gathered at their various stations the order was given to cast off. The Teenie Weenie Sailor signaled the engine room, and the Dutchman started the tiny machinery. Slowly the boathouse steamed out into the center of the creek amid the shouts of the little passengers who had gathered on deck for the event.

"Now, where are—are we going?" asked the curious Dunce after the boat had sailed for some little time.

"Oh, nowhere in particular," answered the General. "We'll anchor in the first pleasant looking place we come to."

For an hour or more the boat steamed down the little stream, passing under flowers which grew along the bank, dodging the cat-tails and skipping the many rocks that stuck their noses out of the surface of the smooth water.

As the Sailor skillfully steered the tiny craft between a huge stone and the shore the boat suddenly came to a stop with such a great bang that many of the Teenie Weenies were thrown off their balance and tumbled about the decks like so many peas. The Cook, who was making a thimble full of lemonade at the time, fell over the thimble, spilling the cool drink all over the kitchen floor. The Dunce nearly fell overboard, and if it had not been for the assistance of Gogo, who grabbed his leg, the little fellow would have fallen into the creek.

"Shall I launch the life raft?" cried the Turk, as he climbed up onto the cover of the top deck where the pickle cork life raft was tied.

"No," answered the General, "I don't think there is any danger. We're just aground."

The Sailor signaled the Dutchman to reverse the engine, but, although the little engineer put on every ounce of steam, the boat refused to move.

"Well, sir," said the Sailor, "I believe we're stuck good and tight, and I think I'd better get into my diving suit and go down and see what can be done."

"I think that's a good plan," nodded the General and, turning to the group of open-mouthed Teenie Weenies who stood about, he ordered the air pump brought up. While the Sailor was getting into his diving suit most of the little people rowed ashore in the pea pod canoes to visit with two curious young chickens that had come down to the water's edge and stood looking on in wide-eyed astonishment.

"What's the matter?" asked one of the chickens.

"We're stuck on the bottom of the creek," answered the Old Soldier.

"Why don't you pull the boat off?"

"I don't know whether we can or not," said the Old Soldier. "She's stuck pretty tight."

"I'll go and get my mother to come down and pull it off," said the chicken. "She is as strong as a rooster and she can pull that boat off without half trying," and turning up the bank the two chickens ran away as fast as their long legs could carry them.

The Sailor, taking a big knife in his hand to protect himself from the crawfish, climbed over the side of the boat and disappeared under the water. Presently he gave the signal to be pulled up, and when the helmet was lifted from his head he told the General that the boat was stuck between two stones and that it could be pulled off without any injury to the ship.

"Here we are!" shouted one of the chickens, as he appeared at the top of the bank, followed by two old hens and quite a number of small chickens who had followed to see the boat. "My mother is busy laying an egg, but here are two of my aunts, and they will help you."

The Teenie Weenies tossed the hens a rope and, taking the end in their beaks, they soon pulled the boat free. After thanking the hens and chickens for their kindness, the General gave orders for the boat to proceed, and amid the shouts of the Teenie Weenies and the cackling of the chickens the little boat steamed away.

Suit Coats threaten to reach the Skirt Hem

BY JEAN SEIVWRIGHT.

(Drawings by C. E. Kelly.)

(Copyright: 1916: By The Chicago Tribune and The New York Globe)

As the crickets sing and the fall woods lose their dense foliage—for autumn days already are tipping the leaves with gold—milady chooses her attire for the restful season of the year. Doubtless she has secured her early fall suits, while her headgear is characterized by novelty of line and color.

But with the donning of suit and hat milady discovers that her wants are far from being supplied. New blouses she must have to wear with her suit or with the dressy separate skirt that is also an essential in the wardrobe of the well dressed woman. Then, too, her pretty afternoon dresses or street frocks must on occasion hide their charms beneath the gracious folds of a long mantle. Indeed, as the daughter of Eve studies the events of the social calendar for fall she finds so great a diversity of entertainment that it behooves her to select immediately desirable apparel for all the varied events of the day.

In the picture that tops this article some very attractive creations for fall are cleverly portrayed. Particularly charming is the coat at the right side of the page. Originated in an old gold jersey cloth, it is lined throughout with a supple taffeta in matching shade. The style of this coat, just a trifle reminiscent of a military mode, is extremely pleasing. The low lying collar is partly covered by a huge shoulder cape on which is mounted a squirrel collar. Straps of jersey centered with a large buckle hold this in position, while the belt at the sides and back restrains the rippling folds of the skirt. The wide cuffs are banded with squirrel and the broad brimmed hat of gray felt is trimmed with a grosgrain ribbon.

To the right of this creation is another suggestion in the military realm. The hat that crests the pictured costume is of bronze velvet and is set snugly on the head, its dashing appearance being enhanced by the softly plaited frill that flares upward and outward from the narrow brim. The suit that accompanies this model shows one of the newest styles that is meeting with much approval in the centers of fashion. The coat is unusually long, but one might say there's "method in its madness," for such models serve more than one purpose.

If its wearer wishes to go abroad on a somewhat informal quest she is eminently suitably attired for the street. But should an unexpected event occur, or should she wish to attend a function that demands somewhat more elaborate attire, she may remove her coat, and lo! she appears in an exquisite gown, for the corsage in such suits is usually fashioned from a very delicate fabric. Silk, voile, georgette crepe, or chiffon, richly trimmed with fine lace and metal embroideries, are well liked materials for this purpose, and as these may be obtained in beautiful colorings, most exquisite costumes are evolved.

The model pictured on this page is of heavy taupe colored ottoman silk. The close fitting collar is finished with a ruffle frill that prettily frames the face, while a touch of enlivening color is found in the bronze grosgrain ribbon that is simply tied about the collar and elaborated with silk tassels in the same shade.

The sleeves are decidedly unusual in style. Fashioned with wide cuffs, they are decorated with ribbons and tassels, while the long slot pockets are outlined with bands of the silk.

1. Waist of pale buff voile with cotton embroidery. Old gold ribbon at neck.
2. Velvet hat. Fall suit of heavy ottoman silk. Taupe bronze tassels.
3. Hat of gray felt. Old gold jersey cloth lined with taffeta. Collar and cuffs of gray squirrel.
4. Waist of creme taffeta, gold embroidery.

A lovely waist of pale buff voile is pictured in the upper left. This is trimmed with dainty cotton embroidery, while old gold ribbon is tied about the neck. An embroidered peplum is attached to the waist, so that the long lines of the figure are pleasingly retained.

Another waist is pictured at the right. This is made of creme taffeta, the wide collar and bell shaped sleeves being prettily embroidered in gold. Many exquisite models are shown at this time, and varied trimmings are used. One dainty model in periwinkle blue is trimmed with a narrow silk fringe and tiny silver beads. Another charming model is fashioned from balsam green georgette and a fine cowweblike embroidery is applied to the front and shoulders so that a novel yoke is suggested. Others have tiny tucks, or the fullness is arranged in flat plaits.

There is a decided tendency towards Russian effects, and these blouses are sometimes originated in beautiful oriental silks. One in a dull blue with quaint figures in old red and balsam green is made with long, drooping shoulders, the fullness in the sleeves being caught at the wrist by narrow bands of red ribbon. The opening in the center front is outlined with the old red ribbon and fastened with tiny green buttons and cord.

With such models the loose belt is again in prominence, and many delightful novelties are being shown. Sometimes rich rather heavy ribbons are lightly drawn about the figure, tied in a loose knot and the long ends weighted with silver tassels, metal braids, or quaint enamel figurines. Others are elaborated with jeweled slides so that the fastenings may be arranged to suit the individual taste of the wearer.

Belts and buckles are not, however, reserved exclusively for the adornment of the waist. Some of the most attractive fall coats show clever adaptations of these features. Collars, too, reveal new touches. Many of these are extremely large, and usually they are adjustable so that they may be spread about the shoulders like capes or set around the neck in flaring mode. The linings, too, are exceedingly interesting. Brightly patterned silks are generally chosen so that their gay colors may contrast effectively with the more sober shades of the winter wraps.

Perhaps the chief characteristics of the new evening coats are the quaint lines on which they are cut and the gorgeous materials from which they are made. Heavy silks and brocades are used with beautiful velvets, while nearly every piece is enriched with threads of silver and gold. One lovely model originated in carnation pink velvet, lavishly adorned with silver embroidery, has the full skirt gathered and attached to the upper part at the normal waistline. The deep square collar and cuffs are made of skunk and a band of fur is also introduced on the front and back of the hem of the coat.

While such decorations seem really in best taste when used on evening wraps, yet metallic embroideries are also noted on some of the daytime coats. A dashing model in dark bottle green is designed with the front and back hanging straight from the neck line. A narrow belt originating at the sides confines the front at the waist line, but the back is left free and falls in a wide flare at the bottom, measuring not less than four yards around the hem. Wide bands of lapin dyed rabbit in mole color edge the cuffs, which are richly embroidered with silver threads over twisted green cord. Similar embroidery appears on the fronts.

A novel idea introduced by a leading Parisian creator is the embroidered rubberized coat. Such coats are frequenty worn instead of the jersey sport coats. About three-quarters or seven-eighths long, they are cut with flaring skirts and embroidered from hem to hip line, while embroidery also is put on the collar and cuffs. Should one prefer it, machine stitching may be substituted. As these coats are lined with brightly colored satin, they look very smart when worn over light dresses.

The vogue for the mantelet still continues and muff sets are now appearing in various charming styles. In one set developed in a pleasing shade of blue velvet the mantelet scarcely reaches the waist line. It is shaped like a bolero and embroidered all over with the metallic braiding and banded with lapin. The muff, like those pictured in the Kate Greenway story books, is a tiny barrel shaped affair of allover embroidered velvet, the only touch of fur being found about the openings where the hands are slipped in.

The quaintly shaped little hat of blue velvet shows a trimming of three narrow bands of the lapin about the high crown, and a stiffened bow of narrow faille ribbon is perched jauntily in the center front of the chapeau.

While panne or plain velvets and felts are the favorite headgear of fashion's followers, the millinery world offers many novelties. The newest is sewed felt braid that imitates straw. These strands are about one-eighth of an inch wide and when worked up a straw-like effect is achieved, although supple felt is used.

Woolen flowers and foliage are greatly in evidence and are often used on jersey delaine hats. A small hat of Bordeaux red jersey is trimmed with a spreading white flower and green leaves with a center of the red chenille. Other embroidered motifs in gay colors and wools are sometimes substituted for the flowers. Soutache braiding is another pleasing novelty, and odd motifs appliqued in black soutache on pink wool tricotine are admirable trimmings for the Russian toques.

Still another novel decoration is the jet fantasy. This is made of fine jetted paillettes, oblong in shape and quite small, each paillette being partly overlaid by another.

Most charming negligees are also destined for the pleasure of many a fair damsel. With each new season these articles of apparel become more luxurious. No fabric is too fine nor is any trimming too expensive for the fashioning of these delectable garments. Indeed, many of these models are so beautiful in design and fabric that they may take the place of the dinner gown in one's own home. One exquisite is made of rosebud pink chiffon, with a lovely train of pale green gold that may be draped about the figure as its wearer chooses.

Another in gold is veiled with black net while flounces of handsome lace appear at the sides where the net is cleverly started and held in place by red gold ribbons. Blue and mauve are especially attractive when combined in a simple negligee, and as embroidery pervades every garment of dress its value is not overlooked in that of the negligee.

Footwear, too, expresses woman's delight in dainty style and beautiful color. At present two toned effects are extremely popular, as, for instance, shoes with black kid vamps and ivory tops. For those who prefer one color effect there are many lovely shades of gray, tan, and mouse tones. A very pleasing style in gray buckskin has a Cuban heel and white tops. Cloth tops that match the suit and with vamps in the same shade also are approved by those who set the styles that appeal to discriminating women everywhere.

MEN AND WOMEN

APPALLING and intensely pathetic was the outcome of marriage with a defective, as illustrated in the murder of Mrs. Katherine Pettit, who was slain by her husband of a month.

Looking at the photographs of the extremely girlish beauty of 18 one wonders how parental watchfulness could be so inalert and so blind to the welfare of its own flesh and blood as to sanction a union with a man whose philosophizings should have bestirred anything but faith and trust.

Thoughtless Parents.

In spite of the terrible consequences of marriages of mental and physical unfits which are repeatedly coming to the surface, parents on the whole remain unbelievably indifferent to their duty to their daughters.

To require a certificate by a reputable physician stating that the applicant for a daughter's hand is normal physically and mentally and has neither an incurable nor communicable disease is the last duty a parent seems to feel toward the daughter. This in the face of volumes of unsuppressed data on the insanity, paralysis, blinded eyes of little babes, twisted limbs of deformed children, physical rot and mental decay, and other distressing outcomes of marriage with defectives.

Why can't parents be more practical? Why can't they see the need of caution and common sense reasoning when it affects the most vital course in the life of their child? The old happy go lucky principles are principles to depart from, not to cling to in the intensely serious matter of transferring the health, the happiness, and even the life of a daughter to another's keeping.

Rural Credits and High Prices.

Through the government loans to be obtained via the new rural credits act at a rate of interest not higher than 6 per cent, optimists see bright prospects of a reduction in the high cost of living.

"Cheaper money for the small farmer is the first of our agricultural problems," said an authority before the low rate farm loan was provided by Uncle Sam. "As things stand, this class of citizen, the fundamental wealth producer of the country, is given poorer service by our banks than almost any other man in American industry. The first paramount cause of soaring prices and the thing that helps to make the cost of living about 10 per cent higher in the United States than in Europe is an undue interest tax of $210,000,000 a year on the American farmer."

He estimates the aggregate indebtedness of American farms, including mortgages and current loans on crops, at $6,046,000,000. On this they pay interest at an average rate of 8½ per cent per annum, whereas were these farmers in France or Germany they could get the same accommodation at a rate never higher than 5 per cent."

The rural farmer is not the only one to be benefited directly by the farm loan law. Government loans may be negotiated under the rural credits act by so-called suburbanites—men who work in downtown districts with acre tracts and small plots and homes reached by the various suburban car lines. Their dreams of a home of their own will materialize with much less worry and anxiety with Uncle Sam's help and his lower interest rates and longer time payments.

Woman's Loquacity.

It is doubtful if the "dumbcane" discovered in a St. Louis botanical garden and used successfully in an experiment on the tongue of the wife of a St. Louisan will prove the solution of friend husband's troubles, even though he be willing to foot hospital bills in return for a few days' surcease from wife's loquacious member.

One Mr. Solomon of reputed wisdom once proclaimed petulantly his preference for life in a corner of the housetop rather than with a garrulous woman in a large house. But it is worthy of note that there is no intimation in the proverb that the housetop was occupied by him at any time, and his w. k. taste for wives in excess quantity renders meaningless his disapproval of garrulity in womankind. Either that or it proves that not one woman in 600 is loquacious, that being the statistical number of Mrs. Solomons.

Granted that women do "talk a bit at times," the dumbcane industry would be a dubiously profitable one, for compared with sheer stupidity or studied sulkiness loquacity is a joy to mankind.

Changing Marriage Ritual.

On the theory, mayhap, that she had no part in drawing up the formula "to love, honor, and obey," womankind has been for some time carrying on a vigorous campaign of protest against the word "obey." The proposed change in the ritual of the Episcopal church to "love, honor, and keep," will no doubt be received with gratitude and approval by the anti-obeys. And it is a highly commendable step toward curbing the divorce evil.

Let us trust that this proposed revision of "obey" to "keep" will not be misinterpreted by brides. It is an extremely easy misinterpretation, because the spirit among modern wives and prospective brides is so closely allied with the idea that the husband's duty to them is to "keep" them—to "keep" them supplied with every comfort and luxury that he can or cannot afford, and for which neither service nor anything else must be exacted in return.

Not looking upon married life as a "service" to be contributed to equally by man and woman is the very standard to thrust apart the contracting parties. To "love, honor, and serve" each other as a further proposed revision might bear consideration.

ANTOINETTE DONNE AT.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are,

Self-Possessed.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

YOU Virgo people whose birthdays fall during the week beginning Sept. 16 are at ease whether in the presence of king or peasant, in kitchen or in parlor. Not that you are such a wonderful "mixer," but you understand yourself so thoroughly that you rarely lose your presence of mind or forget what you are going to do or say. The fact that you are never awed by superiors and feel a natural equality with all men makes it easy for you to excel in almost everything you undertake. In business, study, play, competition, or effort of any kind you never become abashed or lose hope.

You have a discriminating and orderly mind, and these qualities you carry into both your business and your personal habits, making a valuable organizer in everything that can be reduced to a method. And large interests can be intrusted to your care in perfect safety, the smallest details of which do not escape your rapid scrutiny.

The eyesight of Virgo folk is apt to be the keenest and most powerful of any of the twelve classes, and, being lovers of the beautiful in form and color, you will excel as art critics, engravers, and as proofreaders. In addition to this, you are endowed with a remarkable memory, so as teachers, writers, editors, and lecturers you will have few equals. You will also make successful chemists, dut to the analytical qualities of your mind, along with all these preceding talents. You have a wonderfully exact sense of touch and a keen ear for harmony. So it is that you love music; and, being sensitive to any inharmonious or discordant conditions, your general health is apt to be affected if you have to be surrounded by unhappy conditions. With you, too, cleanliness is next to godliness; you simply cannot rest at ease in a disorderly room.

The accepted order of things is the rule you follow; you never take up with new fads, the old seems far better. A family tree is an essential to your happiness, and this rather exaggerated family clannishness sometimes develops along political lines and finds you the stanch champion of some cause where your elegance of manner and power of influencing and gaining the trust of the public are the means of brilliant successes.

Unlike your Leo neighbor, you can take disappointment with the greatest composure; you rebound quickly from disaster and begin anew with redoubled strength. Inasmuch as you are naturally blessed with perfect health you are restored from fatigue or the appearance of illness by a few hours' rest and quiet. Nature seems an almost infallible remedy for your ills; if you only realize this and keep away from the patent medicines and "cures" that seem to have an uncanny fascination for you your days will be long and happy, for both the men and women in this sign retain their freshness and youth to a remarkable degree. Of course, if you dose yourself perpetually, you'll not come under this head.

With all your passion for giving advice, you are strongly averse to accepting it. Your way of looking at things and your point of view simply cannot be improved upon! And how you do like to advise in love affairs! Indeed, you are a veritable matchmaker. Although you do so like to know about other people's affairs, yet you are good at keeping secrets.

If conditions are satisfactory, you will be very fond of your home, not staying out late nights and being an excellent provider. Some might call you extravagant, but you certainly know how to get the most out of your money.

True companionship for you will be found among those born under Libra, Sept. 24 to Oct. 23, or Sagittarius, Nov. 23 to Dec. 22, and with those in your own sign.

You will be successful with any enterprise begun during the weeks commencing May 10 and Dec. 28, but unfortunate during the week beginning June 21. Your colors are amber, gold, and black; birthstones, "The Virgo born will always find the sapphire will bring peace of mind."

Rising at Introductions.

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you kindly let me know through your column if it is proper for a lady to keep her seat while being introduced to either lady or gentleman; also does the same apply to gentlemen? B. M."

It is not considered correct form for a woman to rise when being introduced to a man, but she should do so if to another woman. In the case of a man, he should always rise on being presented to either a man or a woman, unless the person being introduced is an alderly gentleman.

No Soldier in Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young soldier and I met a young Portuguese girl. I met here last New Year's eve and I have been going out with her ever since. How can I find out if she loves me?

"A. J."

Ask her, ask her. Why haven't you done so long ago? She understands English, doesn't she? And if you have been enjoying her company ever since New Year's eve I shouldn't be at all afraid of what her answer would be. For a soldier you haven't been a bit brave in your love affair.

He's an Athlete.

"Dear Miss Blake: I admire a young man who is in my class in high school. He is in all athletics and good in them, too. I would like to make my acquaintance mean more than just a good morning when we meet. I am 16 and he 17. I see him often around the school and at different school games. He seems to have a good many friends and I would like to be counted as one. Will you please tell me how I may become his friend? M. B."

Why don't you give a party for the crowd and include this young hero? That would show him you classed him among your friends and if he wished to know you better this would give him the proper opening. A well bred girl can't with propriety make many advances toward a man she doesn't know, for these should come from him, if you are to retain his respect. Don't forget that.

Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

May and November.

SOME years ago I attended a Christmas house party in the woods of Maine and recall the experience as one of the sweetest of my life. This was a hunting party given by a man who had some years before lost his wife and was now endeavoring to make life worth the living for himself and all others around him, including his son, who was the apple of his eye, and this great affection was returned in full measure.

Among the guests was a college friend of the son's and his lovely sister. She was barely 20, accomplished, and of unusual culture. The son straightway fell in love and proceeded to inform his father of the fact.

In the course of a few days my host asked for a private interview with his young guest, telling her frankly of his son's love, and how he admired her himself and would be pleased to call her daughter. She graciously, but just as frankly, told him it could not be and that she would be leaving in the morning. This he more eagerly than he realized begged her not to do, adding that with her would go the light and life of the party.

She consulted with her brother and decided to stay.

Later, on that loveliest of nights, Christmas Eve, my host and I sat before the crackling logs in his library, when our little friend came softly toward us, asking if she were welcome.

Our host rose and in his kind eyes was a light that loudly bespoke the great love in his heart for her. He asked why she was not with the young people, and she daringly replied: "Because they are too young for me," and, glancing at me as though my presence gave her further courage, she added: "I like them more of your years, sir."

There were two and twenty years between them, but love reckons not time, and I can in fancy see them now as he gently took her hand and led her up to me, and, for the first time calling her by her Christian name, said, "Mary, in the presence of our dear and mutual friend I ask you to be my wife. I loved you the first day you crossed my threshold, but seriously considered the disparity in ages, and, learning of my son's love for you, I retired to watch with affection over you both, but if it is your choice to be closer to me, I take you to my heart with much love, and for so heavenly a gift I feel a deep gratitude."

And as he talked with her, this grand man of noble mein and loved by all who crossed his path, I knew, though he be past 50 and she but 20, they would live happily ever after. J. K.

NECK AND SHOULDERS MAKE OR MAR THE EVENING DRESS

Says Antoinette Donnelly

"NOW is the time for all good women to come to the aid of their neck and shoulders and, simultaneously, their evening gowns." She who waits till the dancing season is upon her will reap the reward of the foolish, unprepared virgins of Biblical fame—and be sorry.

There are a number of attentions to be given to the neck to rid it of its marks of summer dissipations. Tan and burn are all right in the summer time, but in the winter time 'tis a different thing, you know. No matter how philosophical or how much of an outdoor fan you are, the eye is not trained to see beauty in patchwork skin and an evening dress.

Don't wait till the last minute and then apply some neck bleach that has been recommended indiscriminately. There is much indiscretion in the use of neck bleaches. A bleach which contains lead or mercury is dangerously injurious, and there are a number of these on the market. The following preparation has no harmful ingredients in it and it does effective work: Lactic acid, one fluid ounce; glycerin, two fluid ounces; tincture of benzoin, two fluid drams, and water enough to make sixteen fluid ounces. If the skin shows slight irritation, discontinue for a day or two and use cold cream.

An excellent bleach for a tanned neck is lemon juice. Rub a slice of lemon over the skin of the neck every night just before retiring and let the juice remain on and dry in.

To erase the ill effects of a badly burned skin, massage the neck every night with a generous greasing of cold cream. At the same time you will help rid your neck of its wrinkles if you are troubled with them.

Perhaps during your vacation you just lazed around and took on pounds, some of which extra weight is now resting unbecomingly under your chin. At any rate, whether you got it on your vacation or not, begin tonight and make it as unwelcome as you can.

This exercise is as good a one as can be recommended for the reduction of the chin. You may either stand or sit while doing it, but the standing position is better. Twist the head, first to one side, then to the other, stretching in each direction just as far as possible. Then drop the chin slowly on the collarbone. Follow this with a quick movement that is not a jerk. This brings all the muscles into play. Repeat ten times night and morning, gradually increasing to fifty times. Do not tire the muscles too much at first. Follow this with a massage of the neck with a good cold cream. The massage is accomplished by moving the thumbs with rotary movement from the center of the chin to the ears. A most important thing to remember about this massage is to finish off with an astringent. Use camphorated ice or just plain ice. If you fail to do this you are apt to have "watties" under your chin, which are most unsightly.

Get the habit of holding your chin up all the time, whether you have a double chin or haven't. The contour of your neck is preserved by this measure.

For the hollows at the base of the neck I know of nothing better than the deep breathing exercises.

Stand before an open window in a loose garment. Have your feet nearly together, your chin down, and your arms extended down and the backs of your hands touching. Then gradually raise your chin and arms at the same time until the head is in an erect position and the arms are over the chest. The movement of the hands is carried upward still further and the head is resting on the back of the neck and the hands are separated about the width of the shoulders. From this position the hands should be dropped downward in a large sweep of a circle to the original position. First practice the movements a few times until they have been accurately acquired. Then the forcible respiratory movements should be added. Begin to inhale forcibly as the hands are raised and hold the breath as long as possible while the hands are held right above the head, and exhale forcibly when the arms are being brought down.

Don't confine your deep breathing to the morning and evening exercise. When you walk take a slow, steady breath until the chest is quite full. Do not try to strain yourself in any way, then exhale the breath quietly and slowly. Take a dozen of these breaths and then breathe naturally for about five minutes, then take a deep breath again. Gradually the number of deep breaths will increase rapidly each day.

If your shoulders are not even or are bony or angular, begin now to practice this exercise every morning and night for five or ten minutes: Stand erect with feet close together and both arms extended on a plane with the shoulders so that in the first position the left arm is extended directly in front of the body and the right arm on the same plane directly behind the body. The arms must be held rigidly on the same plane. Then, by a circular movement, the position of the left arm is assumed by the right and vice versa. During the entire movement the feet must be kept firmly planted on the floor, pivoting at the hips only while making the continuous circular movement of the arms.

To Improve Neck, Stretch Neck First from Side to Side, Then Backward and Forward Movemnt.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

DAISY: Glycerin rubbed into the hands while they are still moist counteracts redness. Many skins are too sensitive to use glycerin. In case of that kind equal parts of glycerin and lemon juice, well shaken, may be tried. I shall be glad to send you my instructions for the care of the hands if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

NAN: Don't worry about your loss of weight. Worrying will not help you. The first thing to do is to improve your general physical condition. Get lots of sleep, fresh air, and sunshine. Eat simple, nourishing food and drink lots of water between meals. I shall be glad to send you my instructions on how I helped Helene Barnett gain twenty pounds in five weeks if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope. This gives in detail diet, exercises, and massage.

BILL: Usually a fair complexion gets red from the sun and it frequently turns into tan. The only way I can suggest for you to get a good deep tan is to sit out on the beach for hours daily, and then I am sure you will be the sorriest little girl there ever was, because many times the skin peels and is so sore that it causes intense suffering. If I were you I should be perfectly satisfied with my complexion as it is.

MISS ANNA K.: If you are only 15 and weigh 152 pounds it would be hard to make suggestions as to what would be the most becoming way to wear your hair. If you were normal size I would say wear it in a braid or curls down your back. You might, however, comb it loosely and coil it low on your neck or in a figure eight. Why don't you try to reduce some of your superfluous flesh? I recently helped a woman reduce thirty-six pounds in six weeks, and I am sure you would be interested in trying the same process of reducing. I shall be glad to send you the articles if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. CHARLES G.: I am sorry that your friend did not return your formula for hair curling fluid, but I am printing it for you so you will not be lost without it any longer: One ounce of gum arabic, half an ounce of moist sugar dissolved in three-quarters of a pint of water. When dissolved, add two ounces of rosewater and shake thoroughly. Bottle and use when required. You can dampen your hair with this fluid before using curling tongs or before putting it up in papers or kid curlers.

* *

TILLIE: The breast stroke swimming movement is an excellent exercise for reducing the bust. Stand with your feet about eighteen inches apart and with your arms bent at right angles and hands back to back shoot your arms directly forward, inclining the whole body forward. Then sweep your arms and hands outward in a horizontal plane, extending them back as far as possible without straining. I shall be glad to send you my reducing dietary if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Why Automobiles Collide.

I had been going with a girl for several years, but never could get up quite enough courage to ask her to be my wife.

We were out riding in the auto one afternoon when just as we were crossing a railroad track the motor stopped.

In spite of all my efforts it took several minutes to get it started.

As we rode away I said: "My heart was in my mouth that time." She shyly replied: "If you can't keep your heart in the right place you would better give it to me to take care of."

I just missed hitting a passing auto, ran into the curb, killed the engine, and had her in my arms, all in a second.

B. S.

He Didn't Know She Knew.

A bright June moon was shining overhead as a party of boys and girls were returning home from canoeing and bathing. As we went past a greenhouse full of pretty flowers, some one remarked about it and then the talk drifted to the flowers used as food, then to the high cost of living.

A girl in the party said she could fix lots of nice things to eat and have a fine time if a man with a good disposition making $20 a week was to propose to her. The boy she was with was making $25 a week, and she knew it, although he didn't know she knew it.

Well, he got her to one side and told her that he was the man she was looking for. Now they are married, and he often makes fun of her, saying she popped the question. Anyway, he would never have thought of it if she hadn't made the remark she did.

N. F.

A Smell of the Smelt.

When I was first married I heard my husband mention how fond he was of fried smelts. I had never tasted them, and I decided to have them one evening for dinner. I telephoned my fish man asking him to send me three, as I had heard they were a small fish, about the size of a perch. When my new maid brought in the platter with those three tiny little fish, I stared with amazement, while my husband shrieked with laughter.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

The Woe of the Wooer.

I was a boy about fourteen years old, had just gone into long trousers and I thought I was a man.

One afternoon when told to stay at home, I had gone swimming and later was sitting in an ice cream parlor with my "best girl" when my mother entered.

Taking hold of my ear she marched me out of the confectionery with the girl taking it all in. I was walked home in this fashion, my face red, and knowing that as an aspirant for the good wishes of the girl, I was ruined.

This Would Be Trying.

I came home from work one night and found everybody gone and the key in its usual place under the door mat, and as I was hot and uncomfortable I decided to take a bath.

The lock on the bathroom door was broken, but I was not afraid of any one coming in, because all of our family had gone visiting for the day and would not return until late at night.

I was enjoying my bath so much that I did not hear my folks come in, but I awoke from my day dreams in a second, for I heard my sister, in front of the bathroom door, say: "You can wash your hands in here, Rose."

Could any one feel more embarrassed than I when that door opened and a neighboring young lady started to step in. No, she didn't get all the way in—my yell stopped her.

They Look Alike.

I was embarked for Japan on a steamer employing Japanese servants entirely. On dressing for dinner the first evening I was unable to reach the fastenings at the back of my gown. I opened my door, and, seeing a little Jap, beckoned to him, pointed down over my shiulder, and turned about. He deftly fastened my dress. Imagine my horror that evening on finding myself seated next to him at table. He was introduced as a distinguished Japanese official returning home.

J. B. J.

Right Before Everybody.

When at a movie show a few weeks ago I absent mindedly put my arm on the back of a chair where a lady was sitting next to me. I noticed she was saying something to the gentleman sitting with her. Directly he said in a loud and angry tone: "Say, you fat slob, take your arm from around my wife or I'll knock your block off." Every one around of course heard it.

M. L.

"I, Henry, Take Thee, Gert."

I had a very large church wedding and was a nervous, blushing bride. When it came time for me to respond I looked at my future husband and said: "I, Henry, take thee, Gertrude."

G. M. T.

One Shrink Too Far.

I had gotten in the finals of the oratorical contest and was proud of myself. But something happened which took all my conceit and then some. At the most dramatic part of my oration, where the hero was shrinking away from the villain, I shrank as I thought I should. But I shrank too far—in fact, on my last shrink I backed into one of the judges and sat down in his lap. Well, after that I just couldn't get started again.

M. C.

Kicking the Cuspidor.

A friend and I went into a drug store. While he was buying something I was looking around and swinging on one foot. I heard a noise, and looking I saw the cuspidor rolling, spilling all its contents on the floor. Every one was looking at me and I could feel the blood rush to my face.

The Tribune's Weekly Almanack

SEPTEMBER

Edge of Autumn.

AUTUMN comes to human notice by a curious approach to the perceptions. It touches a vague sense that is not one of sight or sound, hearing, scent or feeling but a composite of all. The migrating warblers which rustle the seed bearing weeds do not noisily announce that summer is dead. The sun returning towards the equator and shortening the day does not deny the still vibrant green where there have been reservoirs of moisture in the soil.

The golden rod flowering, the wild grapes ripening, the sun exposed fields browning and yellowing do not insist, or even relate, that the season of skeleton groves and of monochrome is imminent.

So long as the sturdy white oak leaf remains green on the tree, summer endures. There is a yellow leaf in the foliage. Hazelnuts are ready for picking. Acorns fall. Days shorten. Bird migration fills the thickets and makes dawn cheerful. The late crops of the garden come to pot. And yet there is no outstanding sign that summer is dead. And yet there is a feeling that it is, a sensation not registered in sight, scent, or hearing but existent and dominant. It feels like fall. There is a portent subtly carried in the air. It registers. It makes its imprint on the mood.

Wild grapes are gathered and the housewife makes them into jelly. Hut happiness is a composition of life's minutia made esthetic by the intensifying of phenomena negligible in a careless life.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Looking Foolish.

When I was first married, like every young girl, I thought my husband was the one perfect man. I soon found he had a quick temper and would fly into a passion over foolish little things. I have seen him pull the button holes from his clothes when in a hurry, or stamp on his collar button when it fell from his fingers. This annoyed me and I began seeking a cure.

One day he was sitting on the porch and I went out in the yard to cut some flowers. My hat blew off and I went after it and put it on again. I saw he was watching me, and when the wind again blew my hat off I went after it, saying: "I'll fix that blamed old hat so it won't bother me again." I jumped on it, kicked the crown out, and stuffed the hat into the ash barrel.

My husband remarked: "If you knew how foolish you looked destroying that hat you would surely be ashamed of yourself."

"Do you think," I asked, "a ninety pound woman could look as foolish as a hundred and seventy pound man would dancing a jig on his wee little collar button?"

He looked at me for a second with stormy eyes, then he said: "You win, kid."

L. S.

Preferred a Rag or Two.

We always had good music in my home before I was married and my fiancé seemed to appreciate it and enjoy it as much as the other young men who used to be frequent callers at our home in the evenings. When I was married I received a piano for a wedding present, and I looked forward to many musical evenings, especially as we could not afford to indulge in entertainment that touched our pocketbooks.

I noticed from the first month in our new home that my husband did not seem to enjoy music as much as he had when he was a bachelor. A newspaper and enduring silence were his accompaniment whenever I essayed a little music in the evening, but it wasn't until six months had sped by that he waxed audible on the subject. Then he remarked:

"Can't you confine that highfalutin' stuff to the daytime, when I am out of earshot? Now, if you could only rattle off a rag or two, but that finger exercise, run the scale style of piece sounds like howling nothing to me. It gets on my nerves!"

F. B.

Obliged to 'Fess Up.

Soon after becoming acquainted with my present husband business called him to a distant city for some time, but he asked permission to correspond with me. As writing letters was my special bugbear and having an older sister who was proficient in the art, in a spirit of mischief I engaged her services.

In this way bright and entertaining letters, interspersed with original poetry, were sent to him. In reply his letter grew more and more lover-like. An offer of marriage resulted and a wedding in our home town, where he again resumed business.

A few months later my sister was also married and moved to Honolulu.

In a year or so my husband was again called from home for a stay of several months, but declared himself almost resigned to the separation, as he would again be the recipient of some of my splendid letters. Knowing my shortcomings in that direction, I was obliged to disillusion him, but I must have had some compensating good qualities, as even his disappointment did not shipwreck our married life.

M. L. S.

Not the Same Star.

They had just become engaged, and strolling along a country road one evening she turned to her lover and asked: "Can you tell me, dear, what star it is that shines so brightly?"

"Why that's the star of love, my darling," he replied, as he drew her close and kissed her.

Several weeks after they were married they happened along this same road one evening and feeling lonely and heartsick, she thought of the happy moment they had spent there so recently. On an impulse, she suddenly turned to her husband and asked the same question, when he answered: "It's the evening star you goose."

Resenting Imaginary Slights.

A COMMERCIAL office is no place for a girl whose distorted idea of business etiquette demands from her working associates, both men and women, a "society" manner, and whose supersensitiveness concerning another's conduct toward herself continually finds offense where none is intended.

The first few months of work is nearly always a revelation to the beginner but if she is made of the right stuff it will take no longer than that for her to readjust her ideas as to her own and her associates' manner toward one another.

Every once in awhile we come in contact with a woman who has been making herself miserable for years by exhibiting a constant resentment toward others for imaginary slights and offenses. Miss Anna G., the writer of the letter which follows, tells of an experience which will probably be of benefit to a great many women workers:

"Dear Miss King: I have been a worker for ten years, and it is only in the last five that I have held any one position for over six months, that I have had one that paid well, or was of any importance.

"I am a bookkeeper, and pardon the conceit, a good one. In spite of my ability, which I always fully realized, I was continually throwing over jobs in a huff, due to some fancied insult or offense. So I was losing every chance for advancement.

"Finally, after four miserable years, I came to realize that my inability to get along with people was due to an absorbing self-consciousness, which was responsible for my imagining all sorts of offenses in the manner and speech of my associates.

"It took me a whole year to get this absurd sensitiveness under control.

"It is only in the last few years that I have found what a congenial, and even friendly, feeling can exist in an office, and I realize what a ludicrous figure I must have cut during those first hard years when I made use of a haughty and forbidding manner as a shield against what I imagined was rudeness in others.

"ANNA G."

A girl's early training, at home and in school, is strangely often responsible for her failure in an office, as it is rarely that a girl is brought up with the idea of earning her own living as soon as she has finished her education; that is usually decided as she is about to leave school, and consequently, she has a great deal to unlearn when she gets into the business world. Her brother, on the other hand, is educated with a definite idea as to the place he is to occupy in the world, and takes that place with comparatively few handicaps. This is one of the reasons why all credit is due to the girl who attains success for herself, as in many cases her training is rather a hindrance than a help.

ETIQUETTE by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

CUSTOM has decreed that there shall be certain small courtesies performed for women by men. When a woman enters a room a man should always rise and offer her his chair. If she should drop her handkerchief or her glove or anything else he ought instantly to pick it up.

There are other little attentions which he should show her, such as opening the door for her to enter or leave a room, placing or lifting a chair for her, and helping her whenever he can. In fact, he should always appear quite at her service. It is flattering to a woman to know that the man with whom she is is ready to be of any assistance he can, and not only ready but anxious.

Men sometimes neglect these things from a thoughtlessness that is really a selfishness, and though women often overlook and forgive this neglect they seldom forget it.

Some men may argue that since women are so eager for suffrage rights, they stand on a basis equal to men's in every way; but they err here. Chivalry is so firmly planted in the minds of men and women, we hope, that no attaining of equal rights can ever uproot it.

MRS. T.: During these last hot months women have worn afternoon dresses and even sports clothes for the Country club dinner-dances, as well as evening dress. Now that the weather is cooler evening dress is more suitable. It is more customary, however, for men to wear white suits or white trousers and dark blue coats.

* *

W. J. K.: For a home wedding which takes place in the evening, I am sorry to say that Dame Fashion—or would Sir Fashion seem more fitting here?—decrees that evening clothes must be worn. A dinner coat will not take its place.

* *

D. D. A.: Goldenrod and wild asters make lovely decorations for a porch tea. But take pity on your hay fever guests and do not have too many bowls of goldenrod about, or sneezing will monopolize a great part of the conversation.

* *

U. C.: Nowadays it is not considered necessary for the bride to wear a train, though some prefer to do so. There are many lovely colors at present that are used for the gowns of the bride's attendants. For example, pink and silver is a beautiful combination. The bridesmaids' gowns might be of pink tulle or net with dainty touches of silver lace or embroidery. The gown for the maid of honor could be of the same colors, but of more elaborate design. The bridesmaids should not wear hats, since it is an evening wedding. There are usually four or six bridesmaids. No ring bearer is necessary.

SEVERE ITCHING OF ECZEMA ON FEET

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was afflicted with eczema which began with hot sensations in my feet and limbs, and then followed a rash and itching. The itching was so severe that it was impossible to keep from scratching, and the skin was very much inflamed and red. I could hardly wear my shoes and I could not sleep at night. My clothing aggravated the trouble.

"I got no relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used four boxes of Ointment together with the Cuticura Soap and I was healed completely." (Signed) Mrs. C. Carleton, 730 Christiana Ave., Chicago, Ill., Jan. 3, 1916.

PATTERNS by CLOTILDE
SMART DRESSES for the YOUNG GIRL
Drawn from Exclusive Clotilde Designs by Maude Martin Evers

1345—Girl's frock, 6 to 12 years. For the 8 year size will be needed 1¾ yards of material 36 or 2 yards 44 inches wide for the dress, 1¾ yards 36 or 1⅝ yards 44 inches wide for the blouse.

1346—Girl's frock, 4 to 8 years. For the 6 year size will be needed 3¼ yards of material 36, 2⅝ yards 44 inches wide, with ⅝ yard 36 inches for trimming.

1347—Girl's frock, 8 to 14 years. For the 10 year size will be needed 4¼ yards of material 36 or 4 yards 44 inches wide, with ½ yard 36 for the trimming.

AUTUMN materials are being displayed in new and interesting forms each day. The color is wonderful and the fabrics rich and beautiful. Whatever of justification there may have been in the complaint of shortage here or in Europe there is no evidence to be found these days.

Coats vary in length from the short ones that extend to or a little below the waist to the three-quarter or even seven-eighths length, but there is a prevailing tendency toward the coats of one-half and five-eighth lengths that may be looked for to develop as the season advances.

Skirts are notably longer. Five to six inches from the ground is the length talked by the leading importers and designers, and it is the length we all hope to see prevail. It means grace and dignity together with cleanliness, that practical condition which really is essential to the walking suit. For indoors the skirts clear the ground prettily and gracefully, but aggressive shortness has disappeared, from the really smart models at least.

ASTRONOMY
by CLIFFORD RAYMOND

THE SEPTEMBER SKY
DRAWING BY S.E. MAXWELL

POSITION OF THE STARS AT 9:30 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

EARLY AUTUMN HEAVENS.

WHEN Capella appears above the northwest horizon in the late evening, summer has heard the call which takes it away. Capella is a great sun close to the pole star. It has a short swing around the celestial dome and therefore late in summer it emerges from its period of obscurity to precede the late fall and winter stars, the striding Orion, and the great, brilliant Sirius, the various sparkling points of light which will shine upon snow covered landscape after verdure has gone.

To find this portent of the new season, of the season when the few stubborn leaves of the white oak will be all that remain to indicate what now is green, one imagines a line drawn from the pole star, which the pointers of the Big Dipper indicate, at right angles to the line from the pointers to the pole star and in an opposite direction from the handle of the Dipper. At a distance of forty-five degrees the unmistakable Capella will be found. Remember that the pointers are the two stars in the outer edge of the Big Dipper, and that they are the measuring stick of the heavens. The distance between them is five degrees.

Capella, this portent of falling leaf, frost, snow, and indoor life, is a sun like our sun, in about the same stage of development. It gives out one hundred and twenty times as much light and is forty light years distant, light traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second and a light year being the time required for the light of a celestial body, traveling at this rate, to reach us.

In the east is the great Square of Pegasus. Capricornus and Aquarius are in the southeast. Late in the evening Fomalhaut may be seen rising. Arcturus sets early in the evening, in the northwest, and Corona follows in its path soon after.

The Milky Way crosses the sky from northeast to southwest. In it Cassiopeia, Cygnus, Aquilla, and Sagittarius are the most brilliant constellations. From Aquilla to the southern horizon the Milky Way is divided into two streams.

Denab is on the zenith at 9 o'clock. It is physically the largest of the three suns, Denab, Vega, and Altair, which form so conspicuous a triangle overhead. The diameters of these monsters are: Denab, 50,000,000 miles; Vega, 36,000,000 miles, and Altai, 12,500,000 miles. To compare them with some other suns; in the double star Algol we find the larger star to have a diameter of 1,400,000 miles and the smaller companion 880,000 miles, while our own sun is 880,000 miles across. The three stars first mentioned are some of the giants of the sky, but we fail to see them as such because of their great distance from us.

Do not imagine from this array of figures that our sun is of inconsiderable size, for the sky has its pygmies as well as its giants, as, for example, Diemos, one of the moons of Mars, whose diameter is scarcely ten miles. In fact, the majority of the heavenly bodies are too faint to be seen with the unaided eye. Only the blazing giants attract the eye at first glance. There are millions of stars visible with a telescope, but only about 3,000 possible at one time to the unaided eye.

Several star clusters are visible now, notably the great cluster in Hercules and the double cluster in Perseus. In Andromeda is a naked eye nebula—a vast spiral stellar system, when seen in the telescope. In Hyra is the ring nebula.

The September sky presents an easy and interesting field of study, and by following the map given herewith it ought not to be difficult to locate the constellations and stars about which we have been speaking.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING-HAND
By MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day I shall be thankful. Miss J. F. S." in "The Daily Tribune."

When an address or other information is wanted by mail a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request.

"MAY I have space to say to those who have so generously responded to my request for some remembrance for M. C. that she has received a great many pleasant letters and cards and some other nice things? Since she cannot write, she has requested me to say to those who have remembered her that they have her heartfelt thanks, and those who sent stamps will receive replies as soon as I can find time to answer for her. I have read her letters and cards for her and they will afford her many bright and happy hours. I wish to thank you one and all, and should not each one of you receive a letter, please recollect that I am a busy woman and her sole dependence. Many have sent both books and pictures, and I think we may be abe to help in a literary way. POSTMISTRESS."

A large number of letters have come in response to the appeal made by "Postmistress," as she has noted, and I trust that all those who sent remembrances may see this note of acknowledgment and not mentally accuse the writer of neglect or lack of appreciation. Her excuse for not writing promptly to all is entirely valid.

Poor Man's Rice Pudding.

"I am much interested in the Corner and think you may like a recipe for what is known as 'poor man's rice pudding.' Boil tender half a pound of rice and put it in a baking dish, add sugar enough to sweeten it, one 5 cent can of cream, the canful of water, one egg, and a teaspoon of butter. Mix all well together, cover top with nutmeg or other spice, and bake until brown. Can you tell me what will get nits out of children's heads? They got them at school, and I have tried everything. J. R. G."

The article universally recommended is tincture of larkspur. The hair must be washed with this, then combed carefully, and the application must be repeated again and again until the pests are exterminated. It will take much work and patience to get rid of them. I am obliged to you for the recipe. I have never known the "poor man's rice pudding" to be made with an egg or with butter.

"I have some silk pieces I would send to M. C. C. or to any one who would like them. I send come magazines to a sick girl, N. D., but do not know whether she received them or not, as I had no answer. I am much interested in the Corner and like the good work it is doing. I have gained one friend already through the Helping Hand and would like to gain more, so that if I can be of help in any way I shall be thankful. Miss J. F. S."

The address the writer asked for was sent her, but I do not know if she bestowed all her silk pieces on this person or has any more to give away. Her address will be supplied to any one writing for it. I am glad the Corner has helped her and I hope she may find in it the opportunities she desires for being of service.

Her Appeal Unanswered.

"I have a lot of knitting patterns which I shall be glad to forward to any one wishing them. My mother wrote to you some time ago asking for white rags or old table linen or almost anything in that line, as I need it for a sore. She has received no answer as yet, and we need such things badly. I am therefore taking the liberty to ask again. The sore is not infectious, so no one need fear taking the knitting patterns from me. I trust no one with contagious diseases or cancer or consumption will send me pieces.

"MRS. H. S."

I regret the delay in printing the first letter and hope this one will receive a liberal response. It is cruelly hard to suffer as the writer does and to lack for adequate dressings.

To Make a Quilt for Dolly.

"This is the first time I have ever written to the Corner. I am 11 years old. I want to know if Mrs. A. H. C. still has the silk scraps she offered to give away. If she has, I would be glad to get them, as I want to make a quilt for my doll. I will exchange recipes for them and for other things. R. W."

The silk pieces Mrs. A. H. C. offered have all been given away, but I have no doubt there is some one else who has scraps to present to this young Cornerite. I would be personally interested to see some of the recipes she offers, and probably others will feel as I do.

Getting Rid of Ants.

"Will you kindly print a method of getting rid of ants at the kitchen door and pantry? I have tried salt and pepper, but these do not keep them away, and I would not like to get them into any food. If you can offer any suggestion how to get rid of ants I would greatly appreciate the favor.

"L. M."

Only a few weeks have elapsed since I said that I did not see how there could be an ant infested house in the country because of the quantity of directions we had printed for exterminating them. Let me say now that borax and red pepper will sometimes drive them away; that washing the steps and shelves with kerosene frequently proves effectual in banishing them, and so does the use of carbolic soap put into cracks and crevices and on their runways. I hope one of these will aid Mrs. L. M. to rid herself of the pests.

How I Won My Mate.

How did you win the love of your mate? What measures, if any, did you adopt? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Write on one side of paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Had a Heart.

I was a stenographer in a large office. One day a new clerk came and all day he was the "goat." All kinds of jokes were made at his expense. It was the last straw when one fresh bookkeeper pulled a stool from under him as he was about to sit down. Thirty-four young men and women simply howled in their mirth, the thirty-fifth did not.

She felt sorry for the poor clerk and did not laugh at all.

He says he fell in love with me on the spot because I seemed to be the only one in the whole office who had a heart.

That same young clerk—my husband—is now one of the highest paid managers in the factory and the thirty-four who laughed are in the same old positions or in some that are no better.

Selfishly Generous.

The young man whom I had admired for a long time, made an engagement with me for all day Sunday, and at 11 o'clock I was dressed and waiting for him. We were going to have dinner at my house and then go out walking. It was boiling hot and my clothes were bedraggled looking before I had finished dressing.

The phone rang suddenly and I dashed to answer it, hoping it was he with some cool suggestion. Instead he greeted me in a sad tone, saying that he had met his boss downtown with two tickets for the ball game, and he asked him to accompany him, and he was calling me to find out if he should refuse or go with him. He said he just hated to break our date, but he said he felt bound to go.

O, may be I wasn't happy. I started peeling off my hot clothes before cheerfully answering: "O, I know how you love baseball, and I wouldn't deny you this pleasure for anything. You go on and have your good time, and come over here about 7 o'clock.

"Gee, I hate to do it," he said, "but I guess I will if you'll forgive me."

"Of course I will, silly," I said and hung up the receiver and proceeded to cool myself by the process of elimination.

That night when he rang my door bell I felt fine, and greeted him with the happiest of smiles. He panted up the stairs and caught my hand and held it ever so long, while he told me what a peach I was to be so generous, but I smiled to myself as I thought of how selfishly generous I had been.

Then, before he went home, he asked me to marry him. He said he had been thinking about it for a long time and that he had made up his mind at that ball game that any girl who could be so unselfish and self-denying ought to make the best wife in the world, and I am going to try. H. M.

Housekeeping Experiences.

Did you make absurd mistakes when you first started housekeeping? Of course you did. Every bride has. So tell us about it. And if you are a man—well, surely you can remember what your wife did. The funnier the experience the better. For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. Keep your story on one side of the paper and within 300 words and address it to Housekeeping Experience Editor, "Chicago Sunday Tribune.' No manuscripts returned.

Saving the Carpet.

I came home unexpectedly one morning to find my wife sprinkling the carpet with a can of dried Lipton's. "For goodness' sake, what are you trying to do?" I asked. "Why, Mrs. Jones said that if you sprinkle tea leaves on the floor before sweeping it saves the rug and catches the dust," she calmly replied as she went on sprinkling the entire 15 cent canful about. The house smelled of tea for a month. P. H.

The Unsinged Chicken.

It was my first dinner party after I had been married. Friends of no small importance had been asked to help us eat a fine capon which had been a gift to my husband. I was, of course, anxious that everything be perfect, and I worked hard to that end.

When the bird appeared on the table I discovered to my horror that I had forgotten to singe it. Outside of a few suppressed smiles, no notice was taken of it and all spoke of its fine flavor. "Let us each tell what we think it has eaten to make it so delicious," said one of the men.

It had been fed everything from corn to ice cream, then came the turn of an older woman, a well known joker. With a straight face she said: "I think they fed it hair restorer." A roar of laughter followed, in which even I joined. I never forget to single my chickens again. That was a housekeeping mistake that brought me also my most embarrassing moment. I. F. B.

It "Jelled" All Right.

Shortly after I was married I decided to make a dessert of gelatine and fruit. I made gelatine, as I thought, according to directions, and set it aside to "jell." This was early morning.

About 5:30 I went out to prepare dinner, and my gelatine was as watery as when made, so I became disgusted with it. I poured it in the sink and thought no more of it.

Dinner was over and the dishes washed, and, as usual, I emptied my dish water in the sink. It stayed there.

Our landlord came up and took off some bolts. My gelatine came out of the pipes beautifully "jelled." That was almost eight years ago, and I hardly dare serve jello now, at least if there are guests they are sure to hear of my first attempt in that line. C. E. A.

A Pinch of Resin.

When I was a boy I found in a stone quarry a small box of powdered resin, which probably had been used for packing sticks of dynamite. I filled an empty baking powder can with it and took it home joyfully as a souvenir as boys will do.

Mother put it on a shelf in the pantry for safekeeping. One morning grandmother baked a big plate of pancakes for us boys. She put in a generous supply of the supposed baking powder from my can. Being nearsighted, she never noticed the creamy color of the resin.

You can imagine the groans and exclamations that arose after the first bite. She was highly indignant at our lack of appreciation, but a taste served to convince her that resin was a poor substitute for baking powder.

The Home Harmonious

NOVELTIES FROM REMNANTS

Anita de Campi

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

MAGICAL almost as the pulling of rabbits out of empty silk hats are the beautiful things conjured out of the millionaire merchant's scrapbag. This bag is an actual thing, and not a mere figure of speech. Those who have been "behind the scenes" in any big interior decoration department or studio know that every tiny scrap is hoarded, and the collection is looked upon as a really valuable asset. Nimble wits and fingers are set to work to turn the odds and ends that are heaped therein into novelties for the Christmas trade.

The millionaire merchant is not a miser. He is a past master, though, in matters of thrift, and one whom the average housewife might emulate to advantage. The season is dull, labor is cheap, the bag is full—what better time for the fusion of the by-products of idleness and waste into profitable merchandise?

Some of the articles that at this season are being created in the studio work rooms could be so easily copied by amateur needlewomen at home, and it is a temptation to describe them in detail. Those who have family rag bags and leisure time may profit by the precedent.

A curious feature of the scrapbag objects is that they are all high priced. The argument is not "Let us sell this cheap because it is made out of leftover scraps," but "This thing, being made of rare bits cut from expensive fabrics, can only be duplicated at a high price. This makes it 'exclusive,' thereby enhancing its value," and the mark on the tag is made to drive the point home.

You will ask, What is in the merchant's bag? To be perfectly frank, the contents are much the same as those in the family bag. There are bits of ribbon, cord, upholstery scraps, fringe, lace, galloon, chintz, silk, velvet, satin, and so on. There are no large pieces, but just bits. The addition of one ingredient transforms them all into something sightly, and that one ingredient is gilt lace or gilt galloon. This, added to the most ordinary piece, immediately gives it a holiday air—makes it as merry as a valentine. Really, then, before beginning experimenting with scraps at home it would be advisable to pick up a few remnants of pretty trimmings. In choosing gold lace, select the dark tinted gold. Some is to be found that is almost blackish, and this is more artistic than the light, bright gilt. The lace is to be used on all curved pieces, as it is more easily shaped, and galloon for square pieces or straight edges.

Figure 1 is the sketch of a small table scarf. The short center piece is made of a strip of banding such as was used last year to trim portieres. The side strips are of stamped velvet, and the whole thing is lined with sateen. The novel feature in this cover is the arrangement of the fringe. It is put across the ends of the banding, which is a piece considerably shorter than the side strips. The fringe is repeated at the ends of the side strips.

More ingenuity was exerted in putting the bits of odd sizes together in the square table cover shown in figure 2. Four different materials are used, as well as gold lace and gold galloon. The tiny patches indicated in black are of exquisite moquette; the outside pieces are of faille silk; the center is of velvet, and the corners framing it are of brocade. Gold lace flatly applied, with the scallops turned in, is used on the faille, and the other trimming is gold galloon. In piecing this cover the edges that are placed together are not held edge to edge like a seam, but are lapped flatly one on the other, then stitched, then reinforced by having the galloon stitched over them. This insures the desired flatness.

No. 3 is a 12 inch square vase or candle mat. This is the easiest thing to make. It can be done out of bits of tapestry or upholstery fabric, or even of cretonne or chintz. Two large and one smaller mat make a nice dresser set. When made of heavy material this mat is left unlined. The edges are turned upon the right side, neatly stitched, and then covered with galloon. After this is done gold lace may be whipped to the outside edge of the galloon. Mats of this kind used as candle mats have almost entirely supplanted mats of filet lace. Small pieces have taken the place of more copious table covers. The object of supplying a touch of good color is achieved without concealing the beauty of the table top itself.

Narrow strips of satin, either embroidered or left plain, and lined with silk, make lovely curtain loops for looping curtains back. The ends of the strip, as shown in figure 4, are sewn over little white ivory rings that fasten to a hook at the side of window or door frame. Sets of these curtain loops make charming gifts. They are striking done in black satin.

Figure 5 is a piece of embroidered linen, mounted on art board, bound with ribbon. It is a telephone screen. Towards the center of the top a small round hole has been cut; the mouthpiece of the telephone is unscrewed and screwed back in place again through this hole. At either side a card is pasted and one is supposed to write telephone numbers of friends on one side and of tradespeople on the other.

This seems to be an age of bags. One can hardly have too many of them. Any kind of a bag makes an acceptable gift. Nos. 6, 8, 9, and 10 in the drawing show several of this season's varieties.

No. 6, of chintz, is planned to throw things into when traveling—the brush and comb, nightgown, and other things out of the suitcase, that one carries into the dressing room on the train. Figure 8 is made of coarse ecru linen lined with black taffeta, and trimming is made of an application of small patches of silk in different brilliant colors. The sides and lower edges are joined, but the loop through which the wrist passes had been cut on a fold of the goods. What could be easier to make? It is supposed to be a knitting bag, designed to hold the ball and needles, but could be used for other purposes as well.

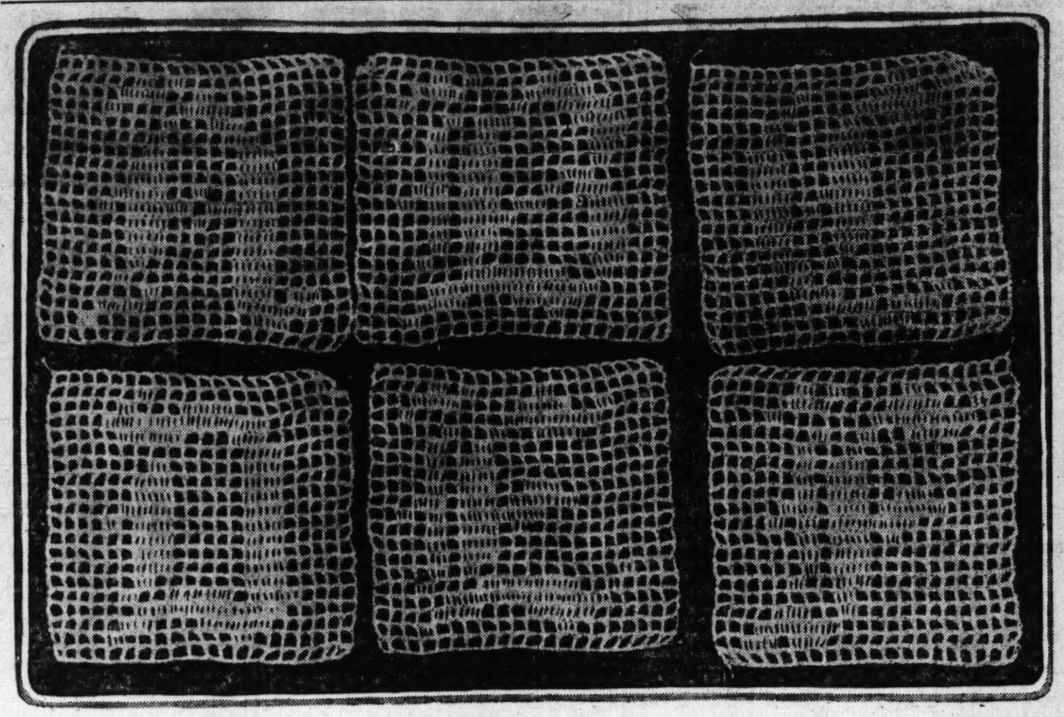
Nos. 9 and 10 are to hold fancy work—little bags that you carry out on the front porch with your bit of needlework. They are made of soft silk and are held wide open, as the silk of which they are made is simply gathered on to an embroidery hoop. Two loops are used in figure 9, and three in figure 10.

Round table mats, not more than 12 inches in diameter, may be made to bring out the fine points of the object placed upon them. A dull green and silver mat emphasizes the color of a coral vase. A bit of copper is made resplendent by a mat of sapphire blue. No. 8 shows the type of mat employed. In this instance it is of old gold brocade with a black satin center and trimming of dull gold thread lace.

Candle shades offer an attractive possibility for the utilizing of small pieces. Figure 11 is made of flat pieces of figured chintz, alternating with fulled bits of plain silk. Wire frames can be bought almost anywhere. No. 12 is more novel. It is white silk sewn to a shield wire frame. It is bound with black velvet and embroidered with large flowers done in dull colored worsteds.

In No. 13 a strip of Japanese embroidery in bright colors on puce satin has open work gilt lace whipped to each side of it, with a band of black satin at either side. The piece this forms is laid over a breadth of cerise silk. The silk shows through the lace and is repeated in an inch wide line that is folded up over at each side. The two ends are bound with a band of black satin. Brocade or figured ribbon could be substituted for the Japanese embroidery.

Old English Alphabet in Filet Stitch.



This is the first installment of old English alphabet in filet crochet. The rest of the alphabet will follow in order in three succeeding Sundays. This alphabet should prove invaluable for the needlewoman who is already beginning to make her Christmas presents.

These letters have many uses and may find a place wherever an initial is needed. They have been used for towels, handkerchiefs, pillow cases, baby's dress, or the central design of a yoke.

As most needleworkers know, filet is a lace made up of open squares or meshes, and the design in crochet is worked out by filling the meshes with trebles, two trebles in each mesh and one treble over each treble.

Begin each letter with a chain of 45, turn with 5 ch., and divide the long chain into twenty meshes. In the second row the form of the letter begins. These designs admit of no errors; each space should be filled exactly as shown.

If the plan is not perfectly clear, consider each letter a square of blocks twenty by twenty. With a pencil draw and divide this square, filling open spaces with dark shading outlining the letter desired, following the illustration until the drawing is perfect.

The crocheting can then be commenced intelligently, and there will be no errors.

Utilising Eggs White.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "Frequently I make a salad dressing which calls for two egg yolks, and the whites are often wasted for the want of knowing what to do with them. Can you tell me of some simple, easily made dessert? Perhaps an article on what to do with separate portions of the egg would be appreciated."

Similar requests not being infrequent, perhaps a new article on this subject would be appreciated. Our own cook books do not suggest many ways of using the whites. On the other hand, we are not as cosmopolitan in the use of the yolks in many things as other nations are, so that when we have leftover yolks from cake we do not know what to do with them any more than when we have whites. We do not use them to thicken soups and sauces, as do the French and others, and we use the whole egg in custard.

In fine cookery, soups and sauces are rarely thickened with flour or other starchy stuff, but always with egg yolk, the soup poured over it in many cases. In such cookery the egg yolk alone is used for all custards and cooked creams, the latter being the basis of many elegant desserts, unfrozen and frozen.

All the cold sauces like mayonnaise, itself a basis sauce of many possible variations, and hot sauces, both sour and sweet, are thickened with egg yolk and nothing else. Hollandaise (hot) sauce, called outside of Holland in other parts of Europe Dutch sauce generally, is one of the sour sauces and foamy sauce, originating in Italy under the name of zabalone, is one of the sweet egg yolk sauces.

In foreign cookery one of the ways of utilizing egg white, which keeps far better than the yolk, is to use them for cakes like the lady finger, the whole class of which are called "biscuits," or "bispuits" in foreign cookery. In a little Italian cooking school I saw these one day made of some leftover whites, sugar, flour, and flavoring. Another day they sweetened and flavored the egg whites, poached them in milk, then thickened the milk and poured it over the cooked whites to make what we would call a snow pudding.

In one of my German cook books, under a lot of recipes grouped under the title of egg (das ei), there is a recipe the literal translation of which is "milk soup with egg white dumplings," but it is nothing more than our snow pudding, although the variations of it suggested are not familiar in our cookery. One of these is that before the eggs are poached in the milk, an ounce of elder flower blossoms should be cooked in it, allowed to cool, the whole then strained and heated for poaching the spoonfuls of beaten, sweetened, flavored egg white. There are other suggestions. One is that the egg white be cooked or poached in the plain milk, heaped up in a dish, and served with a fruit sauce. In the first or main part of the recipe it says thicken the milk with egg yolk, or instead with potato starch, using vanilla sugar for flavor.

In German cookery there are not a few other ways of using egg white. The term egg snow is used in these books to save telling that the egg white must be beaten. Somewhere in one of these there is a recipe for whipped egg whites sweetened and flavored with lemon and served in glasses with a sauce without cooking.

In German cookery egg white is a good deal used with gelatine in such a thing as a "zephyr cream," which is much like a mousse. We would hardly favor flavoring these with peppermint, yet one recipe calls for this and as an alternate gives "any strong liquor."

Anything with the name "torte" originated in Germany, and not long ago I received a request for a "chaume torte," which is the way some have spelled the German "schaume torte!" Alas, I could not remember at that time that this recipe appears in German as "baisertorte," baiser being kiss. Now, I have tried out a recipe for "baisertorte" from one of the German books, and besides that Mrs. Lillian Ross has contributed her recipe for "schaume torte."

As everybody knows, kiss in cookery is another name for meringue, the latter term being used in general for a kiss of a rather large size filled with whipped cream or ice cream. The larger a kiss or meringue is the more likely it is to have a marshmallow like center. A schaume torte is a large meringue baked in a ring or torte mold and filled with whipped cream.

Now, as everybody knows, it is not an easy thing to cook a meringue as it should be cooked—that is, dried out. A great brick oven after the other baking is done and the heat is a great deal reduced is what the professional baker uses. The German recipes emphasize that all the heat must come from the top and none from the bottom.

In discussing egg whites, after going to the cook books of several nations it is hard to know where to stop. But one German point is worth marked attention. In a German article about the beating of egg white emphasis should be placed on the fact that the air in the room must be clean and pure. Did you ever taste a bakery angel cake that had almost a doughnut flavor? Doughnut or other frying is so often done in bakeries that I can get its flavor in nearly everything made there. Even the egg white used to glaze the buns will absorb it.

Answers to Inquiries.

R. C.: Rep silk in diaper pattern would be in keeping for the upholstery of the furniture which you describe and would have the desired restful effect. Either olive green, mulberry, or old blue would be good. Use a gate leg table and a mahogany standard lamp. Sunfast material would be the best selection for your draperies and it would be nice to have them match in color with the material you choose for your upholstering of your chairs.

* *

MRS. W. E. S.: I think your own ideas of using the poplin, like sample, with gold and black braid, is as good as any suggestion I could offer. If you could get a braid with a touch of mahogany in it, it would be better than just the black and gold.

* *

ETHEL M.: Unless you are going to spend a great deal of money to buy genuine oriental rugs decide upon the two tone gray rugs instead. Either black walnut or ivory would be nice for your bedroom, but whichever you select it would be well for you to decide upon the same wood for your dining room furniture and a little of the same for your living room, so that you could change the chairs about if you wish to do so.

* *

A. B.: The height of the molding from the floor depends upon the height of the room. Often dining rooms are divided into an upper third and lower two-thirds, the upper third is papered and the lower two-thirds paneled. Yes, you could use striped paper on the lower part of your dining room and figured paper above, with a narrow molding separating the two. The sample you have marked No. 2 would, I believe, be best for the upper and have sample No. 1 for the lower. I should choose a rug of dull green with a darker green border in preference to tan or brown.

J. F. H.: No, I do not believe a red rug can be painted blue. Dyeing is possible, but when a red rug is dyed blue it naturally keeps the reddish tinge which makes it purple. On account of scarcity of dyes due to war orders are not being taken now for the dyeing of rugs excepting in black. Thank you for your many compliments.

* *

W. A. K.: Enamel is in higher favor than oak. Use a pale amethyst for your bedroom which opens off of the room with the red carpet. In the bedroom use chintz draperies with a gray ground and mulberry and sage green figures. Have a lamp with a silk shade in a good tone of American Beauty red.

* *

H. F. R.: It is not necessary to place anything on the top of your china cabinet. Doylies are not objectional if you choose to use them, but avoid having your china cabinet cluttered up with a miscellaneous lot of things. Keep it simple and neat. The same rule applies to the buffet. Since you have plenty of hand painted china, the place for you to show it is on the table when it is in use. Keep it put away when not in use. Leave on your buffet a simple arrangement of not more than three or four pieces. If the paper is figured in your dining room do not use pictures. Some German lithographs simply framed might be attractive if the paper is plain. Select just a few that are in harmony.

* *

F. M.: Use mahogany pink for your side walls in your living room. A light gray would be pretty for the lower part of your bedroom, using a chintz for your inside draperies that will combine all of the other colors in the room. It would be permissible for you to use a figured paper above your plate rail in your dining room, leaving the lower part brown as it now is.

Waffles.

Two eggs whites beaten stiff, one scant cup of flour, a half teaspoon of salt, and a scant cup of milk or just enough to make the desirably thin batter. Heat waffle irons slowly, turn batter dough as fast as you can, turning the iron just before and then immediately after the batter is on. Choose an iron with not too high points—small and fine is best. There are a good many points in waffle making which must be learned by experience. If there is any chance of burning cakes, turn every half minute. Slowly heated irons carefully greased and never washed bake without trouble.

Mrs. Ross' Schaume Torte.

For sixteen people: Whip eight whites for one-half hour and gradually add to them two and one-third cups of fine granulated sugar, one scant half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon vinegar, and one tablespoon of vanilla. Put in quite hot oven, turn out one burner, and bake for one hour. When ready to serve take off ring, break down top, and cover with whipped cream, and then with fruit if you will—strawberries in strawberry time. Of course the vinegar helps to stiffen the torte.

Baiser or Schaume Torte.

Beat four egg whites fifteen minutes, then beat into them a little at a time one cup of sifted finest granulated sugar and finally a teaspoon of vanilla. Butter a torten mold or ring, which is a tin plaque with a tin ring which shuts around it and fastens with two wires. If you have not such a ring make one of stiff paper and set it in a straight sided Washington pie tin. It will be all the better if there is the arrangement by which the cake is loosened from the bottom. Smooth the top as you do an icing, or put the preparation in little knobs to make a symmetrical knobbed top surface. Put in a 400 degree oven, leave fire as it is five minutes, then turn as low as possible and leave in oven for one hour, or longer if you want the center dryer. If the center is wet when the torte is removed from the oven you may cut the whole in two and dry the inner side just as meringues are dried. Put whipped cream between the halves and serve.

Egg for Baby.

A high born Italian woman has recently told me that her mother allowed her children only simple food as a part of their moral training, and that this recipe, which I translated from an Italian cook book and printed some years ago, was just what she sometimes had as a child as a sort of confection, since she was never allowed candy: "Do you know how to quiet a crying child who is a dainty eater? If you have a fresh egg beat the yolk well in a bowl with two or three tablespoons of powered sugar, then beat the white to a stiff mountain and mix the two. Put the bowl before the child and give him a slice of bread to dip in it, with which he will make a yellow mustache and become most highly contented."

Answers to Correspondents.

R. S.—September is a good month in which to set perennials and shrubs. I would not attempt to shift a hydrangea when it is in bloom. Tuberous begonias are tender and must be wintered in frost-proof quarters.

MRS. E. F.—Try the kerosene emulsion on the plants infested with scale.

W. H. S. writes: "I had the same trouble you speak of with hollyhocks and came to the conclusion that it was caused by too much moisture in the ground. If the place is so located that it cannot be ditched the surplus water can be got rid of by digging a hole about two feet deep near the plants."

E. P. S. writes: "I see that you have a great many inquiries about ant exterminators. The most effective remedy I have ever found is tobacco. Make a strong solution of it. Use the stems that can be bought cheaply at any cigar factory, boiling the infusion down well. Give the ants two doses of it and I will guarantee no more ant trouble. For gooseberry and currant worms, take buttermilk and dilute two-thirds. It is a sure cure, if sprayed on the plants."

MRS. E. D. C. writes: "I write to tell you how you can speedily kill the large red ants that invade the garden. After buying various advertised 'exterminators' and gasoline without avail, I tried the method used here by the Spanish-Americans. I dug holes about the ant nests deep enough to admit the insertion of a tomato can, leaving the top level with the surface. Then I filled these cans half full of water. In five minutes the ants were tumbling in as fast as they could. When several hundreds have been drowned, empty the cans and put in fresh water. In a few days you will have no more trouble from red ants. I am glad to pass this information on."

DR. J. K. M.: September is the best month in which to transplant seedling perennials. Fall transplanting, if done early in the season, is far preferable for this class of plants, as it gives the plants plenty of opportunity to make new roots and establish themselves before winter sets in. They will bloom next spring and summer. Some of our perennials are of such an ironclad nature that they will survive the severest winter without protection, but they are able to do this only at the sacrifice of a good deal of their vitality. I would always advise giving winter mulching to all perennials, hardy or otherwise.

MRS. B. VAN M.—The specimen is dodder. This is a parasitic plant that lives on whatever plant it attaches itself to.

MRS. W. N. E.—I have given my opinion as to use of castor oil and tea dregs on plants, and can only add that if persons will persist in using them I have little sympathy for them if they lose their plants.

MR. S. W.—You can replant your asparagus bed this fall if you care to do so.

MISS F. P.—Use lime water as frequently advised for worms in plants.

MRS. M. E. H.—"Success with Flowers" was discontinued years ago. I do not know of a strictly floral magazine that I would care to recommend. We haven't any.

The following communication from a reader on the clematis questions deserves a place in this department. I am glad to use it:

"The plants should be placed in a good soil, well drained, and on a sunny exposure. As soon as the new shoots have formed the old vine tissue should be carefully cut away close to the new shoots, removing all traces of the brown, discolored wood in which the fungus is to be found. Proper ventilation is obtained by training the plants to a strong trellis. The department of agriculture found that the primary cause of the dying of these plants is a fungus known as 'ascochyta clematidina.'"

BRIGHT·SAYINGS of the CHILDREN

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Jackson was attending a birthday party. He politely accepted everything passed to him, but when a certain dish was offered him the second time, he said: "No, thank you, I only took it before to be polite." C. D.

When the guard was called to the border the officer asked his 3 year old son to take good care of mother, which he promised to do. A short time after he behaved as all lively boys of that age do, and his mother said: "Son, you have not minded your mother very well since father went away," and he replied: "No, I haven't; but I've taken awful good care of you just the same." X.

Daniel was learning to play the piano. With great labor and twistings of the face he had picked out "Chop Sticks" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," when his mother came along. She hadn't played the simple melodies for years, but she offered to help him. After several false starts and many mistakes, Daniel pushed her gently aside. "I'm afraid, mother," he said, "you'll never grow up to be an orchestra." P. W.

The teacher had offered a prize for the largest number of flies killed by any one of her pupils. One day, after school hours, Max came into the house crying bitterly. "What on earth is the matter?" inquired his mother.

"W-why," sobbed the little fellow, "I—I was swatting flies, and—and one of—of them was a—a hornet!" A. L.

Harry had fallen into the barrel again, despite many warnings about taking apples on the sly, especially since the supply had run low in the barrel. "What's that?" I called threateningly through the kitchen cellar door. No reply. "What's that?" I demanded. A small, scared voice proclaimed, "Nobuddy, Doody, but the appuls." C. H.

Frances was attending her first concert. The orchestra was in the midst of a polonaise, when she looked up at her mother and said: "It sounds like a wreck."

Maurice dislikes to wash his feet before going to bed. Last evening, after the usual argument that they were not dirty, he remarked, as he picked up his second foot for the scrub: "Gee, I'm glad I'm not a spider." Mrs. W. T. B.

When we were married we went on our honeymoon to visit a friend in Indiana. Upon arriving at the door we were greeted by their little girl, who said: "O, mamma, come quick; the bridal and the broom are here." D. L. J.

The World is Picture-Minded

¶ This is the age of pictures.

¶ The whole world is in a hurry—it has no time to visualize cold facts. It must see them hot in the making.

¶ The news of a great battle, the crowning of a king, the destruction of a city, the waste and slaughter of a battle field, even the little local happenings that cold type formerly portrayed, must now be done in pictures.

¶ The day of word painting is done. Photo-presentation is the cry in everything—in amusements, in education. It is the only adequate way, the only vivid way to tell the story.

¶ Therefore, this great innovation in journalism—the world brought before your eyes by actual photographs of the people, events, places and things made prominent in the world's news. The Illustrated Review is to journalism what moving pictures are to the theatrical world.

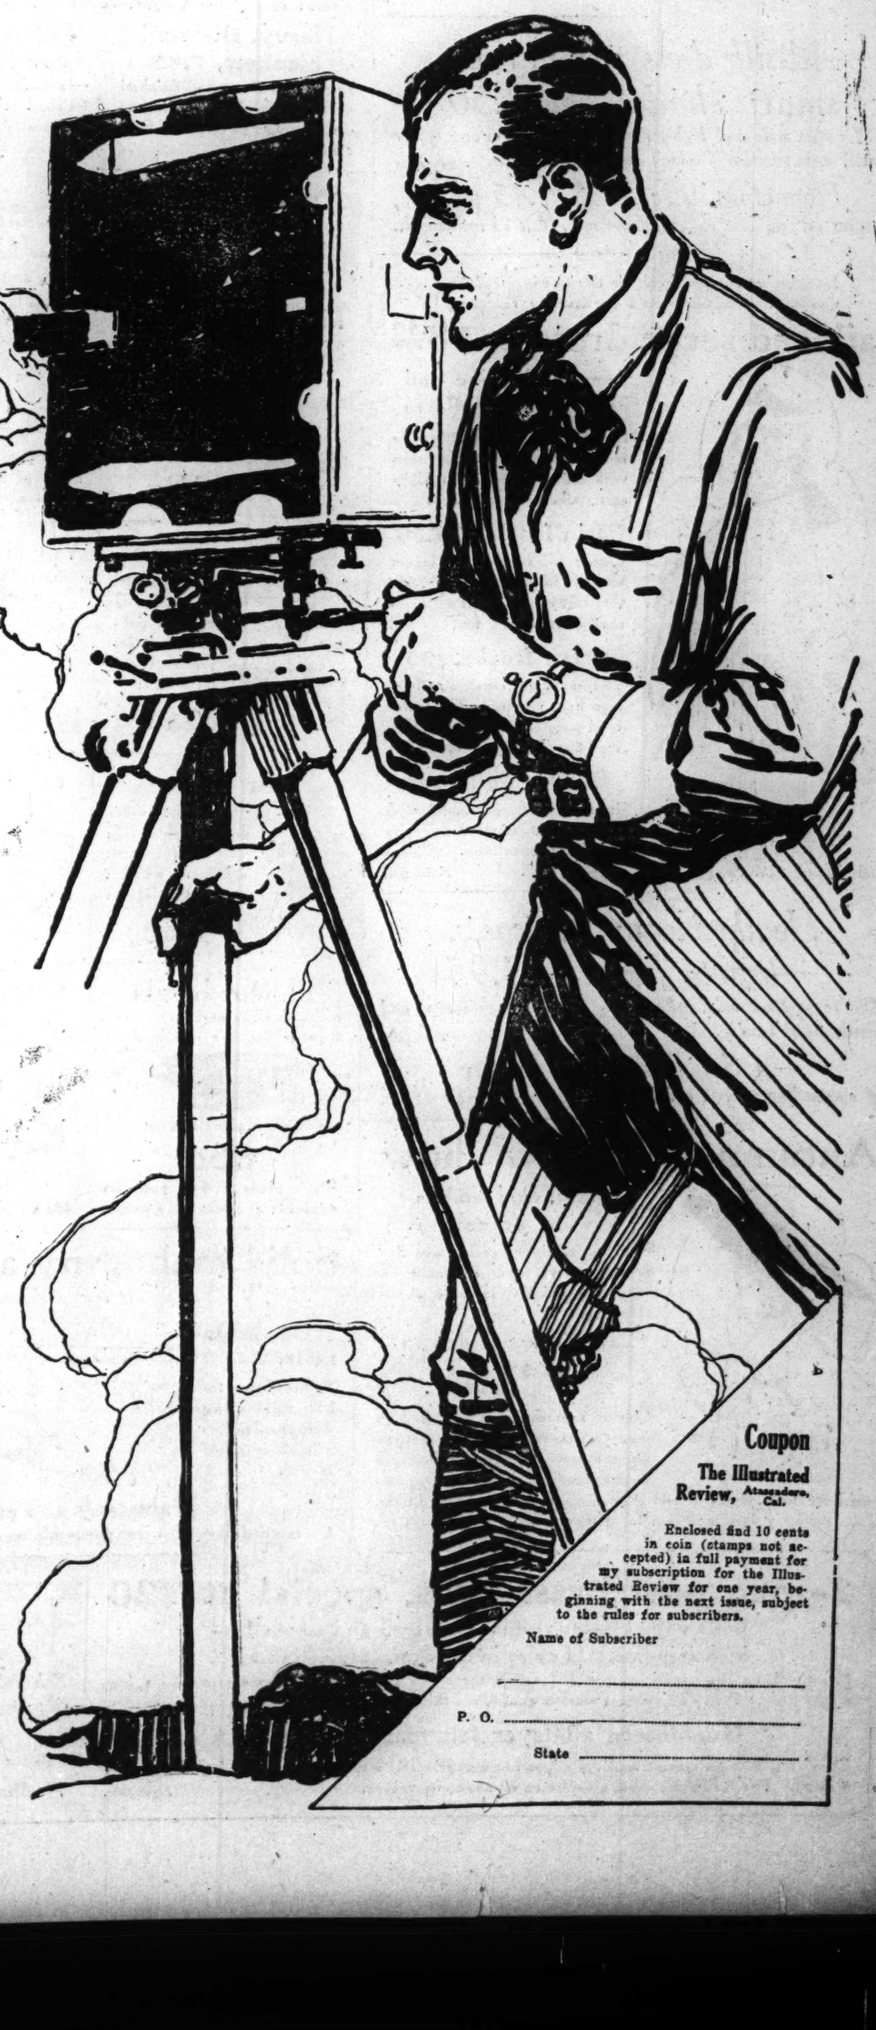
¶ You'll marvel at the publication—and you'll never cease marveling at the subscription price—10c a year.

¶ You ask how it is possible.

¶ The answer is in the newly applied Rotary-Gravure process. That's the secret.

¶ The Rotary-Gravure Process of Reproduction permits a tremendous saving in labor, in time, in material. It enables us to give our subscribers The Illustrated Review at the phenomenally low price of 10c a year.

THE ILLUSTRATED REVIEW 10¢ a year



The low subscription price is made possible only by large production. An additional million of subscriptions will be accepted at 10 cents per year. Advertising rates, the vital factor in meeting production costs of all publications, depend upon circulation. We want an additional million by January 1, 1917. Subscribe for The Illustrated Review now. Send in your dime today. It will be the most profitable investment you ever made.

Each Issue of The ILLUSTRATED REVIEW Contains:

a monthly service of photographs from the war fronts in France, Germany, Austria, Russia, Poland, Italy, Africa, Greece and the Balkans—by sea, by land, and by air, together with an additional immense service by photographs from every quarter of the world, showing the actual happenings, people, places and things of the whole world's news—reproductions by Rotary-Gravure process in delicate tints of sepia and olive, rendering the beauty and faithfulness of the original photographs.

There are also pages of the very latest fashions, hats and gowns; a page of SPECIAL interest to children, and beautiful fine arts reproductions, every one of which is worth framing and all reproduced in exquisite detail by the Rotary-Gravure process. There is very little reading matter, but pages and pages of photographs—the story of the world's progress by the camera.

The Subscription Price of The Illustrated Review is TEN CENTS PER YEAR, Subject However to the Following Rules for Subscribers:

Rule I. Subscription price, 10c per year, payable in advance in silver (stamps not accepted).

Rule II. No change from the address originally entered for the subscriber will be made without the payment of 10c additional. It costs as much to make an address stencil and record to change an address as it did to make the original one.

Rule III. No acknowledgement of subscriptions will be made other than to send the paper itself. When your subscription is out, your paper will be marked, and if you do not renew, it will stop coming.

Rule IV. No subscriptions for more than one year are taken at 10c per year.

Rule V. No letters will be answered relating to any other matters than sending the Review unless 10c is enclosed with each letter to help pay the expense.

Rule VI. No premiums, prizes, commissions, credits or discounts are given subscribers.

In order to produce such a journal successfully at such a subscription price, a vast volume of production must be had, hence the subscription price of 10 cents per year.

Send in YOUR DIME TODAY and get this month's issue of this remarkable journal.

No back copies are obtainable and you will want to bind the year's issue, for it will be a moving picture superbly reproduced, of the actual photographs of the world's people, places and events for the year.

Don't put off the sending of your dime. The subscription price of 10 cents a year is liable to be increased. The cost of paper is going up day by day—so is ink—all materials entering into the production of publications. We are likely to be forced—against our wishes—to raise the subscription price any time. Her Engagement to Louis A. Salade Jr. Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Westerlund of 866 Buena avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lillian, to Louis A. Salade Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Salade of Catasauqua, Pa. The marriage will take place in November.

War Charities to Combine in Allied Bazaar.

By Mme. X.

JUST as 1802-3 was known as the world's fair year, and 1904 was dubbed the Streets of Paris winter, so the coming season will go down in history as the year of the allied bazaar. The major part of Chicago society will be connected in some way or other with the organization and carrying out of this big enterprise, which will bring to our midst representatives, exhibits, and products from every one of the ten countries engaged on one side of the great European war.

Ten countries, did we say? Pardon the error; for a moment the oldest republic in the world, the little commonwealth of San Marino was forgotten. A few months after the war began and before Italy entered the ranks of the allies, San Marino formally threw down the gage to the Teutonic powers. Let us hope that this enterprising people will be represented at next winter's bazaar.

Since the project was first tentatively approached a fortnight ago by a group of men and women, including Henry J. Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. John Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Hamilton McCormick, Allen Haines, and Robert Dunham, the necessary $40,000 to float the undertaking has been raised and the event assured.

It will be held at the Coliseum for a fortnight in January and will be the all-absorbing thought during its preparation and its operation, requiring, as it will, the active cooperation of hundreds of workers.

It is to include not only residents in and near Chicago, but from the entire country within a fifteen or twenty hours' distance of us. Minneapolis, St. Paul, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Detroit will all be asked to form committees to work for the Chicago bazaar. Excursions from the east, west, north, and south will be arranged.

Eliminates Similar Philanthropies.

The money raised—and a huge sum is expected—will be divided among the many various enterprises to aid the entente, which associations since the beginning of the war have sent money, supplies, and other evidences of sympathy to the millions of war sufferers.

This will eliminate from the winter's social and philanthropic program the many different entertainments that in the last two years have been gotten up by various groups of people to lure money from the pockets of the generously inclined, but somewhat apathetic public. I use the last adjective advisedly, for with so much literature on the war and its terrible fruits it would seem as if our country people would find it impossible to enjoy the fruits of our prosperous peace without rushing to share some of their abundance with the sufferers in other lands, and yet, unless organized and urged, they seem quite capable of curbing and even entirely suppressing any such impulse.

There are probably hundreds of thousands of well to do Chicagoans who have never given directly or indirectly to any fund for the benefit of war sufferers on either side of the conflict. It is these whom the founders of the allied bazaar hope to reach.

Coliseum a Polyglot Village.

The Coliseum will be turned into a thoroughly polyglot village. There will, as in the Streets of Paris, be a central avenue with the various shops or bazaars lining it on either hand, each representing as far as possible the architecture of its people. All the ten—no, eleven, we hope (God bless San Marino!)—governments represented are preparing to send not only characteristic products to sell, but wonderful war exhibits, guns—uniforms, war kits, aeroplanes, including that of the famous Pegoud, hospital appliances, historic mementos, and, above all, official war movies of famous scenes and battles. These will be shown every evening during the bazaar and will visualize for us the great conflict as nothing else could.

The Russians will offer for sale the curios, varied and beautiful handiwork of their peasants, such as weavings, metal work, embroideries, and laces.

Count Bolognesi is getting up a most interesting collection of Italian specialties, including such famous products as Venetian glass, lace and mosaics, Florentine pottery and mosaics, Genoese filigree gold and silver works, Roman mosaics and filet work, and Neapolitan corals and tortoise shell.

Mr. Palenbech is collecting the distinctive products of the Balkan peoples, Roumanians, Serbs, and Montenegrins, which include rich embroideries and hand woven stuffs.

Japan will have an enchanting booth with Japanese salesmen and saleswomen. Portugal—almost a terra incognita to most of us—will be represented, while, of course, England and France will be among the most conspicuous contributors to and participants in the bazaar.

Behind Other Cities.

Once more this column ventures to call the attention of the community to the fact that Chicago has not come up to the standard of generosity set by such other great cities as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. It is not so much a question of which way your sympathies lie as where the suffering is greatest. Even the most arden pro-German can sorrow over eastern France, Belgium, Serbia, and Poland—Poland, the most unhappy of all.

Speaking of war torn Europe, don't you feel, as you look on those moth eaten, suffering trees in Grant park near Randolph street, as if you were gazing on one of those battle scarred forests in the Somme region? Why, when they planted them last year, the powers that be didn't arrange for some sprinkling device which could quickly wash off the inevitable soot and cinders that have choked their young life out of them it is hard to understand.

Like the Bandarlog people, we enthusiastically begin now this, now that, and quickly forget and neglect each project in our zeal for a new one.

Melpomene once more stirs in the slumber into which Mrs. Arthur Aldis' preoccupation in Red Cross work seemed to throw the tragic muse. A new play is being cast by the Lake Forest players and Mmes. Maurice Browne and Volney Foster with Charles Atkinson, Herman Gade, Charles Dewey, Prentiss Cooley, and Allen Haines, are now studying their various rôles in a play by Zoe Aikens called "The Magical City," which, in a fortnight or so, will be ready for presentation in the Aldis play house.

In the gayest of times these performances are always a distinct event and are especially welcome in suh a socially arid season as the present one.

Lake Lures Northern Resorters.

Many people in Chicago discovered the lake last summer for the first time. If it remained for the fervid season of 1916 to demonstrate the source of delight and comfort that has always lain at Chicago's threshold awaiting recognition, the summer colonies at the northern end of the lake have not been so obtuse. At Charlevoix and in the region of Georgian bay sailing and motor boating have for years been the main sports.

This last season a Winnetka coterie, who annually forsake that classic suburb's mosquito infested lawns and groves, have literally lived on their motor boats in those northern waters. The Albert Kaleses, the Mancel Clarks, and the Ayers Boals have, each family in its own motor boat, explored every nook and cove of that part of the country, and, to complete their summer's nautical program, the Boals, with their four children, are making the return trip from Charlevoix in their good sized motor boat, Winnetka II.

They feared the dangers of railway travel at a time when that infinitesimal infantile paralysis germ might lurk in a sleeping car berth, so they decided to cruise along the coast of Lake Michigan, keeping pretty close to shore all the way around the south end of the lake, and lying up each night in some safe haven, though sleeping and eating on board their craft. They left Charlevoix last Friday and expect to cast anchor off Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson's lovely place on the bluffs of Winnetka some time tomorrow. Mrs. Johnson is Mrs. Boal's mother and the Boals' home is just across the street from the Johnson place. After landing his family, Ayers Boal will turn his boat southward to the land locked and picturesque harbor at the intake of the north shore outcut in Wilmette.

This spot, by the way, with its rows of frail, wind blown trees, its little, glassy harbor filled with pretty boats, and its broad, artistic, beautifully lit cement bridge is one of the most attractive features of Sheridan road. Slowly this great highway is developing some of the qualities of combined usefulness and beauty hoped for it by its original planners.

Fullers Join North Side Colony.

One more south side household is demobilizing and moving to the more densely populated regions of that narrow strip of land which lies on the north side east of Dearborn street and north of Ontario street. This latest addition to the north side colony are the Leroy Fullers, who have taken, for two years, the apartment at 936 Lake Shore drive, now occupied by the Medill McCormicks. Among their neighbors under the same roof are Mrs. C. M. Ely, the Ernest Walkers, and the Augustus Peabodys.

That particular locality is, by reason of its nearness to the lake—those big apartment buildings hang right over the water—considered desirable and is much sought after, but added to its undoubted beauty are some dramatic and tragic possibilities not perhaps taken into consideration by the nondweller there. One resident in the apartments at the turn of the drive told the present writer that in the last two years she had seen eight suicides there by unhappy mortals seeking peace in the lake. But, as this sad spectacle is the inevitable accompaniment of any water front, even of such a crowded highway as London bridge, the residents of the Lake Shore drive need not feel that they are unduly afflicted.

The garden fête last Wednesday in the lovely grounds of the William J. Hibbard Jrs.' Winnetka place was one of the summer's most successful affairs—for so warm, balmy, and perfect was the evening that it should be strung on summer's string of perfect evenings. A fairly husky young moon seemed to linger in the western sky as if anxious to share some of the business of illumination. All over the garden Chinese lanterns swayed on slender bamboo sticks. A circle of them danced on the edge of the pool and cast lambent images of themselves in that black mirror.

The entertainment and company were accommodated in the great tennis court—not, as originally planned, on the rustic stage and adjacent lawns. This court, the finest of its kind in this part of the world, was an ideal place for the enterprise. It is of splendid proportions, entirely floored over, and surrounded by a high vine covered wire screenlike fence. The whole length of one side is bordered with an alley or pergola, also vine covered. The tennis courts proper are floored with canvas and a row of strong electric lights, high perched on the top of the fence along both sides, was placed there when the courts were built so as to make possible tennis after dark.

The company on Wednesday evening sat, 500 strong, around three sides of the inclosure with the orchestra—symphony men, led by Charles Elander—on the fourth side. Henri Scott of the Chicago Opera company gave some songs in a most spirited manner, his fine barytone voice swelling out and filling even that big place with melody. Mrs. Thomas Meinnerrey of Winnetka made a charming picture against the dark shrubbery, as she accompanied Mr. Scott on a large piano that seemed to accumulate the dew on its rosewood surface as the evening wore on.

Russian Dancers Entertain.

The Russian dancers, Serge Oukrainski and Andreas Pavley, sprang out in turn from the shadowy recesses of the rear arcade into the center of the court and gave some dramatic dances in wonderful costumes. They were Slavic and fascinatingly bizarre. When Pavley gave the sword dance of Prince Igor he ripped up the Hibbards' canvas flooring in fine style with his vorpal sword and frightened some of the fair ladies in the front row, who hoped Prince Igor didn't, as a rule, cut off noses in his frenzy. This Prince Igor did not, but presented some stunning pas seules, as did Ukrainski, especially in the latter's final number, the Persian dance, where his poses and Persian blue costume against the night's shades made striking pictures.

A tidy sum was made for Arden Shore.

Some of the amateur marines who had recently returned from their cruise on the U. S. S. Louisiana were there that evening, among them William E. Hale, Laird Bell, and Preston Kumler. Their cruise was cut short by the threatened railway strike.

Sixty-four Chicago men were urged by their officers to start for home last Friday, so they radioed to land for train accommodations. Arriving at the railway station, they found themselves on a train with exactly three upper berths for the sixty-four men! Many of them didn't even have seats for the trip, but had to stand up most of the way.

Does it prove one a captious critic to suggest that there seems to be a lack of coöperation between the government and the railways? Is there no way of bringing about some better understanding between the latter and the secretaries of the navy and of war? First we know service in the defense of the nation may become unpopular.

The column is glad to correct an erroneous rumor, which it reported last week only as a rumor. The Arthur Meekers are not planning to leave either Chicago or Lake Forest. They expect to spend next summer at Arcady farm and to have their stately mansion north of Lincoln park as their permanent home and headquarters. They are receiving congratulations on the arrival of their first grandchild—a son to Dr. and Mrs. Horace Gray. Mrs. Gray was formerly Miss Katherine Meeker.

Miss Agnes Foreman is president and Mrs. Albert Loeb is treasurer of the woman's auxiliary of the First Illinois cavalry, which meets on Tuesday at the armory in North Clark street, when members of the recruiting detail will speak.

Miss Anna Morgan is second vice president of the Cordon and chairman of the membership committee. The club has just reopened after being closed for the month of August.

Luncheon to Open Social Season of Fellowship Club.

By Hazel Whitaker.

THERE'S nothing like having a name to live up to, but, better still, 'tis to live up to that name; such is the unique position of the Woman's Fellowship club, which, though organized but a little over a year ago, has reached the 300 mark in membership and has a list of splendid philanthropies to its credit.

Originally organized with the prime motive of giving happy vacations to mothers and children who could not afford this luxury, the work has spread into many other deserving fields: the Red Cross, the Visiting Nurses' association, the Little Sisters of the Poor, the Big Brothers' league, the Juvenile court, and numberless individual charities. For example, twenty-seven families where there was sickness of need were supplied with milk daily all this summer, and last winter with coal; free hospital care was obtained for many; in fact, wherever the social service committee finds a want it is taken care of immediately. Just recently, in coöperation with the Charities, an entire household was outfitted and employment secured for four men.

The club is nonsectarian and entirely philanthropic in its purposes. Not until this fall will there have been any other branch developed, but on Oct. 15 a class in parliamentary law will be organized under the leadership of Mrs. G. E. Thorndyke.

The regular business meetings are held each month at Sixty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue and speakers of note address each meeting. On the winter schedule among many others appear the names of Gov. Deneen, Miss Harriet Vittum, Judge Dolan, and Judge Olsen.

On the third Monday of each month a card party is given for the purpose of meeting the larger financial needs reported by the social service committee, which is empowered to relieve any emergency with which it meets.

The first purely social gathering of this season will be a luncheon at the Del Prado hotel on Saturday, Sept. 30, of which Mrs. George Stidham is chairman and Mrs. Emmet Powell treasurer. Over 400 are expected to attend and the afternoon will be in charge of fifty-two hostesses. Some of the speakers will be: Judge Hopkins of the Municipal court, Judge David of the Criminal court, the Rev. William Finn, Paulist chorister; Mrs. Anna L. Smith of the Morals court, Mrs. McGoorty Long of the Juvenile court, Mrs. John MacMahon of the board of education, Miss Margaret Haley, and John W. Rainey, Circuit court clerk. News of the Religious World

Student Church for Baptists at Champaign.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

CHURCHES of nearly every denomination are seeking to provide for the religious life of students affiliated with them in attendance at the Illinois state university at Champaign-Urbana.

The Baptists will open their new building for the first time next Sunday. There are about 350 students in the university naming the Baptist church as their first choice. The Rev. M. S. Bryant is pastor of the student church. He has been pastor for the last five years, work having been begun by the Baptists eight years ago. The new building provides for the social as well as the worshipful life of the students and Baptist members of the faculty.

The Congregationalists are now raising funds for a new church building. There is a Congregational house for women and one for men students already in use. The Rev. John A. Holmes, minister of the First Congregational church of Champaign, directs the work, assisted by several student helpers. There are 350 Congregational students.

The Disciples have a church containing social rooms. The Rev. S. E. Fisher is pastor. He is assisted by two student helpers. There is a special church house for women students. The Bondurant lecture foundation provides for a series of lectures on religious themes. There are about 350 Disciple students.

The Lutherans are now building a church in Champaign which is designed to care for the students, numbering 150, as well as the resident constituency. The Reb. F. B. Heibert is pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal church has 1,200 of the students under its care. Ground valued at $50,000 was donated by the citizens of the two cities, and a social center which will cost $100,000 will be erected during this year. Work among the students was begun by the Methodist church sixteen years ago, and a church erected on the campus ten years ago. The Wesley foundation, which is incorporated, is planning for a total fund of $1,000,000, one-half to be devoted to buildings and one-half to endowment. The Rev. J. C. Baker is director of the foundation. He has been pastor for nine years.

The Presbyterians have a student constituency of 900. They have been at work for eleven years. They have a church, the McKinley Memorial, and a church house for young women. The property and endowment is valued at $160,000. The Rev. Robert R. Reed is pastor. The McKinley church was built under the pastorate of the Rev. Martin E. Anderson, now pastor of the Rogers Park Presbyterian church, Chicago.

The Protestant Episcopalians have plans drawn for a church building and are now engaged in raising funds for the purpose. They have a hall for women students named in honor of the bishop of Springfield, Osborne hall. There are 250. The Rev. J. M. Page is chaplain and at present holds services in temporary quarters.

The Roman Catholics have about 300 students and maintain an active student organization and a Catholic fraternity house. Plans to erect a special building are now being discussed in Catholic religious papers.

The McCormick Theological seminary will open Tuesday. Prof. A. S. Carrier will make the address.

The Rev. Benjamin Otto

The Rev. Benjamin Otto, D. D., is the pastor of the Morgan Park Baptist church, which broke ground last Wednesday for a new building to cost exclusive of furnishing and grounds $45,000. Dr. Otto became pastor one year ago. He is a graduate of Rochester university and Rochester Baptist Theological seminary. He came to Chicago from the First Baptist church of Kansas City, Mo. He held former pastorates in North church, Jersey City, N. J., and First church, Coldwater, Mich. The new church building will be 225x110 feet, built of brick, and will be attached to the present church building, which will then be adapted to Sunday school and social purposes. The church was organized in 1877 and was the first church organization in Morgan Park. The Morgan Park Baptist Theological seminary was located there until its removal to Chicago to become the divinity school of the University of Chicago. It is expected the church will be under roof before the first of the year.

The Lake View Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran church, Roscoe and Osgood streets, will celebrate today the twenty-fifth anniversary of the church at its present location. The church was originally located in Erie street.

The church as an organization is one of the oldest churches of any denomination and the oldest Norwegian Lutheran church in Chicago, having been established in 1848. Most of the church services are now conducted in English. The sermons today will be preached by two of the early pastors, the Rev. D. Kvaase of Spring Valley, Wis., and the Rev. Dr. O. E. Brandt, theological professor in St. Paul, Minn. The Rev. Clarence Haugen, present pastor, will be in charge.

The Rev. R. E. Miller has been appointed pastor of the St. Stephen's Methodist Episcopal church, One Hundred and Thirteenth and State streets. Mr. Miller some months ago conducted a survey of the First ward, having thirty assistants. The survey was conducted in the interests of the Wabash Avenue church.

Articles made by the daily vacation Bible school of the First Presbyterian church of Lake View this last summer will be distributed to needy children as Christmas presents.

The Willard Memorial Methodist Episcopal church of Oak Park will observe its third anniversary today with sermons by the Rev. John Thompson and the Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann. The Rev. Thomas V. Hart is pastor.

The Rev. F. R. Godolphin, rector of Grace Protestant Episcopal church, Oak Park, is provisional chaplain on board the United States ship Louisiana in Chesapeake bay. He administered the holy communion last Sunday morning at 7 o'clock in the admiral's cabin and preached on the main deck at 10:30.

Mrs. B. W. Firman, in honor of whose husband Firman house was built which is located near Hull house and in connection with the Ewing Street Congregational church, sailed for Busrah, Arabia, on the Empress of Asia from Vancouver, B. C., last Thursday.

Mrs. Firman, after her husband's death, left her home in Oak Park and moved into Firman house in order to devote herself to the religious and social betterment of the dwellers in the Nineteenth ward. She was recently given farewell receptions by the women's home and foreign missionary societies of the Congregational churches of Chicago. Her daughter, Mrs. Van Ness, is a missionary in Busrah. Mrs. Firman hopes to be back in Chicago by Thanksgiving day, 1917.

The South Side Hebrew congregation will dedicate today at 3 o'clock the new educational and social center recently erected at the corner of Fifty-ninth street and Michigan avenue.

The building is a fireproof structure comprising an auditorium with a seating capacity of 650, ladies' parlors, and social rooms. On the second floor there are ten large, light classrooms which can accommodate 450 pupils. The school will be open daily for instruction in Hebrew and Jewish subjects to Jewish children of public school age after public school hours. In the evening the rooms will be used for social and civic activities among the clubs and guilds of the neighborhood.

Henry Horner, judge of the Probate court of Cook county, and Philip L. Seman, superintendent of the Chicago Hebrew institute, will deliver addresses. Ruby Davis will be the violin soloist.

Archbishop Mundelein of the Roman Catholic church will administer confirmation at St. Patrick's church, Wadsworth, Ill., at 10:30 o'clock today.

The Rev. John Rauscher of St. Francis Assisi church, Twelfth street and Newberry avenue, will celebrate his first solemn mass today. Father Rauscher graduated from St. Francis' school and then went to St. Mary's convent, Dayton, O., later joining the Brothers of Mary. He was ordained to the priesthood in Fribourg, Switzerland.

Preparations are now being made for the celebration next year of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the American Sunday school union, an interdenominational body which establishes Sunday schools, especially in communities where the various denominations are not strong enough to establish and support them. The union has organized 120,000 such schools during its history, 1,500 in the last year. It has 230 field workers in the United States. The national headquarters are in Philadelphia.

FUTURE EVENTS.

The South Shore Country club charity fair, to be held on the grounds of the club Sept. 20 to 23, will be a carnival of fun and color, to judge from the plans which are being put in motion by the committees now at work under the general chairmanship of Mrs. William F. Bode. With a number of original and attractive younger members of the club on her committee and with the assistance of the chairman of the booths which the benefiting charities will install at the fair, Mrs. Bode promises to make the second annual fair the biggest thing of the kind in the history of the club. Those taking part will dress in fancy costume, and the things for sale will range through the entire scale of the funny, the attractive, and the useful, from piquant French hats to mutton pies and marmalades, from fluffy little scamp ring pet bow-wows to peasant made embroideries. Among the booths and their chairmen are:

The variety shop, with Miss Kathleen Alford of the Chrysolite club in charge; the doll booth, the proceeds of which will go to the National Park Seminary Day nursery, with Miss Marjorie Sish chairman; the cigar booth, with Mrs. Lawrence Heyworth and her assistants dressed in Turkish costume; the paddle wheel, Charlie Chaplin picture, and grab bag booth, under Mrs. George A. Ogle, to benefit the Jackson Park sanitarium; a variety booth in charge of Mrs. J. Ellsworth Gross, for the benefit of the Sarah Hackett Stephenson Memorial Lodging house; toys and children's clothing, to be sold by Miss Faye Hart and her helpers for the Sunbeam league charities; hand carved toys and boxes, to be sold by the Baroness Kurt von Reiswitz for the German-Austrian Relief association; the wigwam, Mrs. C. A. White chairman, for the Chicago Junior school; a French hat shop, Mrs. Kenneth White chairman, the proceeds for the Margaret Etter Day nursery; and the soft drinks booth, with Mrs. John G. Campbell chairman.

A bazaar to raise funds for the wounded and helpless people of the entente allied countries of Europe will be held at the Coliseum from Jan. 11 to Jan. 20. It is planned to have this bazaar concentrate all the many special relief fund projects to which the public has been asked to subscribe in the past. Booths in the bazaar will be taken by the emergency fund for the French wounded, the Lafayette fund, the commission for the relief of Belgium, and other organizations which last winter gave separate benefits.

Fall's Definite Corsets Fashions

Third Floor—Center

are to be found in the Nemo corsets in complete and correct variety, and, too, if you care to heed the advice of our expert corsetieres, health and comfort as well, for health and comfort are to be had if you but let your corset be correctly fitted to your figure. For this fitting service, unexcelled in all Chicago, no charge is made. Of course you are aware of the corset's importance in the new fall gown. If you will allow us to fit you intelligently to a Nemo corset you will have the new youthful figure. All lines in the gown for fall are youthful lines, and you cannot wear them becomingly if you do not have the right corset, rightly adjusted. There are 3 types of Nemo corsets, preventive, controlling and corrective. Most women should wear the Nemo preventive corset—they would find it easier to keep youthful lines, as it poises the body correctly. Our corsetieres will adjust your corset so it fits the figure closely—the waist slightly drawn in, the curve over the hip a shade freer—not suppressed—the skirt long enough to control the flesh of the thigh, with the bones of the back close to the spine, where they are a help to the figure instead of extended and pressing on the kidneys, causing serious discomfort.

The corrective corset belongs to large women and to the women whose figures have grown shapeless from being improperly corseted. Remember our corsetieres are all graduates of the Nemo Hygienic Fashion Institute. They have studied the anatomy of the body and know that the right Nemo Corset for a stout woman will distribute the soft flesh and reduce it by means of heavier boning, rubber gores, and pressure in such places as it can be brought to bear safely.

Nemo corset, style 512, as illustrated, for the figure with bulging thighs, reduces them to their proper size and makes the figure look symmetrical. There are three different sections of rubber in the skirt over the thighs, so arranged that they hold the bulging flesh firmly. When seated this elastic spreads, acting as a massage on fat. Try it and see if the bulge does not disappear. Sizes 22 to 32, at..... 5.00

Nemo self-reducing corset, style 326, as illustrated, is a wonderful corset for reducing a figure. Women who wear this model tell us every day that their new corset is one size smaller than the old one. Medium low bust, long skirt, self-reducing straps support and reduce the abdomen. Sizes 22 to 36, at..... 3.50

NEW YORK SOCIETY By MME. Y

News and Gossip of the Doings of the Smart Set.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It looks much as though New York is not going to have a fall season. Society has settled down in Newport with the determination of remaining there until Thanksgiving. The infantile paralysis epidemic is one reason why so many of the social elect's town houses are to remain closed; another reason is the new lease of life given to Newport affairs by the long list of charity functions and coming out parties yet to come.

As I write this every one is discussing the "rustic" dance to be given by Mrs. Richard Thornton Wilson next Saturday night at her country place in Middletown, three miles from Newport. An old fashioned barn dance will be the chief feature of Mrs. Wilson's party, with her guests dressed as haymakers, vegetables, fruit, and rural types.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman de R. Whitehouse, who arrived at Newport this season much later than is their usual custom, gave their first big party at Rock Edge last Tuesday and are planning to give several important affairs between now and early November.

The management of Hill Top inn has booked so many dancing parties for the month of September that it has been decided to extend the inn's season until Nov. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor gave a large dinner party last Tuesday at Beechwood, the first of a series of Tuesday night affairs that will continue until cold weather sets in.

Much Entertaining to Come.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Duke are arranging a series of dinner-dances for the month of October.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry, are others of the Newport society colony who have entertainments scheduled for several weeks ahead.

Confirmation of a late opening of the season in New York—a confirmation is needed—is the announcement made this week that the first of the junior cotillons will take place on Dec. 5. Society has so many new recruits now in Newport who will remain at the Rhode Island resort that the date for the junior cotillon had to be set as late as possible or interfere with the plans of a great many families.

Newport is pursuing its newest fad, the "movies," with the greatest enthusiasm. I mentioned a few weeks ago that Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor had given a "movie" evening at Beechwood. The latest members of the colony to enter the ranks of the film fans are Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones, who invited a number of their friends to Sherwood last Saturday to see for the first time the latest Lost African pictures taken by Paul J. Rainey. Mr. and Mrs. Jones, by the way, are sharing honors with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont and Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice for being the most frequent entertainers of the current season.

Newport's Handsomest Woman.

While honors are being passed out I might add that Mrs. Cornelius Tangeman is universally credited with being the handsomest matron in Newport this summer, while Miss Roberta Willard is generally referred to as Newport's most beautiful girl.

Every one seemed to be having a glorious time at the water sports contests at Bailey's beach last Saturday. Nicholas Longworth and Preston Gibson were the judges, and after the contests were over I saw them assisting in the preparation of a picnic luncheon which was cooked on the beach.

More than the usual number of affairs for the junior set have been given this season. Last Monday James J. Van Alen gave a dinner dance at Wakehurst in honor of the birthday anniversary of his young grandson, James Henry Van Alen. On Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings gave a dinner dance for their children at Belleacre.

The entire Newport colony was sorry to see Gov. and Mrs. Charles Whitman return to Albany this week. Mrs. Whitman, who had won signal honors on the Casino tennis courts this summer, has entertained quite a little, but her affairs have invariably been luncheons to which only women were invited. Gov. and Mrs. Whitman were given a farewell dinner last Sunday night by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan.

To You Women Who Have to Earn Your Own Living

To every woman who, because of death in her family, financial reverses or other misfortune, is obliged to go out in the world and earn her own living, we offer a simple method by which she can fit herself to earn a GOOD LIVING in the SHORTEST SPACE OF TIME and at the LEAST EXPENSE.

We offer an easy method by which you can secure a high class, dignified position WITHIN THREE OR FOUR MONTHS, a position where the working conditions are attractive and the opportunities of promotion good—and it doesn't make any difference whether you are young or middle-aged.

To the average woman who has lost her husband or has met with reverses and is forced to earn her own living, the ordinary position of typist or stenographer, paying only $12 to $15 per week, does not appeal. But if she could qualify as an EXPERT typist or stenographer, if she could get a HIGH GRADE position, if she could get a position paying from $20 to $30 a week, or even more, she would gladly accept it.

That's the kind of a position we will fit you for. By our new, easy method of DOUBLE-SPEED TYPEWRITING and DOUBLE-SPEED SHORTHAND we will make you an EXPERT. We will fit you to earn a BIG SALARY. We will teach you the method that makes typewriting and shorthand easy. We will teach you to write 80 to 100 words a minute on the typewriter more easily than the ordinary typist writes 40.

We will make you an expert typist or dictaphone operator in THREE MONTHS or an expert typist and shorthand writer in FOUR MONTHS. We will fit you to fill the best positions in the business world, at a good salary and where the working conditions are pleasant. We will make you TWICE AS EFFICIENT as the average typist or stenographer and enable you to get TWICE THE AVERAGE SALARY. And we will GUARANTEE you a position. We have three times as many calls for our graduates as we can fill, simply because our graduates are EXPERTS, not ordinary typists or stenographers.

If you have to earn your own living, investigate our methods. Phone, call or write.

FASTM

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

Emerson Hough and Ezaroll, Kadiak Island guide

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store:

WAR.

"Kitchener's Mob" (Houghton-Mifflin), by James Norman Hall.

FICTION.

"When a Man's a Man" (Book Supply), by Harold Bell Wright.

"Just David" (Houghton-Mifflin), by Eleanor H. Porter.

"The Heart of Rachael" (Doubleday-Page), by Kathleen Norris.

"The Girl Philippa" (Appleton), by Robert W. Chambers.

"Loot" (Bobbs-Merrill), by Arthur S. Roche.

"The Proof of the Pudding" (Houghton-Mifflin), by Meredith Nicholson.

NONFICTION.

"A Diplomat's Wife in Mexico" (Harpers), by Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy.

NEW CHARACTER IN FICTION.

EMERSON HOUGH, with his usual interest in American history, has written a new novel called "The Magnificent Adventure" (Appleton), which paeons the Lewis and Clark expedition. Meriwether Lewis has not been known as he should. It seems strange that no novelist has seen before the dramatic power of that courageous life. He undertook the journey of exploration principally to try to forget his hopeless love for Aaron Burr's daughter, the wife of a wealthy planter. He kept at his task even when she, at the instigation of her father, begged him to return. He returned with happiness and success for everybody except himself. President Jefferson said that Louisiana was bought with the happiness of a human soul—and that soul belonged to Meriwether Lewis. It is a tale of conquering and achieving in the face of terrible suffering that Emerson Hough tells in "The Magnificent Adventure."

Granville Barker has gone back to England to offer his services to the army. He had expected to remain here to finish the play founded on a Stevenson novel—I've forgotten just now which one—but after a consultation with the authorities in England he decided to return. His last published book was "Souls on Fifth" (Little, Brown & Co.), a social satire.

Prof. Hiram Bingham, the noted archaeologist and explorer, is a member of the battalion staff of Maj. Danford of the Yale battery. He is the author of "Across South America" (Houghton-Mifflin), and is his knowledge of Spanish and South American customs and temperaments will be invaluable.

An interviewer asked Mary Watts not long ago why she wrote. It's the conventional question, and usually brings forth four or five paragraphs from the author about having something in his soul and having to find expression for it. Mary Watts said: "I do not write because I feel a great, strong, overmastering impulse, nor because my domestic life is unhappy, nor to divert myself in ill health. I have never been troubled with impulses—of that lofty character, at any rate. My family and household are not half bad, as people go, and I haven't had a sick day in years. I write because I write. Most of the money goes to buy antique furniture, for which I have a whim. I have now bought so much that the things are touching one another all around the walls of the rooms, and all the furniture dealers and antique shop men retire to the rear office and get down on their knees and offer thanks with tears of pure joy when they see me coming."

Grace Sartwell Mason, author of "The Golden Hope" (Appleton), tells an interesting story of how this particular tale of the western mining country came near not being written. Mrs. Mason has always been keen for facts on which to base her stories, and when one day a friend pointed out to her the dramatic possibilities of something that was then going on in California—the appropriation by a city of the water that by right, it was said, belonged to the settlers of another watershed—she decided to go down to the desert and get the story if it took a year. She went, and, much to her surprise, she discovered that two other writers had been there before her. One of them, a man, had seen a big story there, had collected the material, and had then precipitately dropped it—because he had fallen in love with the daughter of one of the families prominent in the vicinity and felt that chivalry forbade him to use his fiancée's relatives as "copy." The second to become attracted to the desert story was a distinguished woman writer. She, like the man, started in to collect material out of the famous water fight, and then she, too, became so interested in the family in which the man had met his fate that she also found herself amenable to the law that forbids "copy" being made of one's friends. With this information before her Mrs. Mason began to fear that even down there on the fringe of the desert some outlying member of that family might be hiding to charm away her determination to write the story, so she kept her eyes straight to the front, gathered her material together, and retired to the woods to write the story of "The Golden Hope" before anything could happen to prevent her.

George Agnew Chamberlain, author of "John Bogardus," "Through Stained Glass," and "Home" (Harpers), is now United States consul general at Havana.

From London comes this bit of fun: H. G. Wells' autograph is not easy to procure, but a feminine admirer of his who sent him her album the other day has obtained it without probably being aware of the fact. The album turned up while Wells was partaking of afternoon tea on his lawn with some friends, and the latter urged him, against what is his fixed rule, to comply with the request. Wells decided to compromise. Taking pen and paper, he wrote: "Dear Madam: Mr. Wells requests me to say that he never gives his autograph. Yours faithfully, W. F. Piggott." Now the friends are wondering if its fair recipient has indignantly consigned this interesting document to her waste paper basket.

With the assurance that only one of every thousand characters in popular fiction stops to consider that "beyond New York lie Chicago, St. Louis, and a few pink states upon the map," the Kansas City Star compiles these illuminating statistics:

In fiction 450,127 New Yorkers have cottages in Newport. One hundred and eighty-one thousand six hundred and fifty-one characters have been members of the New York four hundred, while 575 heroines have been leaders of the set. One million four hundred and twenty-seven thousand six hundred and eighty-two chorus girls in books have discarded tights and fluffy skirts and married rich New Yorkers' sons, and pranced about thereafter in silks and satins when not suing for alimony or wilted affection. Two million people sit around shining mahogany tables each night at a dinner, showing that our ancestors must have had a Grand Rapids plant of no mean ability turning out heirlooms; and as for orientals—all Persia, Arabia, Turkey, Turkestan, and every other stan, Germany, Belgium, Iceland, Finland, and Greenland must have been making rugs since William the Conqueror. At least one million girls go out of the east, the west, the north and south to New York each year to enter the chorus and rise rapidly to the limousine stage, or sink to the hall bedroom (seventy-five million of these rooms there are in the city of New York) to heat cocoa over a gas flame, to be rescued by a Gibbishy on page 250, to live thereafter in the book among wicker furniture, or loll about on bepillowed divans.

Have you read W. H. Hudson's "Green Mansions" [Knopf] yet? It's the jungle romance that John Galsworthy has praised so extravagantly, you know. Even the popularity of the book has not persuaded the author to give out any information about himself. No amount of persuasion seems to affect his determination to remain in obscurity. His publishers confess that even his place of residence is unknown and that correspondence with him is carried on most of the time through a close friend.

Mr. Cohan's Revue Is a Coherent Derision of the American Drama

By Percy Hammond.

MR. COHAN, who greets the tinsel clink of newspaper compliment with a dismal hiss, is perhaps unable to reconcile the plaudits of the press with the fortune of his revue at the Grand. He neither hates the journalists nor caresses them, but regards them with a gloomy cynicism somewhat akin to scorn. Given the choice between a favorable account of his play and one that is otherwise, he will select the latter as less damaging to the enterprise. Somewhere in my dossier of such things there is a note from Mr. Cohan enrolling his gratitude for pleasant words written of an early work, "Little Johnny Jones"—such words having animated him, said he, to other and more ambitious endeavors. But that note was penned in his light and careless youth, before experience has opened the ways of wisdom. Now, in his adult years, he likes the scribes personally, but esteems them fitter for companionship than for counsel.

Others besides Mr. Cohan admit themselves baffled by the prosperity of his new entertainment in Chicago. There it is, a fly, tongue-in-the-cheek burlesque resumé of plays quick and dead, so full of sport indigenous to New York that it is to other cities almost exotic. It travesties dramas not seen here at all, or seen by very few; it is rife with references to such unknowns as Walter Eddinger, William Courtenay, Sadie Love, and Jane Cowl, and one joke concerns the Standard theater, which, it is said, is a minor playhouse on the outskirts of New York. Yet its every word and motion is an influence for happiness, and it is acclaimed a good show by the simples as well as the habiles, to use a classification of La Bruyère's, one of Mr. Cohan's favorite authors.

Reflection, however, reveals several reasons for the interested crowds at the Grand. Mr. Cohan's interweaving of the year's plays into one entertainment is a cunning fabrication, not much less coherent than the average libretto, and its travesty even of unfamiliar things is broad and comprehensible. The burlesque of the trial scene in "Common Clay" contains, so far as I could hear, not a witty line nor a skillful jingle. But it is unquestionably funnier than the original; and now that Mr. Kinkead's drama has become a popular institution here, it is a "riot." The imitations of "The Boomerang" and "The Great Lover," too, are unfailingly productive of laughter, although the plays themselves are but promises to this community. The other dramas used are merely incidental items of character and joke, swift flashes of Mr. Cohan's impish irony.

Mr. Cohan's tunes are likewise an impelling feature of the revue. His music is jaunty music, a dapper thing with its hat on the side of its head and a cane in its hand, jumping up and down. No soft Lydian airs for Mr. Cohan. A moody number now and then, such as "So Long, Mary" (whose popularity renews itself like a classic), but he leans to brisk syncopation, full of beat and rhythm. Set to these hopping melodies are several smart verses, among them the bright song which amiably ridicules Miss Sanderson, Mr. Brian, and Mr. Cawthorn in "Sybil." Some of the topical verses are a bit passé, treating of athletic and political events so ancient as to be almost forgotten; but the Cohan shows are written for New York, not rewritten for Chicago, and suburbanites may not expect timely amendment to be made for their especial benefit.

Nor is there any amendment in the adept troupe which performs the revue. The producer's skill in selecting his players is no less than his ingenuity in providing salable material for them; and he has benevolently retained them all for the Chicago performances. Catalogued, they are Richard Carle, the suave satirist, and perhaps the deftest of the musical comedians; Valli Valli, a slim and exquisite lady of song and dance; Harry Bulger, a burlesque and explicit banterer endowed with a forthright sense of humor; Charles Winninger, whose counterfeit of Mr. Ditrichstein's "Great Lover" is a most delicate bit of derision; Frederic Santley, a manly and genuine "juvenile"; James Marlowe, a rugged funmaker; Miss Juliet, with marvelous imitations of Emily Stevens, Frances Starr, Mrs. Fiske, and Maude Adams; Little Billy, a beguiling manikin, and Miss Elizabeth Murray, the most dependable of the stage ladies who recite comic songs. It is a cheerful list of topnotchers.

A cleanly play is Mr. Cohan's revue, with but two infractions of the proprieties, and they, one suspects, are not regarded as such by their proponents. Mr. Carle in fact is so keen to be inoffensive that, at the request of an anonymous correspondent he omits a profane ejaculation from his role, explaining as he does so that it never got a laugh anyway. The chorus may be looked upon with impunity by the austere of eye, since its charms reside in its industry rather than its complexion.

Elimination of the Dramatic Unfit Begins.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Cheerful occupation, playgoing in New York—when the plays are worth while.

Rather sad at other times. An advantage the back country enjoys of which we trust it is duly appreciative. To have this great weeding out place utilized for 90 per cent of the stuff that comes to bearing in the theater is a boon not to be passed over lightly.

There were six of them last week, mostly poor stuff. Three farces, a musical comedy, another Hippodrome spectacle, and a melodrama. Two of the six were up to standard as entertainment, we should say. Or possibly three, considering that no one nowadays expects the book of a musical comedy to amount to anything.

Of the plays we found the melodrama to be the most interesting. "The Man Who Came Back," it was called, having been fashioned into dramatic form by Jules Eckert Goodman from material he found in a story written by John Fleming Wilson some time ago.

It offers the important episodes in the life of a rich man's son caught at its crisis. It is theatrical, episodic, sentimental, and tricky, after the fashion of plays of the kind. It even boasts a mysterious stranger who turns out to be a friendly detective, and its dramatic incidents are artificially etched against a background of painted scenery. And yet it is sufficiently human at the core to hold the interest of an audience reasonably taut and thus to provide an agreeable evening in the theater. Melodrama warrants no greater test.

The millionaire's son, frankly, going the pace, refuses to be stopped when his allowance is cut. He is the victim of an indulgent father, he logically insists. They have superimposed a $100,000 education on his 10 cent character and then expect him to live up to the education. A task quite beyond his capacity and not at all in touch with his desires.

Sent across the country to San Francisco and told to reform, he continues his downward jaunt until he is a forger as well as a waster. Shanghaied and taken to China, he sinks a few rings lower until he is a hanger-on at an opium joint. Here it is he meets an honest cabaret singer, who has followed him from San Francisco, determined to sink to his level and go the rest of the way with him. Planning to kill her to cleanse her soul he changes his mind and determines to beat his way back to respectability and take her with him.

The last two episodes show the success of his experiment after a year of abstinence and decency, his fight with the old desires, his victory over his weaker self when the temptation comes to desert the woman who has helped him, and his final return home to learn that his father has not only had every step of his progress watched and reported on by detectives, but is quite as proud of the cabaret girl as is the son who has married her.

A young actor new to the east, Henry Hull by name and brother to Shelley Hull of "The Cinderella Man," and Howard Hull, whom Margaret Anglin married, scored quite a success playing the part of the boy. He is blessed with many gifts besides those of young and good looks, and seems destined to be numbered with the important leading men of the future. Goodness knows a few are needed.

Mary Nash plays the helpful soul who sang ribald songs and finally smoked opium, but still preserved her girlish purity, and was fully equal to all the emotional demands of a thankful part. Edward Emery scored as the irascible parent.

The experts who write of the theater in New York that the readers of newspapers may know what they (the experts) think of the passing shows are not always strikingly original. Particularly not in a week when there are six new plays in six days, as there were last week, and the spur to snappy comment has become a bit dulled. By the time "The Big Show" was reached at the Hippodrome, therefore, fourteen or fifteen of the theater reporters burst right out with the frank assertion that the new entertainment "lived up to its name."

So it did. Its hugeness, in fact, was its redeeming virtue. Which was not unexpected. The pace set last year by "Hip, Hip Hooray" was far too swift to be sustained a second year. "The Big Show" is just as big, but not as varied, just as costly, but not as novel. One marvels at the size of it, is impressed by the cost of it, and the skill it took to weld it together and produce it on a stage that stretches practically the width of a city block.

But being a captious and unpleasant person, one casts up the evening's gleanings at the end and finds them to include a vast amount of vaudeville and spectacular stage pictures, but comparatively little that lingers hauntingly in the memory. Whereupon one immediately feels guilty of being a crusty sort of critic in ever finding fault with the Hippodrome.

There is so much offered there that could not be staged anywhere else that it seems worth anybody's money merely to be privileged to sit out such a spectacle. And it is. Consider, for instance, a minstrel circle and "first part" of 400 people. Four hundred and eighteen, according to one interested accountant.

There is something to have seen, something in the way of staged sights that could not be seen in any other theater anywhere in the world. But then the question arises: is a song any better because it is sung by a chorus of 400 in place of forty? Or a joke any less funny in a big theater than in a small one? "No," lustily shouts back

News and Gossip of the Theaters.

Miss Margaret Dale will act the rôle of Katherine de Vaucelles in Mr. Sothern's eleemosynary revival of "If I Were King." The enterprise will benefit the British Red Cross, inasmuch as that institution will receive "Mr. Sothern's share of 25 per cent of the gross receipts." The star will pay his own expenses, and the Messrs. Shubert, in case there is a profit at the end of the season, will add one-fourth of it to Mr. Sothern's fund.

"A Pair of Queens," which thrived at the Cort not long ago, did otherwise in New York and was withdrawn last evening. Joseph Santley and Kathleen Clifford, its principal performers, have found other employment.

Montague Glass' story, "The Making Over of Milton," has been changed into a play by Jules Eckert Goodman, and is now entitled "Object—Matrimony." It is a story of Jewish life, although Messrs. Potash and Perlmutter are not among its characters. Leo Donnelley, Jess Dandy, and Miss Marjorie Wood are in the cast.

According to the newspaper accounts, "Mr. Lazarus" and "Pierrot the Prodigal" were successful ventures in New York last week, while "The Flame," a Mexican melodrama, by Richard Walton Tully, was not.

Clifton Crawford, who figured prominently in the first weeks of the Chicago engagement of "A World of Pleasure," is to be the star of a revival of "Her Soldier Boy." That entertainment played briefly at the Chicago theater last year and was distinguished by the presence in its score of one of the most maudlin of the "Mother" songs.

Among the messages of congratulation received by Chas. E. Evans on his sixtieth birthday was this verse from Francis Griffin of Chicago:

"The color of your hair, I say,
Has never stood in your own way,
From Norway to Schaseninzen
It's always sunshine that you're bringin'.
Congratulations on your youth
From one who's telling you the truth."

The book of "Flora Bella" being in need of repair, Miss Dorothy Donnelley was called upon for assistance. When Miss Lina Abarbanell plays the operetta tomorrow night in New York Miss Donnelley's name will be on the play bills as collaborator with Cosmo Hamilton and Felix Doerman.

Silvia Hein, the composer of musical comedy scores, is impresario of a "Merry Wives of Windsor" venture in which Thomas A. Wise, Miss Constance Collier, and Robert Mantell Jr. will participate. James K. Hackett will play Falstaff in another production of the farce.

Among the Englishmen of the theater who went to the front last week were Norman Thorp, Henry Ainley, and B. MacDonald Hastings, author of "The New Sin."

Avery Hopwood's bright comedy, "Nobody's Widow," acted here by Miss Blanche Bates, will be played in London by Miss Doris Keane under the name of "Roxanna."

The Grand Rapids News' column of reminiscences records the fact that Henry C. Lytton, the Chicago merchant, contributed a splendid tenor voice to the leading rôle of a comic opera given there forty-eight years ago at Luce's hall.

Dudley Ayres has succeeded Sydney Booth as the noble young malefactor in "Common Clay" at the Olympic.

Plays scheduled for Chicago engagements beginning Oct. 1 are "Princess Pat," at the Garrick; "The Great Lover," at the Grand, and "The Unchastened Woman," with Miss Emily Stevens, at the Princess. "Margery Daw" departed from the Princess last evening, having, for one reason and another, failed to prosper.

"Please Help Emily," which comes to Powers' next week, shows Miss Ann Murdoch as a daring ingénue who, after visiting an improper supper club in London, spends the night in the chambers of a bachelor friend. Although discovered there, she preserves her good name, and presumably becomes engaged to Charles Cherry, the leading man. Ferdinand Gottschalk and Jeffreys Lewis are in the company.

John Mason's confidence in the tenure of "Common Clay" at the Olympic is indicated by his purchase of a flivver and his lease of an apartment in Ellis avenue.

William F. Connor, Mme. Bernhardt's manager, has returned from France, bringing with him photographs of the divine one with her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Mme. Bernhardt will set sail for these shores Sept. 30.

The London Evening News prints this account of the death of Basil Hallam, a young English actor who played here in "The Blindness of Virtue" and with Miss Billie Burke:

"News of the death of Mr. Basil Hallam (Gilbert the Filbert) reached his family in London from a brother officer in the Kite Balloon Section of the Royal Flying Corps, in which the young actor held the rank of captain.

"The balloon in which he had been reconnoitering broke away from its moorings, and as there was every appearance of it falling into the hands of the enemy, Capt. Hallam threw all plans and papers of military value into the English lines and then made preparations to save himself with his parachute.

"Unfortunately, however, the parachute failed to open, and although Capt. Hallam got clear away from the drifting balloon he was so severely injured on reaching the ground that he did not survive."

Plans of the Chicago Orchestra and the Opera.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra announces that the visiting soloists engaged for the season which begins on Oct. 13, are:

Piano—Josef Hofmann, Alexander Raab, Rudolph Ganz, Ernest Schelling, Yolando Mero, Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler.

Violin—Mischa Elman, Efrem Zimbalist, Albert Spalding, Eddy Brown, Theodore Spiering.

Vocal—Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Alma Gluck, John McCormack, Clarence Whitehill.

Cleofonte Campanini, general director of the Chicago Opera association, has cabled that he has deferred his departure from the other side until Sept. 16, when he will sail from Bordeaux. This postponement was caused by the fact that Mr. Campanini has arranged to give three festival performances in Parma for the relief of the war sufferers of his country. The works which will be performed are "Thais," "Carmen," and "Samson and Delila," and the French government is cooperating with Mr. Campanini to the extent of sending the principal singers, as well as the choruses, from the Grand Opera and the Opéra Comique.

Mr. Campanini adds that he has engaged Elizabeth Amsden, a young American singer, who was formerly a member of the Boston Opera company, and, with this addition to his list of sopranos, the company is complete. Miss Amsden will be heard in the revivals of "Hérodiade" and "Lohengrin."

Supplementing the efforts of Mr. Campanini, the mechanical department of the Chicago Opera association has been busy during the last summer preparing the scenery and properties for the new works which will be staged and scenic rehearsals are held daily at the Auditorium theater, under the direction of Joseph Engel, the stage manager. The chorus school began its activities on Wednesday morning with a large attendance, under the direction of Pietro Nepoti, the chorus master of the opera company, who will instruct the class in the absence of Giacomo Spadoni.

Mr. Nepoti has but recently returned from Buenos Aires, where he directed the chorus of the Colon theater. He was enthusiastic about the success of Giulio Crimi, tenor, and Giacomo Rimini, baritone—two of the new artists engaged for the coming season—who will be heard here, with Rosa Raisa, in the first production of "Andrea Chenier."

The first member of the company to arrive in Chicago is Marguerite Buckler, a young American soprano, who was for three years a pupil of Jean de Reszké, and who made her debut at Deauville, in France, as Juliette. Miss Buckler's repertoire is not confined to French operas, however, as she will be heard in German and Italian works.

Glen Dillard Gunn, conductor of the American Symphony orchestra, announces that a series of ten concerts will be given this coming season by that organization. He has secured Cohan's Grand Opera house for that purpose.

The first of the series will occur the afternoon of the third Sunday in October. Pasquale Tallarico, who won the pinanists' contest here two years ago under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians, will be the soloist for that occasion.

Mme. Schumann-Heink has consented to sing again this year, and Myrtle Elvyn will be foremost among the pianists. A list of other artists whose services have been secured includes Charles W. Clark, baritone; Hazel Eden, soprano; George Hamlin, tenor; Mrs. J. Mitchell Hoyt, soprano; Mrs. Thomas J. Prindeville, soprano; Guy N. Woodard, violinist, and Richard Wagner, cellist. The pianists are Edward Collins, Carrol Robinson and Belle Tannenbaum, in addition to the two already named.

Conductor Gunn promises that one or more works by American composers will be presented at each concert.

The Chicago theater will begin its season Saturday night with Cecil Lean in "A Blue Paradise." The house will be under the direction of Frank O. Miller, formerly manager of the Manhattan opera house in New York and the Colonial theater in Cleveland.

PALACE.

Jack Wilson and company:

"Did you see those classic dancers that just came ahead of us on the bill?"

"I certainly did. What are you mopping your brow for?"

"I'm warm. Those dancers did it. It seemed to me every time they danced they got rid of more clothes."

"Well, they've stopped now."

"Yes; I was sorry to see it happen, too."

"Did you notice that Hawaiian dance?"

"Yes, sir. All they wear down there is some baled hay. And if I ever get a vacation, Hawaii's the place I'm going to spend it."

"I hope you saw the girl with the million dollar eyes."

"She was lovely. She was a pippin. Such a figure!"

"Did you notice her eyes?"

"No, I wasn't looking at her eyes."

"I dined at ——'s last night."

"That's the place they steal your hat and coat, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"But you can always buy them back cheap."

"The food's great."

"Yes. Three split peas and a cracked plate—$2.80!"

"I hear you were out on a party!"

"Yes, I and the orchestra leader. Believe me, he knows something else besides music. Sharps——"

"Yes?"

"And flats! My land, the flats that man knows! I will now sing a song about conductors and motormen, in fact, an opera."

"What do you call it?"

"Carmen."

MAJESTIC.

"I've got a beau who says I'm worth my weight in gold."

"I didn't think there was that much money in the world."

"How do you like this yellow dress of mine?"

"Extremely becoming."

"Yes, I wear it 364 days out of the year."

"Why not the three hundred and sixty-fifth?"

"That's St. Patrick's day, and I want to live."

"What do you think of a man who will constantly deceive his wife and get away with it all the time?"

"What do I think of him? I think he's a wonder!"

"We'll take our flowers now. There's no fun at the graveyard."

MAJESTIC.

Medlin Watts and Townes:

"Where's the party you married?"

"I didn't marry a party—I married one."

"Did you marry well?"

"Yes, she has a fine job."

"Are you going to sing?"

"Yes, a little ballad entitled 'Don't Worry About the Wood, Mamma, Father Will Bring Home a Load.'"

"You pull another con like that and I'll close your eye for you."

"You do and there'll be singing at your house, but you won't hear it."

"How do you like married life?"

"Great! You know, I'm king in my house."

"'Es, I was there the night she crowned you."

an encouraging conscience, and we are relieved. Still, we are personally very much in favor of the Hip.

There are two tableaux in "The Big Show" offered as a tribute to last summer's spirit of preparedness. One shows a small army of West Point cadets lined up before the capitol building at Washington, the other the crew of a super-dreadnaught posed along the rails and in the rigging of a mighty man of war.

Pictures that last but a moment, but are impressive.

There is a huge ballet, decorated as to scenery and costumes by the Leon Bakst who was more a factor in making the Russian ballet an international spectacle than any one else, and in this the incomparable Pavlowa is the central figure. Here again is a staged spectacle so high, so wonderful in the perfection of its mechanics, so elaborate and costly, that when one feels impelled to write that it is rather a jumble in which the interest is never concentrated nor the senses of sight and hearing full satisfied, an apology for being so severe a judge seems no more than fair.

A second ballet is a repetition of the skating scene of last year, with Charlotte, the embodiment of all that is graceful and wonderful on skates, performing her specialty, and the ice at other times covered with a crowd of masqueraders gliding through a set of intricate figures.

The only novelty among the special features the first night was the act of a lion tamer, who, being caught in a yard with four of his pets, did a vast amount of running backward and forward, now beating them with a whip until they snarled at him, again striking at them with a chair until they crushed the seat of it, but failing to excite the audience to anything more than pity for the lions. The act was dropped from the program the second night.

The musical comedy, called "The Girl from Brazil," was as much like all other musical comedie as if it were but a filled in tracing. It possessed one novelty, however. The girl from Brazil was a Swede. A rich Swede, come to collect a million pesos from a bankrupt banker and willing to sing a song or two while she waited.

The songs are by far the best part of this entertainment, and with the decorations, which are elaborate and contribute to many effective stage pictures, are likely to guarantee success to the enterprise. Frances Demerest is the Scandinavian beauty and looks the part. George Hassell has the best of the comedy, and Hal Forde does most of the tenoring as the banker.

Of three farces produced during the week "A Pair of Queens" is the liveliest, "Somebody's Luggage" the most conventional, though helped a lot by the efforts of Jimmie Powers, and "Fast and Grow Fat" the most disappointing, because the most that was expected of it.

The first is in the detective chasing-the-wrong crook class, amusing in this instance because the detectives are such awful idiots. There is a comic slavery played by Maude Eburne, who earns the most laughs.

Over Seas

OVERSEAS the Scripps-Booth is "carrying coals to Newcastle," selling to the highest type of buyers in direct competition with the best foreign products—the first American car to be received abroad on equal basis with foreign perfections.

Scripps-Booth

The list of Scripps-Booth owners abroad reads like a roster of European royalty and of men celebrated the world over for achievement. Precisely the same sort of people prefer it abroad and in America. It happens to be the one American car which appeals strongly to people of this sort the world over. In its list of foreign dealers covering every large city in the world outside of the enclosed war zone, not one has ever previously handled an American car. They have mainly represented such cars as Pugeot, Mercedes, Daimler, Rolls-Royce and Hispano Suiza or Isotta Fraschini. Scripps-Booth sells on the same floor as these world's master cars—a fit floormate suffering naught by contrast.

The foreign driver opens the throttle wide between cities, knowing no speed laws, and delighting in maximum performance as well as in pride of appearance. That Scripps-Booth popularity is continually increasing abroad but proves its adaptability of performance.

Overseas, or at home, Scripps-Booth stands for a new spirit in motor vehicle making, a new interest in the Pleasures of the Road.

The Selig-Tribune—Semi-Weekly.

The World's Greatest News Film.

In the two issues this week are shown:

Number 72

HOSPITAL A LA PULLMAN.

There was joy in the hearts of the troopers at San Antonio when the first hospital train for the United States army, under the command of Capt. Howard H. Bailey, pulled in. It was put into instant service.

NOW IT'S AQUAPLANING!

If you golfed and motored and swam and otherwise sported about until there seems nothing new under the sun, you've a brand new sensation coming—if you'll aquaplane. How's it done? Well, some mighty pretty girls show you in this number.

Number 73

WHEN OUR BOYS WERE ORDERED HOME.

How they dreaded the order to demobilize when it came to the boys of the Illinois National Guard! How, with folded arms, they looked sadly away over the plains and thought that soon they would be far away at home! Don't you believe it? Well—the picture tells what happened.

"CLOSEUP" OF LLOYD-GEORGE REVIEWING TROOPS.

If you care to meet Lloyd-George face to face, your chance is before you. The new British war minister, accompanied by Sir Samuel Hughes, in uniform, Canadian war minister, may be seen reviewing the fourth division Canadian troops prior to their departure for France.

PICK SEQUEL CONTEST WINNER.

ALL who participated in the contest for the sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky" will be interested to know that the winner has been decided on. The name will be published vurr' shortly.

When working Marguerite Clarke partakes of but little material sustenance. Vegetables with a little tea form her favorite noon repast.

When Louise Lester and Jack Richardson leave the Flying A company, which they expect to do, the last contingent of the original Flying A company will have departed.

Helen Ware will play the lead, as you have heard probably, in Selig's coming production, "The Garden of Allah." And they do say that this fact had something to do with Kathlyn Williams' desertion to Morosco.

We hear that Marshall Neilan is to direct Blanche Sweet in her coming Lasky pictures.

In a recent letter to Mary Pickford (which was inserted in a magazine as an advertisement) Lewis J. Selznick, who is behind the Clara Kimball Young combination, silkily congratulated Miss Pickford and Adolph Zukor of the Famous Players corporation on "your adoption in the Mary Pickford Film corporation of the very idea and ideal that I originated." It is interesting to reflect that when Mr. Selznick formed the Clara Kimball Young corporation, Mabel Normand sent him a similar epistle of congratulation.

The girls just can't stand to see the serpent of drink make eyes at their hero, J. W. Kerrigan, in pictures. In a recent picture, where Mr. Kerrigan was shown battling against the wine when it was red, a tense blonde in the audiences leaped to her feet and shrieked, "O, please don't touch that whisky!"

If Mary Miles Minter is the shrewd little person we suspect her of being, she will soon discover that it is not to her interest to write mushily insipid personal letters, or if she cannot control her bent in this direction will at least add a postscript mentioning that they are personal, and asking that they be not delivered for publication.

The "Sonny Jim" pictures which the Vitagraph company produced are to be novelised—or storised—in a 314 page book entitled "Sonny Jim," written by Elaine Sterne.

While on a week end outing to Big Bear valley last week, J. Warren Kerrigan awoke one morning with an awful appetite. Thinking that nothing in camp would satisfy his hunger, he walked eight miles to the lake, where, armed with a fly casting rod, he caught five trout. Back the eight miles then he cavorted and by about noon fish and bacon were sizzling together and Mr. Kerrigan felt that comfort was near.

Report has it that Billie Burke witnessed "Civilization" and was so overcome by the realism of the picture that she fainted dead away and had to be carried from the box.

Yes, this is being famous! A letter addressed merely to the pluckiest girl in the whole United States was received at the Lasky studio and placed in Anita King's mail box just five days after it was mailed in Chicago. The letter, when opened, proved to be for the lady in question.

The Edison company is making a one reel film entitled "The Trump Card," for the New York state department of health on a proposed crusade against impure milk.

FEATURE FILMS OF THE WEEK

"A Million for a Baby"—Three act Essanay drama, with Bryant Washburn and Lillian Drew playing the leads.

"Saving the Family Name"—Bluebird "drama of family pride and a chorus girl"; ought to be some drama. Mary MacLaren and Phillip Smalley play the leads.

"The Almighty Dollar"—Paragon-World Film drama, starring Frances Nelson and E. K. Lincoln.

"The Big Sister"—Famous Players drama, which endeavors to illustrate just how the "other half" lives. Mae Murray is the star.

"The Fear of Poverty"—Thanhouser production, with Florence La Badie in a dual role. Not an especially unusual topic, but Miss La Badie is quite dependable.

"The House of Lies"—Oliver Morosco production. Edna Goodrich plays the lead.

"The Light of Happiness"—Five act Metro production, starring Viola Dana.

"The Parson of Panamint"—Pallas drama, with Dustin Farnum.

"The Pony Express Rider"—Selig-Tom Mix western drama.

"The Thoroughbred"—Triangle drama, with Frank Keenan playing the lead.

Stationary Photoplays.

Castle—Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, "The Victory of Conscience," Lasky drama featuring Lou-Tellegen. Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday "Each Pearl a Tear," Lasky drama starring Fannie Ward.

Fine Arts—"The Return of Draw Egan," Triangle production, presenting William S. Hart. Also a good Keystone comedy.

V. L. S. E.—"The Light at Dusk," Lubin drama, starring Orrin Johnson.

Marie Nordstrom: "Twenty Years from Now."

"So you wish a position as a stenographer, young man?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"How old are you?"

"I'm 26, ma'am."

"You're a good looking boy."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Have you ever worked before?"

"Yes, ma'am, at Mrs. McArthur's office."

"Were you discharged?"

"No, ma'am."

"Then why did you quit?"

"I was forced to leave, ma'am."

"For what reason?"

"I'd rather not state."

"Did Mrs. McArthur make love to you?"

"Yes. But I'm not a bad man, ma'am. I had to leave."

"Very well. You may go to work here. Hang up your hat."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Now as to your duties: Frequently you will have to stay downtown to work late, and in that case you will take dinner with me."

"O, I beg you, ma'am, to be as lenient as possible. I always go home to dinner. I'm father's sole support."

"Nevertheless you may have to work late sometimes. Perhaps till 10, then we can go out and have a spin in my car and a little drink."

"O, I couldn't do that, ma'am. Father doesn't like to have me running around with strange women."

McVICKER'S.

Krammerer and Howard:

"Why, if it isn't my old lover, Jim."

"Yes, that's me."

"You're not looking w'. What has been happening to you?"

"Since I left you I became a soldier."

"And did you get shot?"

"O, yes; and I've had stitches in my side ever since."

"Well, why don't you go and see a doctor?"

"I did."

"What did he say about it?"

"He said it was all right; it's just the bones knitting."

"Were you ever in battle?"

"Of course, and the first battle I was in, that's when I got shot."

"And when you were shot were you attended by a nurse?"

"Yes, indeed; and a pretty nurse, too. And what do you think?"

"I don't know."

"I asked her to marry me."

"And did she say yes?"

"Yes; she promised to marry me when I got well."

"Then why didn't she?"

"She said that was only part of her treatment."

"What was part of her treatment?"

"To keep her patients cheerful."

ART By Louise James Bargelt

"The Red Cloak" by Strang.
HANGING IN THE EXHIBITION BY CONTEMPORARY BRITISH ARTISTS, AT THE ART INSTITUTE.

APPLIED ARTS SHOW NEXT.

THE next exhibition to open at the Art Institute is the fifteenth annual exhibition of applied arts. This does not commence until Oct. 12, but already it is causing much comment. Objects for display are being received right along now and will be accepted at the Art institute up to 5 o'clock Thursday, Sept. 28.

This exhibition will open the new building of the institute. It will include, as always, a wide variety of articles, ranging from all kinds of tableware and jewelry to book plates, tapestry, textiles, and even furniture. The works which are eligible for this display are only designs and art objects by contemporary designers and craft workers which have never been publicly exhibited in Chicago. Furthermore they must be of unusual merit in either design or form, color, workmanship, or finish.

There are a number of prizes in connection with the exhibit. There is the Mrs. J. Ogden Armour prize, which will be given for the best exhibit of pottery and glassware. There is also the Atlan Ceramic Art club prize of $10 for the best original design of conventional ornament in overglaze decoration. Members of the Atlan club will not compete for this prize. A prize of $50 will be awarded for the best original design in silverware. This is the Mrs. Albert H. Loeb prize. The Municipal Art league offers four prizes of $25 each for the best exhibition of handicrafts entered by workers in Illinois to encourage industrial arts in local centers. Then, too, there are the Mrs. Julius Rosenwald prize of $50 for the best exhibit of weavings and the Frank D. Blout prize of $100 for the best original design in lighting fixtures or other works executed in brass, wrought iron, and like materials.

There will be different juries for the bookbinding and leather exhibits, for the porcelain and pottery, for the embroidery and textiles, for the interior decorations and woodwork, and for the jewelry and tableware.

The exhibit by contemporary British artists is still at the institute. Also the exhibitions of oil paintings by old and modern masters which are owned by Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. McCormick.

MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES Conducted by J. C. Burton

NO. 19—WILBUR D'ALENE, DUESENBERG.

Dramatis Personae of the Speed Spectacle.

WHEN Billy Chandler assumed the managerial cares of the Crawford team this spring, the followers of automobile racing bemoaned the passing of the game's jester and resigned themselves to a mirthless season.

"Chandler will be too busy now to joke and kid," they lamented. "And there is no other driver to wear his cap and bells."

They were right in their premise, but wrong in their conclusion. Chandler's customary smile changed to a frown and he ceased to be a laugh producer, but Wilbur D'Alene, brought from the Pacific coast in May to campaign one of Fred Duesenberg's cars, stepped to the front to relieve by his wit the tense situations that are born of automobile racing.

At Tacoma, when he could not start his car, he telephoned the stenographer at the speedway office for three pounds of compression and one pound of exhaust, and had the girl looking for the articles in the vault for fifteen minutes.

But D'Alene is more than a humorist. He is the surprise and one of the sensations of the 1916 season.

When he came from the Pacific coast to drive for Duesenberg, he had the reputation of being a reckless driver. His record did not entitle him to stellar ranking. He was a comparative unknown. Four months have passed and the critics have a far different opinion of D'Alene now. He has proved himself to be one of the most consistent performers on the gasoline circuit. In almost every race he has entered he has been a most dangerous contender. And if he is reckless, he has corrected that fault.

D'Alene's prize winnings for 1916 amount to more than $14,000, and in the official record books he is credited with one first, three seconds, one fourth, one fifth, and one seventh, out of ten starts this season.

At Indianapolis on Memorial day he finished second to Resta in the 300 mile international sweepstakes. In the Chicago auto derby he took seventh money with a green car. He escaped death by a miracle at Des Moines, where a rear wheel collapsed on one of the turns and his Duesenberg crashed through seventeen guard rail posts. At Sioux City he won a first, a second, and a fourth. He was leading the field at Omaha when a broken cylinder put him out of the race. His jinx followed him to Tacoma, where a faulty universal caused his elimination. With a car that hit only on three cylinders he placed fifth in the Chicago Speedway Grand Prix at an average of 93¾ miles per hour. His latest achievement was finishing second to Altken in the inaugural sweepstakes at Cincinnati on Labor day.

Next to driving in races D'Alene likes to trail big game.

"In the winter I pass the idle months in my favorite haunts in British Columbia," he said. "There I hunt grizzly bear, of which species up to date I have killed more than three score, with an occasional moose and caribou thrown in. I am now planning an extensive trip into the Cassiar country after big game as soon as the racing season is over. By the way, I am a subject of King George and not a native son of California."

Before casting his fortunes with the Duesenberg, D'Alene campaigned a Marmon on the Pacific coast. His only central states appearance before this season was at Elgin in 1914 and in several dirt track meets when he was a member of Ernie Moross' barnstorming troupe.

What Mitchell Extra Would You Have Us Omit?

The Mitchell is the car of extras. They are due to John W. Bate, the efficiency engineer—due to his factory economies and his zeal for perfection. Come see them. Then decide for yourself if there is one which you would have omitted.

In the Mitchell equipment there are 26 extras, of which no other car has more than two or three.

In the Mitchell chassis there are 440 parts which are either drop forged or steel stamped. Castings are almost eliminated.

There are many oversize parts, to attain the Bate standard of 50% overstrength. There are many parts built of Chrome-Vanadium steel, costing up to 15 cents per pound.

In the Mitchell bodies—open and closed—the beauties and luxuries of the finest cars are combined.

Come study these cars in detail. Then say for yourself if Bate-built cars deserve the place they hold.

Know the Bate Idea

Factory economy is only one side of efficiency. But it's a vital side.

In this model factory, built and equipped by Mr. Bate, our factory costs have been cut in two. That is what pays for the Mitchell extras. No car like this could be sold at this price if built as most cars are built.

But John W. Bate's ideas of efficiency go very much further than that.

50% Over-Strength

Mr. Bate's standard for every part is at least 50 per cent over-strength. And every part in the Mitchell meets it.

There is no uncertainty on this. He has used up fifty cars in proving strength requirements. And his tests showed when he met them.

Another Bate idea for years has been to make this a lifetime car. Now it evidently is. One Bate-built car has run 218,000 miles. Seven have averaged 175,000 miles each—over 30 years of ordinary service.

Studied 257 Cars

This year our designers, under Mr. Bate, have created seven new-style bodies. Three are open bodies, two are all-season bodies, and two are winter cars.

Before designing these bodies, our artists examined 257 late models, European and American. This to make sure that the Mitchell omitted no attraction known. Each Mitchell body has at least twenty features which no like-type body has.

You will see in the Mitchell luxurious bodies another idea of efficiency.

Won Experts' Respect

This Bate-built car, all the world over, has won the respect of experts. Every Mitchell showroom has a list of great engineers—men of nation-wide fame—who have bought it.

We urge you to learn the reasons. Some of them are conspicuous. Some of them appear at once in the car's performance. All of them will be gladly pointed out.

This Bate efficiency which the Mitchell exemplifies is a major fact to consider. It means, for one thing, 20 per cent extra value. It means twice-as-long service and twice-as-good service as careless methods offer.

The new bodies are now on show.

Are Two Wheels of Your Truck Loafing?

If the front wheels of your truck are merely carrying part of the load, they're loafing.

They should be pulling. Because when the rear wheels do all the work they wear out tires faster than they should. They strain the truck and shorten its life. They consume too much gasoline and oil. They don't start and stop quickly.

That's why in sternest competition in the European war zone, in Mexico with the troops, in the truck fleets of big business the is showing savings, regularity and dependability of service, untiring endurance that other trucks can't—because they're not FOUR WHEEL DRIVE.

On the F-W-D Truck every one of the four wheels works. The strains and stresses are divided and distributed. Road blows and resistance can't hit hard at any one point.

So the F-W-D lasts years longer. The F-W-D is free from minor and major breakdowns that lose time and your profits. The F-W-D keeps ON the road and OUT of the repair shop.

The F-W-D saves 20% to 25% of gasoline and oil money. It reduces first cost of tires one-third. It doubles tire mileage. It starts quickly—stops quickly. Brakes on four wheels as well as drives on four wheels. It saves time and avoids accidents.

Let us prove these things by demonstration. Telephone Harrison 682. Or, if you prefer to see literature first, mail coupon at right.

THIS GETS A LAUGH FROM SOME IN VAUDEVILLE

McVICKER'S.

George Yeoman:

Willie Ma and Mrs. Audience. I've promised my wife I'll give up all my bad habits, so after today I won't sing any more. I don't know just what you would call my voice. I come from a musical family. Father was a finished musician. The neighbors attended to it. And mother was such a wonderful vocalist that she'd hold her audience for hours—yes, for hours. Then she'd lay it in the cradle and rock it to sleep.

But say, folks, can you stand a little scandal? I know some. I just met little Willie Green. I said: "What's the news, Willie?" He said: "We're going to have a baby boy at our house pretty soon." I said: "How do you know it's to be a boy?" "Because," said Willie, "the last time mother was in bed and we had a girl; now father's in bed."

While down at the railroad depot this morning I saw hundreds of men getting ready for a vacation. Yes, they were shipping their wives off to the country. Just as the train was about to pull out a fat man rushed up, all excited, and said to the conductor: "Have I got time to kiss my wife?" "That depends on how long you've been married," said the conductor. And there's the whole proposition in a nutshell. The longer you're married the more your wife grows on you and the more her family graft on you.

Getting married is all a chance, anyhow, although scientists claim that you can usually tell a girl's disposition by her name. For instance, if you marry a girl named Love, she is pretty sure to turn out affectionate; if her name is Carroll, she'll probably sing all the time, or if her name is Smith or Brown, she's apt to be just a plain, everyday sort of girl. My wife's maiden name was Bettle. We would have gotten along very harmoniously if it hadn't been for my mother-in-law. On the last night of the season I took my mother-in-law to the theater to see "Mutt and Jeff," and she laughed herself half to death. So I tried to induce the manager to give an extra performance.

There's some talk of mother-in-laws forming a union. I think it's a good idea. I'd like to see all the mother-in-laws hang together.

When I asked my wife's father for his consent to our marriage he said: "Will you support my daughter in the style she's been accustomed to?" I said: "No, sir; when she's my wife I'll see that she gets enough to eat." Her father was the stingiest man I ever met. Whenever I called at the house I noticed that it took all my strength to open the front gate, so finally I said to him: "That gate needs oiling or shaving down or something." He said: "That gate is all right; every one who opens it pumps two buckets of water into the tank on the roof."

September at Spiegel's

SEPTEMBER is the month when we get back into our homes again—back into our old homes, or forward into new ones.

Those of us who are just returning from our vacations really see our home again for the first time in a year. That is, we see the old things with new eyes. We see how shabby the rugs have become. We see how much we are in need of this new piece of furniture or that. We had been used to the old place so long we didn't realize how badly it looked.

On the other hand, those of us who have been in the city all summer have been living on our front porches and in our back yards and in Mr. Michigan's Lake. We, too, are just moving in and getting acquainted again.

So September at Spiegel's means a great deal to all of us.

ALL the new fall stocks of furniture, rugs and draperies are in. We have combed the markets for the best at the lowest prices. We have used our tremendous Buying Power with such force that you can actually buy furniture here on credit cheaper than you can buy it elsewhere for cash.

So tomorrow marks our Opening September Sale—a sale in which everybody is welcomed to Personal Credit on the easiest of terms—a sale in which Buying Power and Selling Courtesy go hand in hand.

Remember, this great organization, now in its 51st year, is waiting to serve you as it has served your fathers and mothers, and as it has served their fathers and mothers before them. These remarkable values tell their own story today.

THE NEW Westcott SIX HAS ARRIVED

One Chassis Six Bodies $1590-$1690

NEVER BEFORE has there been a line of motor cars of the light-weight tendency that could be compared with the new Westcotts. This sweeping statement is made without reservation. From tip of radiator to the tire carriers, the Westcott is characterized by originality approaching to boldness in conception, but every line and every curve is held in reserve by an exquisite sense of proportion and good taste.

Closer inspection only adds to the delight of first impressions. The upholstery is all of long grain leather held in place by invisible fasteners. The leg room seems to indicate that the designer was well over six feet tall; yet the adjustable pedals on clutch and brake can be set to bring the foot control within the reach of the tiniest woman. And what a roomy aisle between the two front seats! No trouble at all to pass from front to rear without disturbing the driver or slowing down the car.

THE REAR COMPARTMENT is a delight! Such generous space! Disappearing auxiliary seats that really disappear. Tonneau lights in the rear of the front seats. Robe rails and foot rails and deep, luxurious cushions that invite one to relax and ride, blissfully free from all suggestion of motoring fatigue.

LOOKING FORWARD the eye rests on the solid mahogany instrument board,—a thing of beauty in itself. There are big compartments for gloves and personal effects. All instruments are fastened from beneath, leaving no screws or other attachments to mar the beauty of the board. On the steering wheel all metal parts are of aluminum. The wind-shield is a work of art.

But splendid as are the proportions of this car,—beautiful as are its body appointments,—it is the chassis that places the new Westcott in a class unique.

THE WHEEL BASE IS 125 INCHES,—the length which gives most complete riding comfort coupled with greatest ease of driving and turning. The frame is of extra duty pressed steel in U-beam construction,—tremendously strong for its weight. Every leaf of every spring is of chrome vanadium steel, practically unbreakable but luxuriously resilient. The axles are the most approved Timken construction with Timken bearings. Firestone Demountable Rims with oversize tires on all four wheels.

THE DELCO TWO-UNIT SYSTEM assures absolute efficiency and freedom from troubles with the starting, lighting and ignition. And a magnificent six cylinder continental motor, cast en bloc, 3½ bore x 5¼ stroke, delivers a stream of consecutive power impulses that are practically free from vibration, with never a knock between speeds from one mile upward to as fast as you will ever dare to drive.

A CENTRIFUGAL PUMP AND FAN, with thermostatic control, keep the water circulating through the cellular radiator so that the motor runs at the same temperature in January as in July. The radiator shell is removable.

THE RAYFIELD CARBURETOR is of an improved type and it is bolted direct to the cylinder block without manifold. One simple regulator operated from the driver's seat makes all carburetor adjustments.

LUBRICATION is kept at constant level by a combination of force feed and splash. The crank case is a solid aluminum casting, saving two-thirds in weight as compared to cast iron.

THE CLUTCH is Brown-Lipe dry plate multiple disc of a brand new type. Three speeds forward and one reverse are provided by the Brown-Lipe Transmission system, with its sliding gear, selective type, and gears of nickel steel. The bearings on main shaft are Timken. And the breather pipe on the transmission housing provides ample allowance for the expansion of the lubricant and prevents leakage of grease.

THE DRIVE is transmitted through a tubular shaft with torque arm and two Spicer Universal Joints. No torque strains on the rear springs even in the hardest driving and braking.

TIMKEN SERVICE AND EMERGENCY BRAKES are of ample dimensions and are provided with equalizers.

A GEMMER SEMI-REVERSIBLE WORM AND WHEEL STEERING GEAR holds the car to the road with plenty of allowance for sudden obstructions,—another element of safety that experienced drivers will appreciate.

With a tank that holds 19 gallons of gasoline and the Stewart Vacuum System of largest size, the fuel supply is practically perfect. There is also storage capacity for 1½ gallons of oil.

Standard Equipment

THE storage batteries are Willard. (120 ampere hour.) The new Westcotts are delivered to the buyer completely equipped for the road. Pantasote one-man top with Jiffy Curtains, Cowl-fitting double ventilating, rain-proof wind-shield; Shroud Lamps; Oil Pressure Gauge; Warner Speedometer; Warner Electric Clock; Boyce Motometer; large Klaxon with push button in center of steering post; flush Tonneau Lamps; engine-driven Tire Pump; robe rails; foot rail; license holders; spare tire saddle; foot accelerator; Gasoline Gauge and complete tool kit with jack and repair outfit.

Such, in brief, is the new Westcott Motor Car,—a creation of incomparable efficiency, beauty and endurance. The specifications which the factory sent us in advance convinced us beyond doubt or question that this would be the greatest value ever offered to the buyer who is "motor wise". The stock cars exceed even our most optimistic anticipations.

And yet this car is not a "millionaire's car." In price it compares favorably with most of the popular cars of the day. $1,590 for the Roadster or the Five Passenger Touring Car. Only one hundred dollars additional for the Seven Passenger Touring Car. The closed bodies will be in proportion.

You must see this car. You must judge it in cold-blooded comparison with other cars, without reference to price. You must ride in it and drive in it and put it to every test that you can think of. Call us up for an appointment or visit our warerooms.

"ON KITCHEN POLICE" Or Wrestling with the Skillets

by Oney Fred Sweet

SOME general who had had a lot of experience said that an army fights on its stomach. This used to be a mere phrase to me. I know what that general meant now. I have served on "kitchen police."

Every enlisted man must serve on kitchen police providing his name begins with some letter in the alphabet, and I don't know how a fellow is going to get around that. Of course, he might change his name from Ajax to Zeno back and forth, but the "top sergeant" would be sure to get him some time.

I saw my name posted on the bulletin board at the head of the company street the night before I served. Corp. Dawson called my attention to the fact that my name had been posted. It meant that instead of going out with the rest to physical drill with arms I should hike up to the camp kitchen and report to the cook.

It was considerably before dawn that I reported to the cook. We had two cooks—Gus, who used to cook for various Chicago restaurants, and Miller, recently a Chicago fireman but previously an army "hasher." Gus was on the job the morning I reported. The first thing he did was make me wash my hands; then he started me in cutting bread.

I will say that our cook tent was sanitary and that Gus was a good cook, but I will say also that if I wanted to put an army on the bum I wouldn't wait for machine guns; I'd simply hire a dirty cook for a company, let him be careless about washing the pots and pans, permit the flies to gather, handle the food with dirty hands, fry everything, and let the bunch get the stomach ache.

Thanks to our incinerator and other methods, we didn't have many flies there at San Antonio. The incinerator was built at the head of every company street. It consisted of a trench lined with stones. A hot fire was kept going and the men were forced to dump their left over coffee on the stones to evaporate, and to throw their left over food on the fire. There was nothing left to attract the flies.

"Flies are worse than bullets any day," Gus told me. "They are the greatest little disease carriers in the business and every time one of 'em lights on the food he is apt to leave behind a hatch of fifty eggs. That's why we've cautioned the boys about throwing soapy water in the company streets and why we have such strict policing."

"Don't say anything about policing," I says. "Haven't I been on detail down this street enough mornings picking up cigaret butts and matches?"

"We've got to keep clean," said Gus. "This is going to be our home until only the government knows when. Every time a soldier is careless he is an enemy to every one of his comrades. Here, help me lift this can of coffee up on to the table. The boys will be coming along soon now. Don't dish out more than half a cup of coffee to each man."

Gus told Mike Dryvirgis, who was doing kitchen police for failure to get up the morning when reveille had sounded, how to hand out the bacon. It was a common saying about camp that every man who had been efficient along some certain line in civilian life could use this ability in the army. "Yobby" Johnson, for instance, had been a mechanic, and he was used to take care of accidents to our rifles and other equipment; Corp. Hudson had been a stenographer and he came in handy for typing bulletin notices. But Mike—well, Mike told me he had been an undertaker back in "Chi." I told Mike to put all his attention into learning to drill and to forget his past.

The third member of our kitchen police that morning was a guy from the Sixth squad, who was always borrowing something for a cigaret. If it wasn't a paper he wanted to borrow it was tobacco or a match. Gus told him the only thing he seemed to possess was the habit, and to cut out smoking while he was stirring oatmeal anyhow.

When Company G came filing along for breakfast I began to get busy with the coffee dipper and keep my ears open for the latest rumors. We were always getting rumors. One day we were going to move for El Paso in a few hours; the next day we were going to Vera Cruz. No one knew just how and where these rumors started out, but every one seemed willing to believe them and pass them along with embellishments. I remember one day I went to Capt. Hopps with a rumor I had heard that we were going to pack up for the "big bend country," and he told me to keep the rumors from getting into my system. He said he had been cured of rumors in '98.

After the whole company had got their feed Gus told the members of the kitchen police that they could eat then, too. I told Gus I never had cared for oatmeal, and he said I could eat it or leave it alone, just as I wished. We had eighty different men with eighty different kinds of appetite. Gus had no easy job.

When our breakfast was over we of the kitchen police had to pitch into the pots and pans. Due to the fact that I waited on the officers for their breakfast, I missed part of the dishwashing; but I caught the finish—those big, heavy boys that needed a lot of scouring soap. Three times I took the oatmeal miller over to Gus as clean, but he made me get busy on it again. Did you ever see a moving picture or read a romantic novel about war that had anything to do with scouring oatmeal pans? Yet an army has to eat, and eat three times a day. I know I used to think it was just a matter of wearing a uniform and charging the enemy, too. "Raise an army overnight?" Say, who started that bunk, anyhow?

Now ordinarily, when one does kitchen police, he gets a chance to miss hikes and drills, but it so happened that the day I was on kitchen police we were given a government inspection. The captain came along and said we'd have to stand inspection like the rest, whether our pants were greasy or not.

Did you ever stand army inspection? Well, you furl your tent and bring all your belongings out into the company street. Everything from your first aid pack to your sweater—yes, that was one of the things they issued to us one day when it was 100 in the shade, sweaters—must be laid out on your cot just so. Then you must wait until the inspection officers come along. Sometimes it is a long time before they come along, there are so many other companies to inspect, but when they do come along, if you haven't washed all your stuff up in the shower baths the day before, you'll wish you hadn't held up your right hand at enlistment time. It's an easy thing to do—hold up your right hand.

When the officer came along inspecting rifles he asked me if I'd ever fired it off and I told him "no." I mean I told him "no, sir." You don't leave off the "sir" when addressing an officer many times. He asked me if I thought I could hit anything with it and I wanted to tell him I'd like to try, because I'd carried it around on my shoulder so long, but I answered something military and he went on to the next man.

I overcame the handicap of my dirty kitchen pants by making a quick change just before each inspection officer came along. Once or twice I nearly got caught between changes. I had washed all my clothes thoroughly in the shower baths the day before despite the fact that the whole regiment was bent on doing the same thing at the same time. We were awfully crowded in the showers, but there was one advantage to it. Some fellow from Company H scrubbed on my cartridge belt for ten minutes, thinking it was his own. When we washed our clothes we washed all of them, only wearing the identification tags around our necks during the process.

We had canned beef as part of our mess that noon. I opened the cans with a cleaver. They had the labels on them of a Chicago packing house. This was good canned beef; it was full of juice and it was appetizing. All canned beef isn't good; some of it looks and tastes as if it had had all the juice and nutriment squeezed out of it before it was canned. But this was good canned beef.

And for supper Gus had us help him make some creole sauce that was great dope. We didn't get our share of it until almost time for "retreat," and we didn't get through with the pots and pans and the dishwasher until darkness had settled over the tented city and the only sound that could be heard was a phonograph playing a Hawaiian love song over in Company F.

"You boys can go to your tents now," said Gus. "You're through with kitchen police now until they come to your names on the list again. As for myself, I've got nothing to do till tomorrow."

"Nothing till tomorrow," I echoed.

"Nothing to do 'till tomorrow," Gus repeated, "but we're going to have biscuits for breakfast and my tomorrow begins at half past 3 o'clock."

Pslams of Life

by J. P. McEvoy

APPRECIATION WHAT AM.

The sun was setting in the west,
A quaint old custom it has got.
Belasco batting at his best
Could not have picked a better spot.
A mellow flood of ruby rays
With glory drowned a drowsy land,
She turned and said, as in a daze,
"Ain't nature grand!"

The time and scene is changed: 'tis night,
A pallid moon with silver feet
Drifts on a shimmering path of light
Across the lake (I guess that's neat!)
Aquiver 'neath its magic spell.
She leaned upon his palm beach suit
And rapturously she cried: "Well, well,
Ain't nature cute!"

Aurora blushes in the east,
And erubescent is the glow
As tongues of living fire feast
On somber clouds (it's easy, bo);
The glory grows, the day is near,
A thrush is singing in the dell,
She lamps it good and says: "My dear,
Ain't nature swell!"

Gossip of the Auto Trade

In a Chalmers car carrying 1,370 pounds of passengers and camping equipment M. H. Carpenter, the Chalmers dealer at Wichita Falls, Tex., arrived at the Harry Newman headquarters on Saturday, Sept. 2, to boast of an economy record of 20.3 miles to the gallon. The greater part of the 1,500 mile trip was made over wretched roads, and although the motor was run without a stop for six and eight hours at a time, the hood was not raised once. So excellent was the record of the car that Carpenter decided to continue to New York.

It was expected that the new Premier would be in the hands of agents before this, and although many prospective purchasers have been disappointed they will undoubtedly be pleased to know the company will not rush production, no matter what the demand may be. "It is the best sign in the world," said James Levy, local agent for the new Premier. "It shows the management means business and is building not alone for today, but for all time to come, and it wants the car absolutely right from the jump. The Premier is unlike other cars—it has intense individuality—so many good points that it is a wonder they were not discovered long ago. I am sure the Chicago buyer will be interested in the bullet-line body, which, with the V radiator, will give more room than any car made. The standard finish will be gun metal velour—a deep gray, almost black, in fact—which will harmonize with the jet black hood, fenders, and radiator shell."

According to L. K. Cooper, manager of the local Maxwell branch, all production records were broken by the Maxwell company on Saturday, Sept. 2, when 532 cars were turned out of the big Detroit plant. On the day previous the output was 501 machines. The production schedule for 1916-'17 calls for 125,000 cars, and the output at the present time is 100 per cent greater than in the fall of last year.

We have so many smashing bargains now, we scarcely know what to advertise. Our recent "spot cash" purchases have brought the "cream" of the country's products to us at a mere fraction of the cost to manufacture. The methods we employ in securing these big bargain stocks are different from any store—original and exclusive to ourselves. We are recognized as the leading buyers of quality furniture and rugs at big auction events, manufacturers' outlet sales, sheriffs' and receivers' sales. And we sell as we buy—bargains only—nothing but bargains. In the peculiar character and magnitude of our buying operations, we stand alone—absolutely first in our field.

A trip through our mammoth bargain plant is as interesting as a visit to an exposition. Come and see the 40 acre home of "The Great Price Wreckers"—you won't be urged to buy—but before you leave you will be convinced that we are leading all Chicago in genuine visible home furnishing bargains.

How are the roads?

NOW come the ideal months for touring, September and October. Gone is the excessive heat of summer and the natural dirt roads were never in better condition for motoring. Neither will the tourist be hampered now with the detours that he was forced to make earlier in the season, for much of the summer construction work has been completed and improved roads are open to automobiles.

The following highway bulletins were sent in last week by the road scouts of the touring bureau of the Automobile Blue Book for the guidance of motorists:

ILLINOIS.

Egyptian trail, Chicago to Cairo, via Champaign, Mattoon, Effingham, Centralia, and Carbondale.—Road reported in good condition.

Old National road, St. Louis to Terre Haute, via Greenville, Vandalia, Effingham, Casey, and Marshall.—Road reported in good condition, with much travel.

INDIANA.

New Carlisle reports that the public service commissioner of Indiana has ordered the elimination of the grade crossings of the three railroads intersecting the Lincoln highway just east of New Carlisle. Three separate subways are prescribed as a solution of the situation and they will be built to safely accommodate all travel.

Terre Haute to Vincennes, via Sullivan, Carlisle, and Bruceville—Road in excellent condition.

Vincennes to Evansville, via White River ferry and Princeton—Tourists are advised to follow the gravel road through Fort Branch and Hauptstadt instead of taking the more direct route over seven miles of dirt between Princeton and Stringtown.

IOWA.

Des Moines reports all roads in fine condition.

Marshalltown to Omaha, via the Lincoln highway. This road is being worked between Carroll and the east end of the county, widening the grades and bridges and straightening the road.

Dubuque to Independence, via Centralia, Dyersville, and Manchester—Tourists are advised to avoid this route, as the road is being worked almost the entire distance. Detours are marked, leaving Dubuque, via the Hawkeye highway.

Omaha to Cedar Rapids, over the Lincoln highway—Roads are reported good. Concrete bridges are being put in, but the detours are well marked.

Davenport to Dubuque, via De Witt and Maquoketa—Road reported bad in wet weather. The work of grading a hill north of Bridgeville leaves road in bad condition, especially for heavy car. Tourists are advised not to go from Maquoketa to Dubuque via Hopkinton and La Motte, as the road is being repaired.

KENTUCKY.

From Louisville to Nashville the Dixie highway, via Elizabethtown, Munfordville, Cave City, and Bowling Green, is the best route to follow.

Louisville to Lincoln Memorial farm, via Fort Point, Elizabethtown, and Hodgenville—Road reported good, with two miles of dirt, which will be bad in wet weather.

MISSOURI.

St. Joseph reports roads in this section in good shape. Recent rains have settled dust. Red Ball route, Quincy to St. Louis, via Hannibal. Tourists are advised not to travel the road at night on account of many washed out places in the road. Roads are reported in good condition from Keokuk to St. Louis and all bridges are O. K., except at Louisiana, where you must cross on railroad bridge. Boards have been laid on the ties.

St. Joseph to Chillicothe. On account of condemned bridge over the Grand river, between St. Joseph and Chillicothe, tourists for all points east and north, passing over the Pike's Peak Ocean to Ocean highway, should detour at Utica, taking first right hand road to east at foot of hill just after passing through Utica, go three miles east to Southwest trail, then three miles north into Chillicothe, passing over new Air Line bridge over Grand river. Road conditions are reported good.

Kansas City to Chillicothe. Between Chillicothe and Utica tourists should detour at Plymouth, Mo., owing to the condemned bridge over the Grand river, to the Southwest trail, going east from Plymouth three miles, north four miles through Dawn, Mo., east four miles to Air Line road, and north nine miles into Chillicothe, passing over new Air Line bridge over Grand river two miles south of Chillicothe.

NEBRASKA.

The Lincoln highway, Grand Island to North Platte. Tourists have been compelled to make a detour between North Platte and Gothenburg on this route this season, due to the construction of the new $50,000 bridge over the North Platte river at this point. The detour which took the tourists along the south bank of the river will no longer be necessary, as the new bridge is now completed.

Omaha to Des Moines, via Atlantic. Tourists will find the river to river road the better route to use at the present time.

Omaha to Sioux City, via Lyons. Road reported good to Lyons and from Lyons to Sioux City fair to good.

Omaha to Sioux City, via Onawa, reported in good condition.

Omaha to Denver, via Hastings, McCook, Sterling, and Fort Morgan. Omaha to Oxford reported good, to McCook fair to good, Lamar to Holyoke bad.

Omaha to Denver over the Lincoln highway, via Grand Island, to Cheyenne. Military highway to Fremont on Lincoln highway reported better. Fremont to Big Springs good and also from Big Springs to Denver. The River to River road is reported to be the best connection between Davenport and Omaha.

NEW MEXICO.

Raton, N. M., to Springerville, via Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Socorro, and Magdalena. Roads reported in good condition.

OHIO.

Cleveland to Erie, via Painesville, Geneva, Conneaut, and Girard. The Lake Shore boulevard is paved all the way into Willoughby. There is a small detour at Painesville. Follow the trolley where it runs off Main street and go to the right down hill and across the river, then immediately turn right into brick road to Unionville. There is also a short detour a mile east of Conneaut which is marked.

Cleveland to Youngstown, via Bedford, Twinsburg, Kent, Ravenna, Warren, and Niles. At Ravenna there is a detour of eleven miles to Newton Falls. This is reported bad in wet weather.

Youngstown to Pittsburgh, via Darlington. There are several stretches between these two points in the vicinity of Darlington which are bad in wet weather.

Cleveland to Toledo. Repairs over the Elyria-Norwalk road have practically been completed and at present there is only one detour, a mile east of Norwalk.

Dayton to Springfield, via Harshman and Fairfield—Road reported in worn condition and badly cut up all the way.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Motorists are warned to slow down when touring in this state, as in a number of small towns motorists whose license tags indicate that they are from another state are being arrested and fined the usual $15 and costs on the slightest provocation. Franklin is one of the worst towns in this respect and motorists are warned to slow down or else avoid the town altogether.

WISCONSIN.

Lake Geneva reports all roads around this section in good condition.

Barney Oldfield, who will retire from the racing game after participating in the Vanderbilt cup and grand prize events, to be run at Santa Monica on Nov. 16 and 18, respectively, will have a new mount for the two classics. Harry Miller, designer of the carburetor that bears his name, is building a new motor for the veteran. Many parts of Barney's Delage will be used in the construction of the new car, which will be featured by a sixteen valve engine with all working parts inclosed, overhead camshaft, and oil and gas lines cast integral with the crankcase.

MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES Conducted by J. C. Burton

Dixie Highway Officials to Follow Boone's Trail on October Tour.

WITH a brass band to introduce "Pretty Baby" and other best sellers in popular music to the mountaineers of Kentucky and Tennessee and a forty-two centimeter battery of plain and fancy orators to scatter good roads forensics over a wide expanse of heretofore uncharted and unmotored territory south of the Ohio river, the commissioners of the Dixie Highway association will leave Cincinnati on the morning of Oct. 23 to inspect the road, now under completion, that when completed will take the automobile tourist through the heart of Kentucky's bluegrass region and over the Cumberland mountains of Tennessee.

The new road, which is part of the eastern division of the Dixie highway, will not be open for another year, but the highway builders now are working at high speed to put the thoroughfare in such condition that it will be possible for the cars of the inspection party to pass over it next month.

The newest link in the chain of roads that pierce the hospitable heart of Dixie is a connection between Cincinnati and Chattanooga. In Kentucky it taps Covington, Walton, Williamstown, Corinth, Georgetown, Lexington, Boonesboro, Richmond, Berea, Mount Vernon, London, Corbin, Barbourville, Pineville, Middleborough, and Cumberland Gap and passes through Tazewell, Maynardsville, Knoxville, Rockwood, Spring City, Evensville, Graysville, Sale Creek, Soddy, and Daisy in Tennessee.

When completed the Cincinnati-Chattanooga section of the Dixie highway not only will serve as an optional route to the city that lies in the shadows of historic Lookout mountain and Missionary ridge but also will be a most direct and welcome connection between Chicago and Asheville and contiguous North Carolina winter resorts, now reached by the local motorist in a rather roundabout way, since he must travel east to Hagerstown, Md., thence south to Winston-Salem and then beat back westward some 250 miles.

Asheville is only 130 miles east of Knoxville over an improved road that follows the French Broad river and passes through Jefferson City, Dandridge, Newport, Wolf Creek, Hot Springs, Marshall, and Weaverville; consequently the completion of the Cincinnati-Chattanooga road will mean a saving of many miles to the Chicago tourist motoring to the most famous of the North Carolina winter resorts.

Because of its scenic and historic attractions, officials of the Dixie highway believe that the eastern road to Chattanooga will be more popular than the western route, which passes through Louisville, West Point, Elizabethtown, Munfordville, Cave City, Bowling Green, Russellville, and Adairville, Ky., and Springfield, Nashville, Murfreesboro, Shelbyville, and Mount Eagle, Tenn.

At the present time the latter route is open to motor travel with the exception of a 10 mile stretch south of Shelbyville, which will be closed until a new road across the mountains west of Chattanooga, now being built by convicts, is completed. In traveling to Chattanooga this fall and winter, northern tourists are advised to detour at Shelbyville, leaving the Dixie highway there and going to their destination via Meridanville, Huntsville, Woodville, Scottsboro, and Bridgeport, Ala. This is a circuitous route that adds 300 miles to the journey, but eliminates the mud and heavy grades of the old mountain trails.

On their inspection trip next month the Dixie highway officials will travel in the wake of Daniel Boone. The frontier trail that now is being transformed into a motor road was blazed by the pioneer of all American backwoodsmen in his journey from Virginia into the wilderness of Kentucky a century and a half ago, but the exploration of the surrounding territory antedates the advent of Boone by more than fifty years.

It was in 1716 that the scenic region through which the Cincinnati-Chattanooga road leads first excited the settlers of Virginia to deeds of conquest and colonization. It was in that year that Sir Alexander Spotswood, colonial governor of Virginia, and forty horsemen rode through Cumberland gap and into the western wilderness. So many horseshoes were lost on that expedition that the leader presented each of the followers with a golden horseshoe and founded the Order of the Golden Horseshoe.

At Boonesboro the members of the inspection party will find themselves in the center of historic territory. The town was founded in 1775 by Boone. Here stood the fort from which George Rogers Clark made his special expedition into the Illinois country. To Boonesboro Boone fled from Detroit after escaping from the tribe of Shawnees that had taken him prisoner and adopted him. He covered the last 160 miles of his flight in four days to warn the Kentuckians of an Indian attack.

Berea is another town of interest on the route of the Cincinnati-Chattanooga highway. Here is located the most famous mountain school in the country, to attend which the sons of the isolated hill people often ride fifty miles on horseback. London, a few miles farther south, is the scene of the Baker-White feud, one of the bitterest and bloodiest family quarrels in the feud legends of Kentucky.

Cumberland gap exudes civil war history. This passage through the mountains was captured and retaken five times by the Confederates during the four years of internecine conflict. Here also stands the Four Seasons hotel, built at a cost of $1,000,000 by a company of English capitalists who attempted to exploit the country ten years ago. At Middleborough, a few miles north, a fortune was spent in the construction of modern buildings. The project failed because the English did not furnish means of transportation to their scenic mountain resort. They should have built the highway then that the road builders are working on at the present time.

This road is a virgin highway. From Mount Vernon to Knoxville, a distance of 126 miles, it leads over and through the mountains. When completed next year it will offer as scenic a drive as any found in the majestic Rockies.

From Knoxville to Rockwood the Dixie highway commissioners will follow the historic route taken by Gen. Andrew Jackson on his stage coach trips to Washington from his home, the Hermitage, at Nashville. In the days when the Indians challenged the intrusion of the palefaces into the mountain country of Kentucky and Tennessee Rockville was one of the most strategic points in the south. To prevent the Seminoles from joining the warring tribes of the north a fort was built here, and the attempts of the redskins to take the pass were stubbornly resisted time and again by a small band of frontiersman, deadly shots with their long squirrel rifles.

The motorist will have no trouble negotiating the 126 miles between Knoxville and Chattanooga on this new division of the Dixie highway. The road will be completed within another month, only six miles having to be resurfaced.

The Dixie highway is an inspiration. In the six mountain counties through which the Cincinnati-Chattanooga section runs—Rockcastle, Laurel, Knox, and Bell in Kentucky and Claiborne and Union in Tennessee—$1,126,000 has been voted for road construction since the western division of the north-south thoroughfare was routed through that section, a region apathetic toward good roads and ignorant of their advantages before the Dixie highway advocates started their campaign.

This year's inspection trip by the Dixie highway commissioners will not be as lengthy or as pretentious as the tour last fall, when the official cars traveled from Chicago to Miami over the western division. The mileage of next month's trip is approximately 450 miles, and it will take only four days at the most to make the journey from Cincinnati to Chattanooga.

MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES

Conducted by J. C. Burton

Questions and Answers

By High

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamps with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

I am contemplating a motor car trip from Chicago to Bloomington, Ill. What route should I follow?

J. L. M., Chicago.

Forest Park, La Grange, Lockport, Joliet, Wilmington, Morris, Dwight, Pontiac, Lexington, and Normal, to Bloomington, 149.5 miles.

What route does High Speed recommend for a tour from Chicago to Dixon, Ill.?

W. P. G., Chicago.

The best route to Dixon is through Elmhurst, Lombard, North Glen Ellyn, West Chicago, and Geneva. At this point you will take the Lincoln highway and go through De Kalb, Cresco, Rochelle, Ashton, and Franklin Grove to Dixon, which is 105.3 miles from Chicago.

Please publish as soon as possible the best automobile route from this city to Laporte, Ind., and oblige,

B. F., Chicago.

South Chicago, Hammond, Highland, South Gary, Hobart, Valparaiso, and Westville to Laporte, 74.8 miles.

How would you advise me to drive from Chicago to Marion, Ind.? Please state the distance, and also let me know whether the roads are in fair condition at the present time.

W. L. S.

I would advise you to go through South Chicago, Hammond, Dyer, St. Johns, Crown Point, Thayer, Roselawn, Rensselaer, Remington, and Wolcott, 103.7 miles; Monticello, Pittsburg, Delphi, Flora, and Kokomo, 62.8 miles; Sycamore and Swayzee, to Marion, 28 miles. I believe you will find the roads in good condition. The roads consist of city pavements and good gravel practically all the way, with the exception of a bad mile and one-half in the Kankakee river bottoms.

Will you please outline the best route to follow on a motor tour from Michigan City to Buffalo?

E. M.

Go to South Bend, 23 miles, and from there through Mishawaka, Elkhart, Dunlap, Goshen, Ligonier, Kendallville, Butler, Edgerton, Bryan, Wauseon, Toledo, 165.6 miles; Lemoyne, Fremont, Clyde, Bellvue, Monroeville, Norwalk, Oberlin, Elyria, Cleveland, 99.1 miles; Willoughby, Painesville, Unionville, Ashtabula, Conneaut, Erie, 102 miles; Harbor Creek, Ripley, Westfield, Fredonia, Irving, Buffalo, 98.2 miles.

Mrs. T. W. F., Marinette, Wis.

Go through Evanston, Wilmette, and Glencoe to Highland Park. At this point take the Green Bay road and go north through Corliss and Fredonville to Milwaukee, 92 miles. Then go through Thiensville, Cedarburg, West Bend, Campbellsport, Eden, Fond Du Lac, 66.9 miles; Sherwood, East Wrightstown, Greenleaf, De Pere, Green Bay, 68.5 miles; Duck Creek, Big Suamico, Little Suamico, Brookside, Peshtigo, Marinette, 88.4 miles.

I am a new driver and have never attempted to take my car on a country trip. I am contemplating a tour to Kalamazoo, Mich., and would like to know if the trip would be an easy and enjoyable one. What route would you advise one to follow and what is the distance from Chicago?

C. C. T., Oak Park, Ill.

You need not be at all apprehensive over the prospect of the trip you mention, for it should prove an easy and enjoyable one. Go south on Michigan avenue to Garfield boulevard and turn east, going through Washington park, down the Midway, and through Jackson park. Leaving the park at the southeast corner, take South Shore boulevard past South Shore Country club, and go to Ninety-third street. Here turn left around Iron church and go to Burley avenue. Turn right and go to end of avenue, where jog left and then right with trolley into Buffalo avenue. At Ninety-second street turn left, angle across iron drawbridge and follow Ewing avenue car tracks to Indianapolis avenue, where turn left and go to five corners with baseball park on one corner and new roadhouses on another. Turn right and go to point where trolley angles to right. Leave trolley and bear left on fine asphalt road across Lake George. Follow straight through edge of Hammond, making several detours plainly marked by red arrows on telephone poles. Go to end of road and turn left in Ridge road, going through Highland, South Gary, Hobart, Wheeler and Valparaiso. Here you will pick up the Lincoln highway, which is well marked through Westville, Laporte, and New Carlisle to South Bend, 180 miles. From South Bend go north through Niles, Pokagon, Dowagiac, Decatur, Lawton, Paw Paw, and Almena to Kalamazoo, 69.1 miles. You will find good roads the entire distance.

I desire to drive by automobile from Sandwich, Ill., to Fifty-seventh street and Maryland avenue, Chicago. Will you kindly tell me how I am to reach my destination without passing through the business section of Chicago?

R. D. K.

The best route from Sandwich, Ill., is by way of Plano, Montgomery, Aurora, Naperville, Forest Park, and Oak Park. The distance to Chicago is 69.2 miles. If you do not wish to go through the business section of Chicago take Washington boulevard directly east to Douglas park, passing through the park and then taking Independence boulevard and Douglas boulevard through Douglas park to Marshfield boulevard, West Twenty-fourth street, Crawford boulevard, Thirty-first Street boulevard, Western avenue, and Garfield boulevard, then east through Washington park to Fifty-seventh street, continuing from there to Maryland avenue.

I have always found your department very interesting, and have followed your route regarding routes to various places. Now I am going to ask you to map out the best route between Naperville, Ill., and Toledo, O. Is the Lincoln highway followed all the way to Toledo? What is the total distance of the trip?

W. M.

Only a small portion of the route follows the line of the Lincoln highway. First drive to Chicago, thirty-two miles, and then go through South Chicago, Hammond, Highland, Hobart, and Wheeler to Valparaiso, 51.6 miles. At this point you will meet the Lincoln highway, and continue on it through Westville, La Porte, and New Carlisle to South Bend, 49.4 miles, then leave the highway and go through Mishawaka, Elkhart, Goshen, Ligonier, Kendallville, Butler, Edgerton, Bryan, Wauseon, and Crissey to Toledo, 165.6 miles.

Would you be so kind as to print in your helpful column the best route between Chicago and Sheffield, Ill.?

A. W. T.

Forest Park, Naperville, Aurora, 40.2 miles; Montgomery, Bristol, Plano, Sandwich, Somonauk, Earlville, Mendota, Dover, Princeton, 77 miles; Wyanet, Sheffield, 14.4 miles.

As I am contemplating an automobile trip from Chicago to Muskegon, Mich., I am going to ask you to lay out the route I should follow. Please state what kind of roads would be encountered and whether one would be likely to meet with much difficulty in driving over them.

L. A.

I would advise you to go through South Chicago, Hammond, East Chicago, Calumet, Gary, Aetna, Miller, East Gary, Porter, Michigan City, 62.7 miles; New Buffalo, Three Oaks, Galien, Glendora, Baroda, Stevensville, St. Joseph, 45.5 miles; Benton Harbor, Riverside, Colona, Watervliet, Covert, South Haven, Douglas, Saugatuck, Graafschap, Holland, Grand Haven, Muskegon, 100.7 miles. While the roads are not as good as some in the central states, they are nevertheless quite fair on the average, and you will not be likely to encounter any trouble in driving over them.

Arlie Mucks, the Wisconsin football player and track athlete, who captured one world's championship for his alma mater and otherwise won distinction for it, has been singularly honored by his fellow citizens of Oshkosh. They clubbed together and bought him an automobile, one of the new hundred point six Kissel-Kars, as an evidence of their regard and appreciation of the many trophies he won in the Olympian games and other events in which he has participated.

AMANDA PREUSS
LINN PHOTO

Miss Amanda Preuss, the motoring Amazon who crossed the American continent in 11 days, 5 hours, and 4 minutes and established a transcontinental touring record for woman drivers that promises to stand for some time, played a one day stand at the Chicago agency of the Oldsmobile last week, relating her experiences on the 313 mile a day journey over the Lincoln highway. Only one other individual has driven from San Francisco to New York in less time than Miss Preuss, Irving Baker making the coast to coast drive this spring in 7 days, 11 hours, and 15 minutes.

The high cost of automobiles, a resultant evil of the European war, received a solar plexus blow last week when the Chevrolet Motor company announced a reduction of $60 in the price of its four cylinder model, which now sells for $490, including electric lights and starter. The cut is the result of increased production and more efficient manufacturing facilities.

Goodyear cord tires scored a decisive victory on Labor day when Johnny Aitken captured the inaugural race on the Cincinnati speedway, the triumphant Peugeot being equipped with casings of that make. Aitken changed but two tires in the 300 mile drive, the left front and left rear withstanding the terrific heat and wear of the 97 miles an hour pace despite the fact that they were ran 150 miles in practice before the race.

With general offices in Detroit and branches in Chicago, Atlanta, Boston, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, New York, San Francisco, and Seattle, the Bearing Service company has been organized to handle the service for anti-friction bearings of all types of motor vehicles. The new corporation is solving the service problems for the Timken Roller Bearing company, the Hyatt Roller Bearing company, and the New Departure Manufacturing company, three leading makers that heretofore have maintained individual branches in several of the distributing centers.

"Automobiles are becoming so common that there is an increasing demand for something individual," said C. J. Bour, president of the Bour-Davis Motor Car company, recently. "This demand is being worked out in the color schemes of bodies, frames, and wheels, and the outlook is for more color next year than since the early days, when automobiles were in all the colors of the rainbow. Thievery of cars in those days was almost unknown, as every car bore distinction and was easily found. Thieves were unable to get away with these cars. Nowadays people are finding that, where cars are all alike in any one make, the theft of a car is easy, as the thief has but to change the license plate, which he is always prepared to do, and the car he has is then easily taken away without any question."

"Autumn is here," says C. A. Hamilton, president of the Chicago Allen company. "The automobile dealer doesn't need to see the weather reports or the falling leaves or anything of that sort to know it. It takes just ten degrees drop in temperature along about this time of the year to start the annual drive on the closed car trade. Just as we were beginning to suspect a falling off of business due to the close of the summer season, we experienced a new impetus to the trade in the announcement of the sedan and coupé models. These will be on the floor within the next two weeks and the first allotment for local distribution will follow closely after."

During the last fourteen months the Studebaker corporation led the automobile industry in the production and sale of seven passenger cars. In that period 70,000 Studebaker seven passenger automobiles were built and shipped. The Studebaker business has shown a 100 per cent increase during the last year, and production at present is at the rate of 100,000 cars annually. This will show a gain of 60 per cent over the output of last year, which up to that time set a new record for Studebaker.

"Construction of the new plant now being built for the Dann Products company, manufacturer of the Dann insert and the new metal bearing metal, Dannite, is progressing rapidly, and this new factory at One Hundred and Fifty-second street and Euclid avenue, Cleveland, will be opened and running by Oct. 1," said E. G. Dann, general manager of the company. The Dann company, which is moving to Cleveland from its present manufacturing plant here, has recently been enlarged to a $600,000 corporation from an original capitalization of $60,000.

The downtown office of one of Chicago's largest film circulating bureaus has installed a delivery and pick-up system, using a Little Giant motor truck for rapid transit of films to and from theaters. The idea, born in the mind of the progressive manager, has proved to be one of the most important additions to the exchange service.

Its Double Power-Range

In performance the Peerless Eighty Horsepower Eight is two cars in one.

It has two distinct power ranges.

For light work it performs with graceful agility and smoothness, consuming fuel at so low a rate as to make it the envy of many a six—even many a four.

It will crawl along—dash ahead—give all the little evidences of a superior motor car which make you proud to drive it.

In all this kind of work you are feeding it fuel at half rations.

It is serving your social requirements, let us say, with consummate grace and distinction.

But there comes a time when you want a brute of a car—for a brush on the open road with a contender of class—or for an emergency demanding rough, hard work.

Step on the throttle and listen.

She responds with a deeper tone—no longer the soft purr of a motor lightly performing an easy task—she's working in her higher power range—you have automatically opened her double poppets—she's getting full rations now.

Like a hound unleashed she springs to her task—no ordinary car can contend with her now—she's exhibiting her sporting class—and class indeed must any contender show to hold with her now.

The Peerless Eighty Horsepower Eight is a gentleman's car, serving with consummate completeness both his social and sporting requirements.

The Peerless Company, devoted exclusively to the production of motor cars of super-quality—

—Custodian of many of the industry's most creditable traditions

—Cherishing a good name of priceless worth

—With unswerving devotion to the highest ideals is devoting its entire attention to the production of this one chassis offered with four body styles.

It will be continued as improved and refined.

Working at maximum efficiency, the largest force we ever employed is steadily increasing the output—gaining on the demand which this car has created for itself.

We have never yet turned out an unsold Peerless Eight, but can now promise reasonably prompt delivery.

See us for a demonstration—place your order promptly.

The Pulse of your Battery

How long will your battery live?

It's a hard question to answer definitely — depends on the kind of battery and the treatment it gets. But this much you may be sure of:

If it's a Vesta it will live twice as long as any other battery.

—because the Vesta has advantages over all the rest right from the start. It has qualities that no others possess. Most important of these are its Indestructible Isolators (patented exclusive Vesta feature.)

Now most battery deaths are caused by the breaking down of the wooden separators. The plates touch and then—

Bingo! Short circuit and sudden death!

But this can't happen in the Vesta. The Vesta Indestructible Isolators positively lock the plates apart. The soft wooden mats in a Vesta battery serve only to equalize distribution of current—in other batteries their chief purpose is to keep the plates apart. The isolators perform this duty in the Vesta.

Join A. J. Farmer in the Manufacture of DREXEL Cars!

An Epoch-Making Opportunity Will Be Extended the Public on Sept. 18th to Invest in the Common Stock (Actual Ownership) of a Big, Going, Successful Chicago Auto Manufacturing Firm

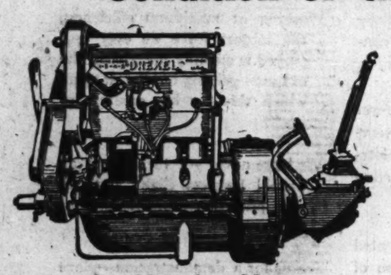
This Advance Announcement Being Printed for the Purpose of Advising You to Hold On to Your Money—and Wait!

You have heard how fortunate investments of small sums in automobile stocks have made fortunes; how $100 invested in Ford stock in 1904 is today worth $250,000; how $100 invested in Hupp Motor stock has grown to $16,500 within eight years; how $100 invested in Chandler stock three years ago has a present market value of $3,300. These instances—and scores of others almost equally brilliant—are true. The distressing part of it is that these opportunities never came YOUR way; there was no public offering of these stocks—the same having been underwritten by the big bank and bond houses, and the shares passed out to their friends.

This will be one of the few times in the history of the manufacture of automobiles when an opportunity is given John Jones, plain American citizen, to invest in the stock and ownership of a big, going, successful, money-making motor manufacturing enterprise; and for that reason, is unique, daring, spectacular! Read the personal statement of A. J. Farmer (center column) and the reason for our action (right hand column) and then keep your money until we are ready. Meanwhile investigate us fully; get our literature, the company's financial statement. Visit the company's salesroom, 2241 Michigan Avenue. Come out to the factory, 76th and Wallace Streets, and see the car itself being made. Get your name on our preferred list, and be ready to take advantage of our offer the minute our subscription books are opened. Remember, it costs you nothing to "REGISTER" your name and to INVESTIGATE; and in the event this stock is oversubscribed, FIRST PREFERENCE WILL BE GIVEN THOSE WHOSE NAMES ARE REGISTERED WITH US.

Better be safe than sorry. Fill in and mail us the advance Inquiry Coupon in lower right hand corner. Do so now!

Plain Facts About the Car, the Company, It's Plant and the Condition of the Firm's Affairs



Our Marvelous Motor

There are other medium-priced cars on the market that are just as handsome as the DREXEL (though we will not admit there are any that are more handsome). Other cars have many of the DREXEL'S strong features. And there may even be a few other medium-priced cars made and sold that are equipped with the expensive Bosch magneto. But there is positively no car on the American market at double the price of the DREXEL that has an engine the equal of ours.

We build our own motor. It is the big, distinctive thing about our car—the one thing that other makers can't spend money for and duplicate. Our engine is the famous Farmer Engine, and our company owns the basic patent rights to it. This celebrated engine has one hundred less parts than any other of its style and type, yet it is of 41 horsepower and develops almost unlimited speed. The Farmer Engine, in fact, is the wonder of the automobile manufacturing industry.

A Popular Priced Car

We make only one style of car, offered with choice of five-passenger body or as roadster. We could build a more expensive car. Or we could build a cheaper car. But a cheaper car could not possibly contain all of the DREXEL'S many superior features. And a higher priced car would be beyond the reach of many. So we concentrate our energies upon the production of a single model, with the result that we can today make and sell at $895 retail (and with a reasonable profit to ourselves) a car that has all the refinements of a $1,200 automobile, and a better, more powerful, more durable, less-expensively-operated engine than any car offered at up to twice the DREXEL'S price.

There are three classes of automobile purchasers, classified according to the amount the buyer is able to put in his car: (1) the $400 to $600 class; (2) the $750 to $1,500 class; (3) the $1,800 to $3,000 class.

With the first class pretty thoroughly dominated by Mr. Ford, and with plenty of manufacturers striving for the comparatively limited business among buyers of the third class, we find ourselves very fortunate in being able to cater to the preponderous middle class and to be able to offer them such a generous bargain value for their money.

The fact that we cannot, at present, build cars fast enough to supply the demand proves that we have hit upon the right car at the right price, and that with the proper manufacturing facilities we can reasonably expect to market all the DREXELS we can build.

Built, From Top to Bottom, in Our Plant at 76th and Wallace Streets in Chicago

We build this model car in our own Chicago factory, where every step in its manufacture is closely supervised and scrutinized by Mr. Farmer, whose time is wholly given over to our factory management—and always will be. Every car that leaves our plant is therefore always up to standard. And, by virtue of our car being manufactured in this city, we have a strong claim on the preference of Chicago automobile purchasers because of the obvious advantage to them in having the factory accessible at all times, thus assuring the local owner of a DREXEL car the best of service.

A cordial invitation is extended you to visit our plant on the south side—76th and Wallace streets.

A Proven Business—Not a Theoretical Proposition

Don't overlook the fact that we are MANUFACTURERS, not merely assemblers of motor cars—ourselves making all the important parts of our car, except such equipment as experience has taught can best be obtained through various manufacturing specialists, such as the Bosch magneto, which is used exclusively on the DREXEL.

Also, bear in mind that neither our car nor our organization is theoretical. Each is developed, demonstrated, and proven. We are a going concern, with an established standing and rating in the business world. Our affairs will bear the closest investigation.

A Personal Statement BY A. J. FARMER

This is to state that I have carefully read and weighed every statement made in this announcement, and I can, and do, guarantee the absolute accuracy of these facts.

Furthermore, I wish to give my unqualified personal assurance to all who respond to our coming offer and become stockholders in this company that I shall unceasingly and undividedly devote my time to the protection of their interests and to the promotion of this company's business. I have no other aim or ambition than to develop the Drexel Motor Car Corporation into the BIGGEST of medium-priced automobile manufacturing enterprises, and confidently believe that with what many of the country's greatest motor authorities admit to be the most wonderful automobile engine ever designed, and with the revenues to be derived from our coming sale of stock put into new machinery, which will enable us to almost immediately increase our facilities to an output basis of 25 cars a day—I say I believe that no company ever enjoyed fairer prospects of a big and practically assured future.

When you consider that Henry Ford produced only 1,708 cars during his first year in business, 1904, that his last year's output was exactly 533,921 cars, that the whole success of his car is based on the efficacy of the Ford engine; and when you consider that we are already manufacturing and selling at the rate of about 1,700 cars annually, that our engine is ten years in advance of any other on the market, that Chicago alone with her two and a half million population (but without any automobile manufacturing industry up to date) is destined to be one of the principal points for the manufacture of medium priced cars, and should alone demand five times the present maximum output of our factory—

I affirm, with all possible emphasis, that the coming opportunity to the people of Chicago to invest in Drexel stock at par will be one of the most, if not indeed the most significant episode in the history of the Automobile in America.

A. J. Farmer

PRESIDENT.

DREXEL MOTOR CAR CORPORATION

HAVE you ever planned something big and important to you—like building a home of your own or getting in business for yourself—and then worked hard, saved, created and waited patiently for years to carry out your plans? If you have done so you can appreciate why A. J. Farmer, pioneer motor car builder, is approaching the big moment of his life, when, after years of labor in his chosen field, after making fortunes for other automobile manufacturers and after utilizing this rich experience in the invention and perfection of the most wonderful automobile engine of the age, he is now about to make the public the startling offer of a part ownership in his company, the Drexel Motor Car Corporation. Mr. Farmer was, for years, general superintendent of Smith & Mabley, American importers of Panhard, Mercedes and other foreign cars. He next became superintendent of the Rainier Motor Car Co., and, later, factory manager of the American and British Mfg. Co., builders of Chalmers motors. With the General Motors Co. he distinguished himself by earning one million dollars net for the company in sixteen months at their Northway plant. He has built engines for the Cole, Oakland, Jackson and other well-known cars. He is the designer of the celebrated Farmer engine, used extensively in foreign cars. In America his engine is built and used only in DREXEL cars—the product of our factory.

For six months now we have been manufacturing cars at our plant here in Chicago, perfecting the DREXEL automobile and establishing ourselves on a substantial and permanent basis. We are making and selling an average of five cars a day. We are making money. We could go on, continue to finish five DREXELS per day, earn a fair income and take life easy. But there is a much greater demand for DREXEL cars than we can satisfy on our present finances and with our limited factory output. Also, A. J. Farmer is still young and more ambitious than ever. A conservative and safe business man, he nevertheless wants to do something big. His ambition is to put himself, as a motor car manufacturer, in the class with W. C. Durant, Ford, Willys and others. He has the first requisite—the most wonderful engine, without exception, ever built. He now needs only the good will of the public. Hence his decision to share his fortunes with the people. His belief is that 2,000 small stockholders will give the DREXEL car a greater boost and more publicity than a million dollars spent in printed advertising.

DREXEL cars are Built—not merely assembled—in our own Chicago Factory—76th and Wallace Sts.

We need money for a bigger factory, for more machinery and for the establishment of vast national trade connections. Large underwriters have sought to buy up our stock—have made us tempting offers. But Mr. Farmer prefers the present method and believes the opportunity will be appreciated by the general investing public. We will offer $650,000 of our $2,000,000 capital stock for public sale. It is all common stock, fully paid and non-assessable, carrying actual ownership in the company. We have no preferred stock, no bonded indebtedness, or other obligations, except current bills and obligations for machinery ordered, but not yet delivered. And we have over $250,000 already invested in machinery and materials—ALL PAID FOR! Our subscription books will be opened Monday, Sept. 18th, and we confidently expect a prompt over-subscription of this limited amount of stock.

Any reasonable estimate of our possible future earnings would almost beggar belief, but a complete statement of our prospects, as well as all other information, will be sent all those answering this ad.

Meanwhile, you are invited to investigate us fully. Remember, we are a Chicago company, with prominent and successful Chicago business men as our officers, directors and stockholders, with our factory located right here in the city, where you can investigate just what we are doing, and may prove the accuracy of our every statement. Look up our bank references, get our financial statement, see the car, see it perform—take all possible advantage of our advance notification of the coming opportunity, and be ready to say "yes" or "no" the minute our stock subscription books are opened at 8:30 A. M., Monday, Sept. 18th.

Stock Subscription Books Will Be Opened Sept. 18th—Advance Inquiry Invited!

IN THE EVENT THIS STOCK IS OVERSUBSCRIBED, FIRST PREFERENCE WILL BE GIVEN THIS WEEK'S INQUIRERS!

Also remember that, judging by the past performance of other standard motor car stocks, we have good reason to believe our limited amount of stock will be promptly oversubscribed. That's why it is important to you that you enroll your name with us, as those who make advance inquiry will be given first opportunity to investigate and to invest—but without any obligation to do so. All applications and inquiries will be numbered and recorded in the order of their receipt.

Do You Know

That few states offer better opportunities for diversified farming, dairying, stock raising, etc., than Nebraska? Contrary to what some of the people in the Eastern States seem to think, while not all of it is tillable land, not all of the irrigated land, but a splendid combination of the three.

If you are interested in diversified farming, dairying or stock raising write to me, TODAY, for reliable information which will be sent to you free.

GUNS TO THE FRONT. In the early morning before the relentless sun is above the foothills the First Massachusetts Field Artillery rehearses the advance—the advance it would have to make should war come—on the plains near Fort Bliss, Texas.

THE STORM OF DUST—The First Massachusetts cavalry playing the game of war raises a cloudy trail while advancing into the hills near Fort Bliss, Texas.

A MUSHROOM DESERT CITY—It sprang up over night in the arid northern Chihuahua district when the American expeditionary force entered Chihuahua. The soldiers have laid out streets through which busy groups walk and motor trucks rumble, built adobe huts and arranged for a fresh water supply; in short, built a real city on wild and arid soil. The barracks are those of Battery C, Fourth Field Artillery.

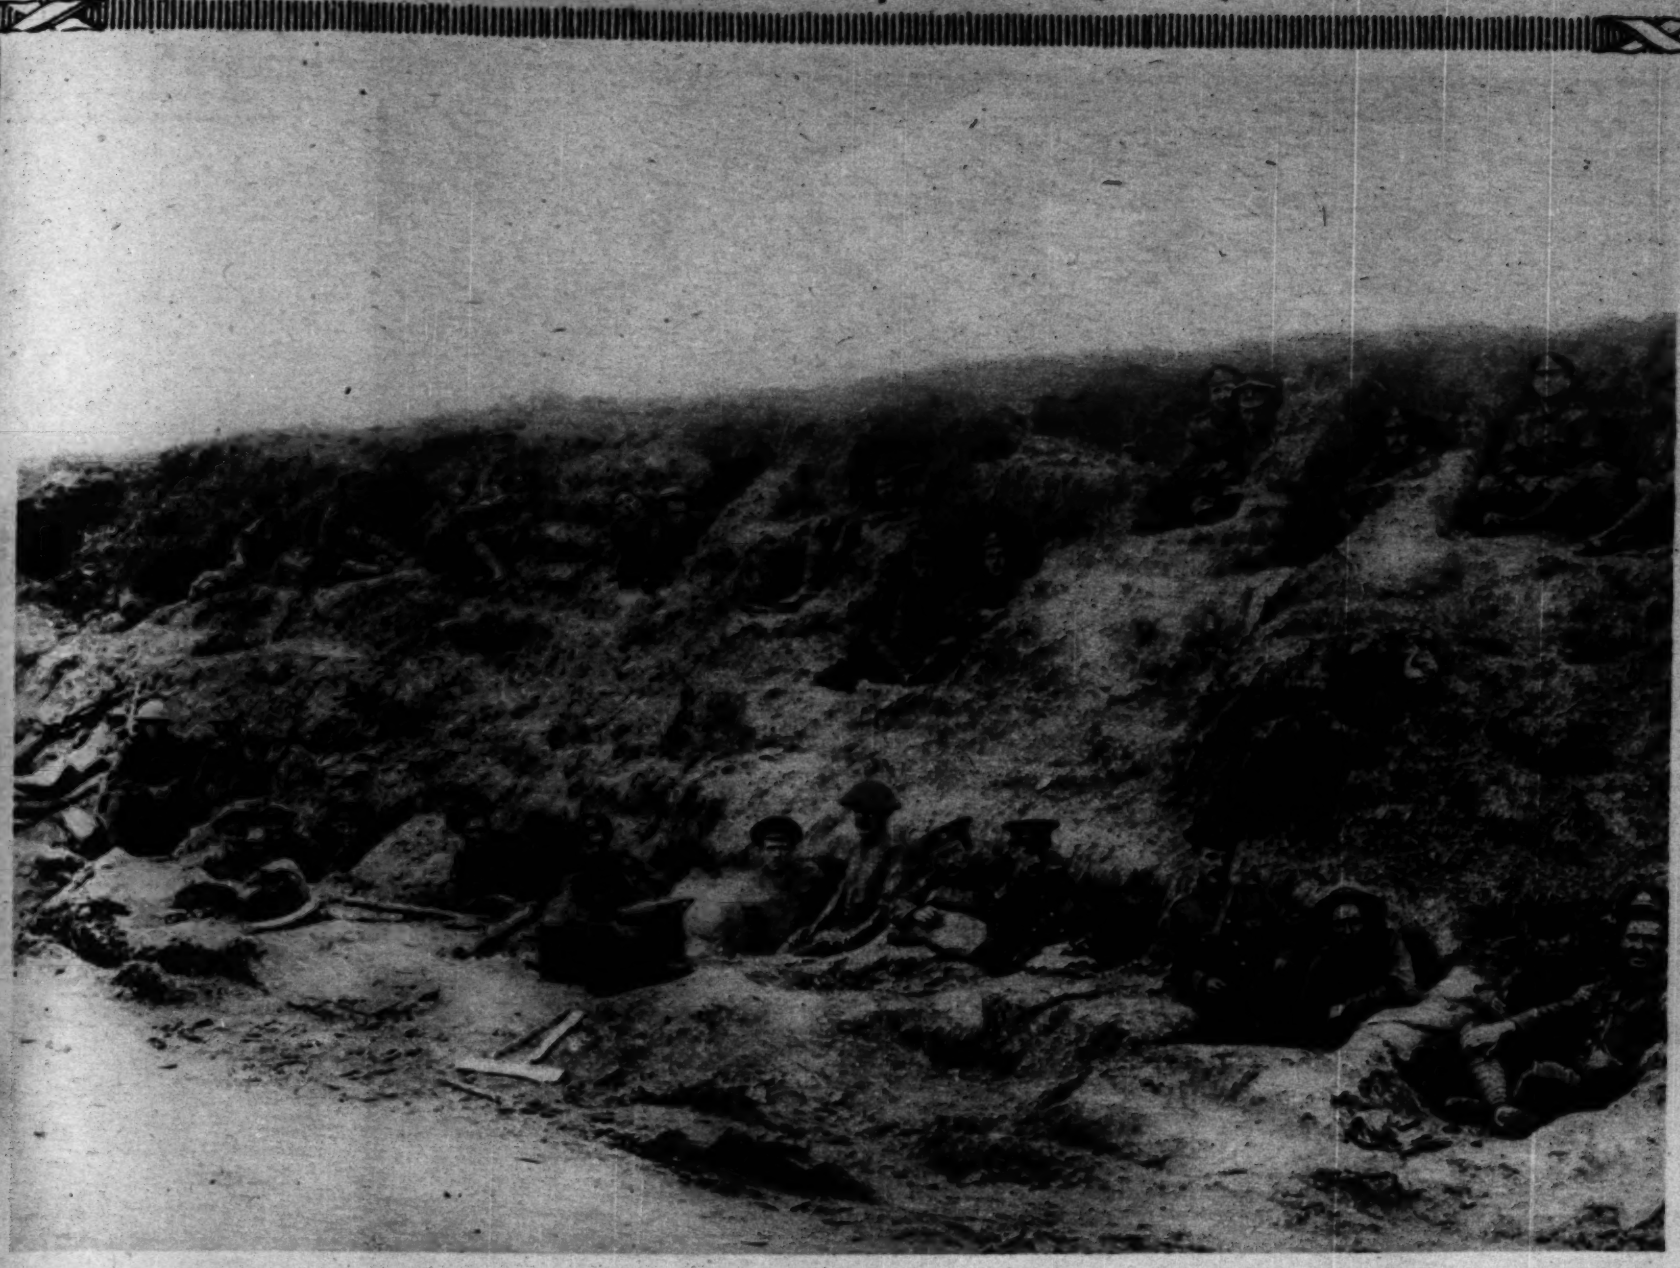
THE ARMY MULE AT BEST is none too docile a creature, and because he isn't he breaks the hot monotony of the service ritual on the border. Here two militiamen are enjoying the task of haltering one of the stubbornest of the mule kingdom.

(Photograph by Paul Thompson.)



MOLE WARFARE CLOSE UP—British soldiers in dugo uts well behind the first line trenches, set up during the recent British advance, yet nevertheless in range of bursting shells and bombs that aeroplanes may drop. These dugouts, in which soldiers spend most of their days, are so constructed as to be almost invisible to enemy air men.

PRAYERS BEHIND NINE LAYERS OF SAND—To th is improvised church in the Champagne district French soldiers come to worship. The auditorium of the church is deep under ground, and its entrance is protected by countless bags of sand.

Keep cuts and wounds from becoming dangerous

In the past thousands of people have become dangerously ill and have even died through not using an antiseptic as soon as hurt.

Don't take chances; fight disease as they do in hospitals.

As soon after the mishap as possible, cleanse the wound with a solution of one teaspoonful of Sylpho-Nathol to a quart of warm water. Then cover with a dry bandage.

This will relieve the pain, retard the flow of blood, prevent germ infection and quicken healing.

Wonderful for Burns

For burns use a teaspoonful of Sylpho-Nathol to a quart of water. Apply gauze, cotton or soft linen soaked in this solution. It relieves the terrible pain and often prevents blistering.

Hudson Maxim Replies To Edwin Markham

By Hudson Maxim

Inventor and Mechanical Engineer

THE author of The Man With the Hoe, in his recent article, The Hoe-Man and the Great War, in The National Sunday Magazine, proves himself to be a poet, but neither a good reasoner nor a very sound philosopher. Mr. Markham can write even prose so that it will sing like the lark. But being a poet, he reasons somewhat as a lark might, and while laboring under the spell of it, one is apt to feel that there is wisdom in his song.

He says, in point:

> The begilted and besworded overlords pick a quarrel with their neighbors of the same stripe and blade. Forthwith honor demands a war; and forthwith (to bamboozle the people) there goes up the cry that the nation is in danger.
> Then the drums beat, and the bugles blow, the banners wave, and the orators vociferate. The people become curiously spellbound, or else otherwise are compelled to go forth to slaughter their neighbors with whom they have no quarrel.
> The vital point in the proposition is the fact that in all wars the hoe-men have nothing to gain and everything to lose!

It is seen by this that Mr. Markham refers to the great mass of the people as hoe-men. According to him, the millions of soldiers engaged in the present titanic struggle are degraded hoe-men, who have been bamboozled into the ranks by their overlords. According to him, those who fought for American independence were hoe-men; those who fought to save the Union in the Great Civil War—our fathers and brothers—were hoe-men, stolid and stunned and brothers to the ox—monstrous things, distorted and soul-quenched.

Again to quote:

> Some months ago the organized, but poverty-stricken, workers of England saw this significant truth. They were being urged to join the army. They had been told to think of their honor, of their manhood, and especially to think of England's greatness. But the workers replied by saying that they had nothing to lose, and therefore had nothing at stake; that they were disinherited and destitute under English rule and that they could only be disinherited and destitute under any other government. And they ended by saying, "We will let those fight who have something to lose!"

The working men of England are not of the degraded, stolid, stunned and monstrous sort which has been named hoemanry. The great mass of English artisans and the great mass of English yeomanry are not hoemanry. The type of men Mr. Markham styles hoemanry would better be called hobomanry.

WHEN the great European War broke out, all the English artisan and yeomanry classes did not fully appreciate their danger, but they have since learned to appreciate it. It was not because they did not have something to lose that many of the English working men were slackers. The English working men have their families; and their wives, daughters and babies are as dear to them as to any men in the world. The English working men have learned from the fate of Belgium that an invasion of England by a foreign foe would cause them the loss of their dearest possessions—their homes and families.

It is not money alone, as Mr. Markham appears to think, that makes life worth living, for a man's home and family constitute his chief possessions; and these, when jeopardized by war, must be defended with blood and brawn. Mothers, wives, daughters and little babies are dearer than dollars.

Any man with a home will, if he be a man, fight when necessary, to defend his loved ones to the last drop of blood in his veins, and the man who would not is below the gorilla, for the gorilla guards his home. A man who will not fight for his family is below the ape; he is a reversion to some slimy monster wallowing in the ancient ooze.

Surely, the class of people to which Lincoln belonged, and to which Mr. Markham himself belongs, and to which most of the makers of America have belonged, can not be of the type arbitrarily pronounced to be stolid and stunned and brothers to the ox.

THE claim is of course false that it is always and solely the overlords who precipitate war. Not only in democracies—in countries governed by the people—are wars precipitated by the people, but also in absolute monarchies. Wars have occasionally been brought upon a people by the overlords, and there is the instance of the royal court favorite who once forced France into war in spite of the people, but in the great majority of cases it has been the people who have made war.

There has not for forty years—since the Franco-Prussian War—been a peasant in France, not even one of actual hoeman type, whose patriotism has not burned for the day when France should wrest Alsace and Lorraine from the grasp of Germany and avenge the sufferings of France in that war. If you want to get a Frenchman so mad that he will stutter, mention the big indemnity that Bismarck forced France to pay.

When the present great European conflict came, the common people of all the belligerent nations rushed eagerly into the fray. The King of Italy tried hard to keep his country out of the war, but was forced by his people to declare war.

The people of France, the people of England and her colonies, and above all, the people of United States, pride themselves on their free institutions. The American people elect their own overlords.

WHAT an indictment, then, Mr. Markham makes of American free institutions, when he states that wars are forced upon us by our overlords! Is it true, after all, that the free institutions of America, France and England are not actually free? For if the overlords are able to force us into war and to slaughter us in spite of ourselves, we are not free, but are abject bondmen, and it becomes a false claim that this is a government of the people, for the people, and by the people.

How utterly absurd is the contention that a free people, who rebelled against taxation without representation, would tamely permit themselves to be led like lambs to the slaughter in war by their overlords, without representation in the counsels of war!

Who claimed the glory for the great wars for freedom in the past? Who claimed the glory for winning the American Revolution? Who claimed the glory for freeing the slaves of the South? Was it the overlords, or the common people?

No, the American people are not so base as to try to dodge or shirk such great responsibilities on the ground that they are merely hoe men and women—that they are hoemanry or hobomanry, or what not, stolid and stunned, brothers and sisters to the ox, and with souls so quenched as to adopt the expedient of shirking responsibility by trying to throw the blame on someone else for that which they themselves are responsible.

A TEXAS MARATHON

By WILLETT STOCKARD — ILLUSTRATIONS BY E. W. KEMBLE

HE WAS an intense brunette. His name—at least by the other negroes he was called—Weary Blues. The name fitted him well. He was one of a camp of negro cotton pickers, and for about five days a week he was engaged in gathering the fleecy staple. Now, work of any kind was sufficient to make him weary, but he had discounted that fact, in a measure, for the privilege of living in a community of negroes who were making from two and a half to five dollars a day. Five dollars made a sum which most of the colored population of the vicinity spoke of and considered as nigger rich, and on Saturdays every cotton picker was rolling in wealth. The phrase is used advisedly, for finger tips still lacerated by sharp, hard points of cotton bolls were forgotten — their aching gave place to an itching of the palm to feel little spotted cubes of bone.

Side by side they covered half of the distance

An evening among negroes with from ten to twenty-five dollars each, and all ready and anxious to shoot craps, was Weary Blues' idea of heaven. For he could snap dice. He was smart, in the language of his kind; he could peek 'em.

Master of the game that he was, in the camp there were several equally good, which discovery made him blue, and there was at least one, a citified high-brown known as Dude, who was vastly better, which somewhat belated discovery made Weary most extremely blue. It was this gentleman of color with whom Weary started a game. Dude made six straight passes at fifty cents a shot before relinquishing the dice. A few moments later he repeated this unique performance. Weary would catch the bones, examine them, hand them to Dude, make him shake, rattle and roll—he took every sort of precaution, in fact—but to no avail. Dude was what is called a shark. His lightning-like fingers stole a quarter from the pile of coins in front of Weary, and while the latter was puzzling his mind over the occurrence, Dude stole a point, substituting an eight for a four, and made it. In place of winning a small fortune that Saturday night, Weary found himself without a cent.

The following week in the cotton field was a dreary stretch of time for him. It seemed that he was working for nothing—or, which was worse, for the negro, Dude, whom he had come to hate most cordially. His fingers were sore from the prickly cotton bolls. His back ached from bending. His legs were cramped from crawling down long rows, and his shoulders were sore from dragging a heavy sack. The early mornings were unpleasantly cold, the mid-afternoon sun intensely hot.

ALL this and more preyed upon his soul as he weighed in a thirty-odd pound sack of cotton and emptied it into the wagon. As he started back down the long hot cotton row he was trying to think of some way in which to avoid work, trying hard and ready to grasp at the slightest chance. The opportunity presented itself through an idle remark of Bill, the self-imposed leader of the crowd of negroes picking cotton together.

"There's a smoke pickin' over on the Cap'm Bell place braggin' 'bout what a foot racer he is," said Bill. "I wish we had some felluh here could run."

Weary Blues shifted the straps of the cotton sack from his shoulders and got to his feet.

"I'se a foot racer," he announced most impressively.

To do him justice he had no motive of ultimate pecuniary gain in this. At the time his sole thought was to avoid work.

"Uh course, I cain't be in no trainin' now, mah legs all stiff an' cramped-like from bendin' over an' pickin' this cotton," he pursued, "but jus' gimme a few days res' an' trainin', an' I sho' can beat this nigger."

This statement was purely a boast. He was no footsman—unless perhaps when he was scared. But the negro, Bill, with whom he had not been on friendly terms, astonished him by demanding suddenly:

"Say, you sho'ly ain't that nigger Weary Blues what win all them foot races down at Brennum two year ago, is you?"

Weary nodded nonchalantly.

"Why, man alive, I never thought about you bein' that gen'l'mun befo'!" gasped Bill, apparently in an ecstasy of admiration. "I'll back you fo' ev'ry cent I can get, if you'll run this coon."

"Yeh, I'll run," Weary replied in a matter-of-fact tone, hazily planning to fake an injured ankle or some such excuse after a few days of rest. "Uh course, now, 'bout mah trainin'"——

"WE'LL fix that—jus' leave it to me," interposed Bill, becoming even more carried away. "You go straight on back to camp an' res' and get yo' legs limbered up. Us felluhs that bet on you will kick in on yo' expenses an' what you would uh made if you'd kep' on workin'. We can afford to. Why, man, if you is only jus' nearly as fast as you ustuh be, you can run rings aroun' this Bell nigger—I'm tellin' you the truth. You can tell that by the way he walks—with his heels together an' one foot pointin' north an' the other un south. You never saw a right fast runner who didn't walk with his feet mighty nigh straight or else his toes sort of turned-in-like."

Weary Blues hastily shifted his feet until he stood in a pigeon-toed attitude.

Bill's enthusiasm was communicated to the others, most of whom regarded him as their leader. His belief in Weary was especially convincing from the fact that the two men previously had not been friendly. All hands expressed their eagerness to join him in placing money upon Weary in the race to be matched. All agreed to contribute toward his expenses while Weary prepared for the contest, and he was ordered back to camp.

Unexpectedly he had taken on a new and immense importance. He was quick to realize it, and betrayed his sense of it as he returned to his quarters. Also he was careful to walk with an exaggerated pigeon-toed stride.

At the noon hour Bill sent word over to the Bell plantation, and arranged a match with the foot-racer working there, a negro known as B. B. The race was to take place in town upon the following Saturday afternoon. It was then Wednesday. This allowed Weary three days in which to rest—and prepare an excuse.

But during that time he made a great appearance of ferocious training. He went about with scraps of iron attached to his legs for weights. He was up early each morning—he could afford to be, since he slept a large part of the day while his fellows were working—and could be seen on the outskirts of the camp dashing hither and yon with the utmost earnestness. He accomplished an amount of spectacular road work and attracted considerable attention.

In the meanwhile Bill, in some manner, had become possessed of a stop-watch. Thursday evening he led Weary off from the crowd for a secret test sprint. The suggestion took Weary by surprise. He had no time in which to fake an injury and little in which to invent an excuse. But he was quick-witted.

"I never run befo' a race, except on rough plowed ground an' with weights on mah legs," he informed Bill. "Then in a race on smooth ground an' without weights, why, I feels so much lighter an' faster in ev'ry way."

To his slight amazement Bill readily agreed to this. He stepped off a short hundred steps and gave the signal for Weary to start. The latter ran the distance at his best, and Bill caught the time with his stop-watch.

At the finish Bill exclaimed:

"Gosh a-mighty, white man"—Weary was about as white as a dark cat in a snowstorm—"you done that on these here grounds in ten an' fo'-fifths seconds!"

Weary assented, although privately he was aware that he had hardly made the distance within eighteen seconds. He knew that he could not run a hundred yards in ten and four-fifths seconds even if alone in a graveyard at midnight. He was puzzled by Bill's attitude, and somewhat worried, too.

But upon the next day he found something to occupy his mind to the exclusion of the race and almost everything else.

The camp of which he was a part was situated in a West Texas community. There are not many negroes living in that section, but of late the increase in cotton production has called for outside help at fall time. As a consequence, during the cotton gathering season, negro cotton pickers are shipped in by groups, car lots and even by train loads. And on the way there from the more densely colored eastern part of the state, Weary Blues had become enamored of a buxom negro girl he chanced to meet on the train.

She was a country maiden of about eighteen, from the Brazos Bottoms region, and was called Duck. In shape Miss Duck was of the clubhouse variety rather than the panatela; built more for girl, it may be said, than for style.

SHE was in love with Weary, as much so as he was with her, but this was her first trip away from home and she was homesick and wanted to return to her mother. Weary found no objection to such an arrangement—a wedding journey to the home of the bride's mother striking him as being an ideal honeymoon. But Duck had no money, and since the previous Saturday he himself had been penniless. And not only that—prospects were not bright for him. Money and victims seemed to be plentiful, it is true, but so were the sharks. As the negroes themselves phrased it:

"The big niggers is eatin' the little uns."

And to make the situation even more critical for Weary, the high-brown gentleman, Dude, also had fallen a victim to Miss Duck's charms. Dude's manifulness in the vicinity had neared its end. He had won about everything in sight during the first week or two, and the other negroes were afraid to shoot craps with him, even though he offered to roll the dice out of his hat. He had proposed more or less honorable marriage to Duck and had agreed to take her home to her mother at once.

In informing Weary of this, Duck intimated that she cared more for him than for Dude, but she hinted, too, that a ticket home weighed most powerfully on the side of the latter. Weary became a very negro, even bluer and more wearied than before. He went through his exercise sprints in a perfunctory manner.

Probably because he was too greatly worried to think of an excuse, he allowed Bill to lead him off that night for another one of their timed dashes. He sprinted the distance in about the same time as upon the evening before. Bill dutifully caught it on his watch.

"You done that in exactly seventeen an' three-fifths seconds," Bill announced at the finish, dryly and truthfully. "Back home the snails ustuh chase me down an' hem me up an' bite at me, but I can outrun you any day you ever saw."

He looked at Weary keenly, and Weary knew that his ruse was discovered.

"What's yo' game?" Bill demanded.

"What's yo' game?" countered Weary.

"Well, at first I thought maybe you could sho' 'nough run, an' then I 'lowed maybe I could hire that Bell nigger to lose to you an' win what his crowd's got, but I done such good stallin' 'bout knowin' you an' 'bout how fast you is that our camp has got together an' is goin' to make up about seventy-five bucks an' gimme to put up on you tomorrow. Now I'll make out like I put the money up, but instead of that, why, we'll jus' keep it ourselves an' you let that other smoke beat you an' we splits the seventy-five—see?"

Hope flared up in Weary's breast, and he began to plan a hasty marriage of Duck and himself immediately after the race was over.

THIS pleasant dream was interrupted, however. Something behind him, a slight sound, attracted his attention. He looked about cautiously. Several times before this he thought he had caught faint sounds of somebody who was moving about in the thicket a short way behind Bill and him. But this time he fancied he saw a figure, which somehow reminded him of Dude, draw back deeper into the darkness. He was unable to verify the truth of his suspicions, however, and upon thinking over the matter later he decided that his imagination might have been at fault.

Next morning, Saturday, Weary learned that Dude had renewed his proposal, and that Duck was almost homesick enough to accede to it. Dude had drawn his pay, announced that he had quit work and walked off in the direction of town. Yet a short time later, while doing a little easy road work, Weary saw him making toward the Bell place where the rival negro racer was employed. Even that caused him little thought at the time, but that afternoon when he saw Dude in town with Miss Duck on his arm vague suspicions once more came into his mind.

"I wishes you much luck this evenin', Mistuh Blues," said Dude.

Duck appeared slightly embarrassed, but not so her escort, who leered at Weary triumphantly. The latter fancied he noticed a sinister gleam in Dude's eye and a badly concealed significance in his smile. He wondered if Dude could be aware of the fact that the race was to be thrown.

Then his misgivings were forgotten, his mind being occupied with his part in the approaching affair, for the race had taken on an importance, greater than even those connected with it had expected. Every negro in the surrounding country was in town Saturday afternoon, and every one was interested in the contest. Spectators began to assemble an hour or two before the time set for it.

No reference was made to the money Weary's camp fellows had raised to bet on him—it was necessary to be extremely careful and secretive about this, so Bill had warned everybody—out of respect to the officers of the law; but many small private wagers were made, and there was much discussion of the merits of the rival footmen.

But for a slight nervousness, Weary would have enjoyed himself hugely, for he heard himself praised most highly by negroes who had come to accept unfounded rumor as gospel.

"Why, Weary Blues is the fastes' smoke that ever come out o' Southeast Texas, an' he's outrun ev'ry nigger he ever run agin'," Weary heard one negro say, and so in earnest was the speaker that Weary was almost ready to believe the statement himself. He thought it prudent to look up his acting manager, the negro Bill, and advise him: "Now remembuh, Bill, an' don't lose yo' haid an' put up any money on me to win."

"Don't you fret yo'se'f," said Bill, "an' listen!"

He drew Weary aside.

"Man, we is goin' to clean up big," Bill exulted in a whisper. "Instead of keepin' our money in our pockets, why, I done already got it bet, an' it's bet on B. B. So instead of us jus' gettin' away with the seventy-five what our camp raised, why, we'll get it an' seventy-five more we're goin' to win on B. B."

"How come it?" asked Weary.

"You see," Bill explained, "I jus' met a felluh lodge membuh named Mistuh Smiff who's here organizin' a chaptuh at this place. He says to me that a friend of his'n had some money he wanted to bet on you, an' I told him I knowed a friend who wanted to bet seventy-five bones on B. B. So afterwhile he says his friend, who don't want his name to be knowed, has put up the money with him, an' I puts up my seventy-five to covuh it, me bettin' on B. B., un'erstan'? An' the money's puffectly safe, because bein' a membuh of the same lodge as Mistuh Smiff, why, I knows he's honest, an' besides I'm bigger'n him an' ain't goin' to give him no chance to get out o' my sight."

Weary Blues in training for the race

He led Weary away to prepare for the race. B. B. had already appeared, clad in a baseball uniform, and was receiving the admiration of the crowd. Bill swore that his man should not be outclassed—before the start of the race anyway. Hurriedly he accumulated a nondescript affair, consisting of pajamas, jersey and tennis shoes, the whole topped by a jockey cap, which he forced on to Weary, despite the latter's protests. So it was that Weary took his place at the starting mark clad in this unique regalia.

"Bang!" sounded the starter's pistol.

The race was on. Both negroes had dashed away. They ran with their chests thrown out and their heads thrown back, and Weary had reached up and pulled off his cap, which he gripped tightly. Each man was striving his utmost, as was plainly shown by distorted features, and it seemed they were evenly matched. Side by side they covered half of the distance. Twenty yards more, and it was still anybody's race. Neither could gain and keep a yard ahead of the other.

Weary Blues had been doing his best. His burst of speed astonished him. Some twenty-five yards from the finish he thought it necessary to lag slightly, which he tried to do by breaking his stride. But no advantage was gained, for B. B. appeared to stumble about the same time. They were still abreast.

"I'm sho' that's yo' misfortune and not yo' fault," returned Weary Blues gallantly . . . and he led Miss Duck away to the train

They were now within fifteen yards of the tape. The situation had become acute. Weary could not openly slacken his pace, since such an action would be too raw. Instead, he tripped and fell.

Certain that he had succeeded in putting himself out of the race, but wishing it to appear that he was still making a game effort, he rolled over hastily and regained his feet to renew his dash for the line. To his intense amazement and disgust, B. B. stumbled again and drew up quickly, his expression registering tremendous agony. He limped a few short steps as if he had badly turned his ankle, but was intent upon trying to finish in spite of excruciating pain. Weary was, himself, making the same pretense of trying to reach the finish line—and it was a scant few yards off!

Before perceiving B. B.'s manoeuvres, he had started up from his fall at full speed, and now circumstances called for rapid thinking. A few more strides and he should be over the line, the race won, the money lost. He halted instantly, clapped his hands to his left side, screwed his features into a look of great suffering and tried to give the impression that he was affected with acute heart trouble. He staggered and collapsed—although even after that it appeared that he was still trying to drag himself to the finish.

In the meantime B. B. had sunk to one knee and was fondling his pseudo-damaged ankle. Likewise he was seemingly bent upon finishing the race, but finally toppled over at full length upon the grass. Both negroes were prone on the ground, side by side, within three steps of the finish line, both floundering about like two huge black fish and still keeping up the pretense of attempting to struggle onward.

Then finally in the mind of each of them there began to dawn a realization of the fact that the other also was trying to lose the race. Both dropped their simulated efforts, aware of the futility of them, and stared at each other in awe. B. B., who was a happy-go-lucky negro, with a keen sense of the ludicrous, started to grin broadly, but instantly thought better of it. As for Weary, his eyebrows were strained upward, and his entire countenance was expressive of awful concern. B. B. and he awaited developments, clearly puzzled as to the proper course to pursue under the circumstances, but willing and even anxious to do anything that should be considered correct.

The crowd of spectators, having become aware of the true state of affairs even before the principals, was yelling wildly, part of it good-humoredly, part in derision and part of it, composed of those who had backed the racers, in dire anger; and there was general curiosity as to which one was going to lose and how the decision was to be made.

"Bofe of 'em is tryin' to lose"—came a voice from the spectators—"so measure 'em now an' give the race to the one that's fu'theres' from the line."

THE suggestion seemed to meet with the approval of a majority. Weary, realizing that he was a trifle nearer the tape than his opponent, quickly rolled a foot or two to the rear. B. B. promptly arose and took a step backward in a tentative way. Weary arose, too, and took several steps in the same direction. Both negroes started to run, slowly at first, as if uncertain, and then more and more rapidly, until the crowd was treated to the somewhat unusual spectacle of two runners racing at full speed directly away from the goal.

They ran even faster than previously, for now they were scared. The crowd scattered in pursuit of them, maintaining a terrific yelling. Out to the edge of town ran Weary and B. B.—and then on—and most of the others, some in fun and some in all earnestness, continued in pursuit.

Even Bill, who was a considerably perturbed negro himself, not knowing what was to be the outcome, participated in the chase for some distance. Then, as it flashed into his mind that the stake money was in the hands of the lodge brother, he hurried back to town in search of that individual.

Few, besides women and children, were left there. The most prominent of the exceptions was Dude, who was talking earnestly to the damsel at his side, Miss Duck. The latter seemed half won over by his eloquence, although she still gazed sadly in the direction in which her recent lover had so impetuously disappeared. There was no trace of Mr. Smiff, however. He had not followed the crowd, and yet, had not tarried long behind. He and the stake money, some hundred and fifty dollars, had gone off together in the direction of the railroad tracks.

The last of the pursuers finally gave up, but neither B. B. nor Weary slackened his pace perceptibly. Gradually, however, the latter began to draw away from his man. In considerably less than an hour he reached a railroad siding about six miles away.

HANDING IT TO CONGRESS

What About Votes for Women?

THE gentle game of trying to make the Congressional brain look like a scrambled egg, has been at its zenith for the past nine months. The war in Europe and the near-war in Mexico are interesting affairs, and the men in the trenches have furnished romantic, colorful and snappy stories. But the war in this last session of Congress has been incessant, and the poor Congressmen on the benches of the House have been hammered well-nigh to a pulp by the energetic, enthusiastic and pugilistic American public. Voices, male and female, bass and soprano, tolerant and intolerant, have rippled and thundered through the corridors of the Capitol until every statesman has become a master of strategy, a wonder in beating a retreat and an honorary member of the famous Six Hundred in withstanding volleys, fusillades and bombardments of language, literature and lungs.

This year, more markedly than ever before, everybody wants something, and everybody has his or her particular club, speech or method for obtaining the desired results. They have all infested the National Capitol—the Special Attorney, the Washington Agent, the Publicity Representative, the Bureau of Information, the Committee of Prominent Citizens, the Philanthropist and the Patriot. And all these still direct their letters, telegrams, arguments, interviews and speeches to Representatives and Senators world without end.

Ever since this session convened, statesmen have been confronted by high silk hats and the latest thing in millinery. The aroma of good cigars in the anterooms meets on equal terms with orris root and sachet. The influential looking man who twirls his mustache as he argues, is followed closely by the beautiful woman who punctuates her remarks by capturing and putting into place her stray and elfin locks. And the patriotic male who talks learnedly about the good of the state and the welfare of the government, gives way to the irresistible female who has all the data and figures to show what should be done for the good of the home and the happiness of the children.

Come with me and behold the scene that makes the tower of Babel resemble a whispering gallery. Study the different individuals and groups who impress daily upon the legislative mind the need for this and the shame of that. And, as you come and behold, prepare your tears for shedding. The plight of the poor Congressman will move you to depths of grief unplumbed by Niobe.

Remember this from the outset: The lobbyist, as we knew him in times gone by, is as extinct as the justly celebrated dodo bird. There is no longer the mysterious looking stranger who carries railroad stocks in one pocket and the contents of a bank vault in the other—all to be lathered about the city with profusion and generosity. The distinguished gentleman who used to say, "I can have this bill passed and no questions asked if you give me twenty-five thousand dollars," is in limbo—if he ever existed.

THE limelight's the thing today. Publicity is the middle name of all those who would write their views upon the statute books, and telegrams and letters are the trusty weapons with which the protagonists wage their wars. The ideal of the supporters of every movement is to make the member of Congress feel the weight of "public opinion back home."

Committee of Prominent Citizens

But, in order to see that the pressure from back home lands in the right place, there is always the vanguard on the job in Washington. If a member of Congress wanted to get to his office in the morning without being delayed by the various vanguards, he would have to travel in an aeroplane and make a graceful landing on the nicely sodded inner court of the House office building. When it comes down to a real proposition of being on the job, the vanguards are the blue-ribbon boys — or girls, as the case may be.

Washington Agent

What do they want? Everything—total disarmament, preparedness on a gigantic scale, adequate defense, revision of the tariff, no revision of the tariff, woman suffrage, no woman suffrage, baking powder manufactured this way, baking powder manufactured another way, Federal censorship of moving pictures, no Federal censorship, national prohibition, no molestation of the liquor interests, Mexican intervention, no intervention in Mexico, and so on, and so forth, without-end, talk-your-head-off.

This has been and is the busiest Congress in many years, because everything began to pop all at once—and because this summer wise and reverent gentlemen gathered in national conventions to put forth platforms and pledges calculated to ensnare the votes of the people.

I know a member of the House who is diminutive in stature. One morning, as he sat at his desk striving to answer letters from his constituents, there appeared in the doorway several women. They entered the room, and several other women appeared in the doorway. The procession continued. On they came, the spokeswoman in front.

"We want you to vote for national woman suffrage," she said.

THE room was crowded with women. The Congressman retreated. The room became more crowded. The Congressman retreated further. At last, crouched down behind his desk, mashing his small frame into a corner, he looked up—he told me this himself—into what seemed seventeen thousand women's faces, all far above him, all demanding his vote.

He capitulated before the spokeswoman was halfway through her remarks.

The next morning he received from his district a flock of telegrams signed by anti-suffragists and saying among other things:

"Vast majority of women in your district oppose woman suffrage."—"Do not be misled by the noisy clamor of woman suffragists in Washington."—"The husbands of anti-suffragists have their say at the polls. Beware!"

Special Attorney

It is an even bet that, when the time comes for the vote on woman suffrage, the diminutive maker of laws will be an ill man.

Shortly before President Wilson made his tour of the Middle West in favor of military preparedness, a member of the House from that section had made a speech against a big army. Before the Presidential tour was over, he received this telegram from a group of his constituents:

"We don't care about your garden seeds, but we would like to see a little evidence of statesmanship. If your unpatriotic stand against preparedness continues, we shall kick you out of public life, and kick you so hard that you will never even think of trying to get back into it again."

After he had read this reassuring communication, he went wearily to a hearing given by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, at which Miss Jane Addams and other members of the Woman's Peace Party gave it, as their opinion, that preparedness was all wrong and that something must be done by this country at once to put an end to all ideas about wars in the future. He admitted later that he was somewhat puzzled as to how to vote on the subject.

The Bureau of Information

The first place a scheme or a movement hits Congress, is before the committees of the House. For instance, if a bill affecting the railroads is on the boards, the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is called to order by Chairman Adamson, who has a deep bass voice and a rough-and-ready way of getting at the facts. There and then appears the Special Attorney who, having been lifted out of the studious quiet and the upholstered chairs of his New York office, hangs on the circumambient air a moving picture of the poverty, distress and woe that would be brought upon the railroads if the pending bill were enacted. After him, comes the attorney for the shippers who draws a picture of rural tragedy that would make Edgar Allan Poe's writings sound like merry laughter.

THE Special Attorney is the wisest looking man who ever visits Washington. He represents either corporate wealth and incorporated silence or down-trodden humanity and the victims of sinister influences. He says what he wants to say, but beyond that he will not go. To the average layman he presents a front of deep reflection and a mouth full of muteness.

But, to a committee or to an individual Representative or Senator, he speaks at length and confidingly. The very wave of his hand is the last thing in persuasion. The silent trailings-off of his whispers are convincing. The manner in which he inserts his fingers between the buttons of his vest, indicates that in his heart there are such things that, if they were once revealed, would shake the earth.

Philanthropist

But the Committee of Prominent Citizens from Our Town is the aggregation that commands attention and admiration. Our Town desires a public building or an improvement for its river or harbor. Consequently, the Prominent Citizens, appareled in high hats and frock-coats, armed with an unlimited expense account and representing all the big interests of Our Town, have arrived in Washington, have taken an imposing suite of rooms in the leading hotel, have made engagements to appear before committees and to interview Congressmen individually. The Men from Our Town smoke large cigars and emanate hope and good spirits. Sometimes they spend a week, sometimes a month, within the shadow of the Capitol dome.

They do not confine their activities, however, to direct communications and conversations with the law-makers. Usually, they employ Publicity Representatives who publish or try to publish in the newspapers wonderful stories about the wealth, growth and fairy-like scenery of Our Town. If these things are printed, the papers containing them are marked heavily with blue or red pencils and rushed to the offices of the Congressmen.

Not long ago a delegation of twenty-six high hats strong arrived from a certain city and announced that in its suite of rooms there would be served a famous cocktail—just a taste, just a sip, to show what marvelous things came out of Our Town. The cocktail went over with a bang, but the bill in which the delegation was interested, never became a law.

One of the chief pursuits in Washington has been to convince Congress that it should vote for an amendment to the Constitution for nation-wide prohibition. An equally leading pursuit was the endeavor to convince it in just the opposite direction. One member of the House, who, for a long time had been on the "wet" side, went over to the "drys" when his state voted for prohibition.

Henry Blake crossed the floor; one arm flung protectingly about Louella; the other hand pointed accusingly at Moses Abbott

"LOUELLER! Lou-el-ler!"

"Yes, pa."

"Well, you might answer a body, I say!"

"I'm a-comin', pa."

"Seems t'me you take your time, an' me a settin' here waitin'." A pause. "Loueller Abbott!"

"Comin', pa." Louella dropped the twist of pink ribbon on the old-fashioned wash-hand-stand that served her for a dressing table, and hurried down the stairs. "I thought Bessie was here," she explained breathlessly.

"Well, she ain't. Where you bin, anyhow? I called you a dozen times, if I called you onct."

"I'm sorry, pa. I was just tidyin' myself up a bit. Did you want somethin'?"

"What'd you s'pose I was yellin' myself hoarse, fer? My pillows is all got in a heap. Fix'em, can't you?" Moses Abbott's voice was querulous; his watery blue eyes stared at his daughter accusingly. He hitched a little forward in his chair, groaning.

In curious contradiction to his short, fat little body, his face was long and thin. His cheeks were covered with a bushy stubble of gray whiskers, out of which his sharp nose started at an abrupt angle, giving him the appearance of being suspiciously alert. His chin was pointed and so was his reddish beard.

"An' my baccy's over onto the mantelpiece," he grumbled. "Nobuddy cares what happens to me."

"Now jest you wait a second, pa, I'll get it," Louella promised cheerfully. She patted and plumped out the calico covered cushions in the chair, brought her father's pipe, found and struck a match and when his tobacco was well alight, turned toward the door again.

"Where you goin'?" Abbott demanded, between deep puffs. "What's all the hurry about, eh?"

A shade of color crept into Louella's pale cheeks.

"I—I was jest goin' to finish dressin', pa. I——"

"C'm here."

"Pa, I got to hurry. I——"

"C'm here, I say!"

Slowly Louella approached his chair.

"I want to know what's all this fussin' an' fixin' up fer," he announced. "I want ter know why you're wearin' your best clo'es of a Tuesday night." He poked the stem of his pipe at Louella's stiffly-starched muslin sleeve, peering up at her disagreeably. "What's goin' on unusual, that's what I want ter know?"

"Nothin', pa."

"Don't you lie ter me! There is somethin'. It's that Blake feller comin', that's what it is. Well, he kin jest take hisself home ag'in, an' stay there, an' you tell him I said so. It ain't goin' ter do him no good ter hang around here. You hear me? Now I'll have some tea." He settled himself back in his chair, with the air of one who had issued an ultimatum about which there could be no possible argument.

Without a word, Louella crossed the kitchen, and pulled the shining copper kettle over onto the middle of the big stove. Then she walked out of the door and up the stairs, unheeding her father's commands to return. It was the first time in her life that she had deliberately defied him; and the action filled her with a sort of panic. When she stood before the cracked mirror over the wash-hand-stand and tried to fasten the pink bow on the front of her dress, her fingers were shaking so that she could scarcely hold the pins. She knew that she ought to have become used to her father's uncompromising hostility toward Henry Blake; and on this occasion, she had steeled herself to meet it; but she was frightened at her own temerity.

In a flutter of tremulous expectation, she loosened her hair a little about her thin temples, bending forward so that she could see the effect by the light of the tallow dip burning in the candle-stick. She rather hoped that the wispy brown locks made her careworn face appear younger. It never occurred to her to use a curling-iron or pins; if the Lord had meant her to have curly hair like Bessie's, He would have given it to her in the first place.

From a drawer in the wash-hand-stand she took out a shell-ornamented box; in it was a small cameo ring that had been her grandmother's. But her knuckles, swollen from constant drudgery about the house and farm, had become large and inflamed; the ring would not go on. With a little sigh, she put it back in the box. Never mind; probably Henry would not notice. Only—she would have liked to look nice to him tonight.

It was nearly three months since she had seen him; and the last time had been one of Moses Abbott's "bad" days; she hadn't even had a minute to change her gingham dress. She hoped Henry would like this one; maybe he would remember she had worn it when they went to the barn dance together the year of the freshet. The pink bow—laboriously contrived from one of Bessie's cast-off hair ribbons—gave it a touch of newness. To be sure, it was in the style of five years before; but Henry would not mind that. He wasn't much for style, Henry wasn't.

LISTEN! Was that his step on the path? She pushed aside the curtain and looked out. It was only her sister, Bessie, coming along between the straggling rows of four o'clocks, with young Bob Phillips. Bessie was nineteen, now; she had graduated from school and was home to stay.

Bessie was a good cook, a good housekeeper—Louella had seen to that. She could do the work of the house easily, and, maybe by getting somebody to work the land on shares, could manage very well. She'd have to. Henry was tired of waiting—and no wonder. Fourteen years is a long time for a man to be faithful to one woman. . . . . .

Fourteen years! It was just that to a day since Henry Blake had asked Louella Abbott to marry him. Louella had been twenty-three then; rather attractive, in spite of her large red hands and awkward feet; fresh-colored, and girlishly slim. Now she was merely thin; her pretty color had faded and her hands seemed larger and redder than ever. But Henry's devotion had not wavered.

Four times a year he had made the thirty-mile trip to the Abbott farm; four times a year he asked Louella to drive back with him, as his wife. And Louella's answer had always been the same. There was Bessie. The child must have a good education; it wouldn't do to have her grow up ignorant and untrained. She was a winsome little thing, was Bessie, with her pretty, wilful ways. She must learn a great deal, and she must have a little fun, too. Louella's own stark childhood must not be repeated in Bessie's.

And there was Moses Abbott, crippled with rheumatism, to be waited on and taken care of. He needed lots of attention, and he liked Louella's cooking. If she married, who would look after him? Louella saw her duty plainly before her. Four times a year she had sent Henry Blake away, and gone on with the dreary treadmill of life about the worthless little farm—milking the cows, making cheese and butter, ploughing, planting, reaping, harvesting—sometimes with the help of an extra hand, more often without it; while Bessie danced through a happy girlhood, care-free and careless, and Moses Abbott sat, year after year, in his cushioned easy-chair in the snug kitchen and ate and smoked and complained.

Every clear day at two o'clock, pipe in mouth, he would put on his hat and hobble down to Low's grocery, there to settle the fate of nations in company with a half dozen cronies and kindred spirits. Sometimes in the heat of discussion, he would forget his rheumatism, and rant up and down the sawdust-sprinkled floor, gesticulating nobly. But at home he always remembered that he was an old man and a helpless cripple, with an able-bodied daughter to wait on him.

"When Bessie comes home from school," had been Louella's promise to Henry Blake and to herself all through the years; and now Henry was coming to claim its fulfilment. Bessie had had her education and her good times, her leisure and her gay hair ribbons. Now it was her turn to cook and bake, milk and churn. So said, Henry, and Louella acknowledged that he was right.

In Louella's little Bible, between the pages next a lock of her mother's hair and a bleached spray of valley-lilies, was a letter, short and ill-spelled, the only letter she had ever received from Henry or anybody else.

"I'll be over Tuesday night a week," (it said), "and we'll get things fixed, Loueller. I ain't gettin' any younger, and I guess this'll be the las' time. Bessie's home, now, and you can take me or leave me. Y'rs,

"Henry."

Louella's mind was made up. She was going to take him. Maybe it would be hard on Bessie, just at first; but something inside of Louella clamored for life—the life and love that she had denied herself. Henry and she had waited fourteen years; surely that was long enough.

"Louella!" It was Bessie's voice. "Come down, will you? Here's Henry Blake."

Louella could hear Henry out at the barn, sliding back the big doors so that he could put his horse and buggy inside. It was too dark to see him. Her heart was thumping against her thin ribs as she put out the candle and felt her way downstairs.

Bessie was waiting in the dusky hall—a pretty, fluffy-haired girl, with large blue eyes and a voice inherited from Moses Abbott.

"You'll have to take Henry out on the porch, Louella," she said. "Bert Phillips is in the sitting-room."

"All right, honey." Louella patted her cheeks.

Bessie drew back a little from the caress.

"Your hands are so rough, Louella," she said. "I don't see why you don't take better care of 'em. Last Sunday when Bert was in to tea, I was almost ashamed to have him look at 'em."

"I know," Louella said humbly. "I expect I'm careless like. I'm sorry. Pa want anything?"

Bessie shrugged.

"I guess he'll make out a while. But if he wants anything, you go, will you?"

"Well, honey, would you jest as lief? Henry——"

"Oh—Henry!" sniffed Bessie. "He won't care. I—I'm busy." She went into the sitting-room closing the door behind her. (Continued on page 810)

AN army of nurses, in their daily work in the home, carrying out the instructions of thousands of surgeons and physicians throughout the civilized world, are teaching millions of mothers how to prevent germ infection in minor hurts or serious accidents.

They are carrying into the home the knowledge that the greatest danger in cuts, burns, sores and wounds comes from contamination with germ-infected substances. These are not always visible but are always present on the skin even after careful washing in the ordinary way. Pain, inflammation, fever, erysipelas, blood-poisoning, gangrene, and a train of grave complications are likely to follow any injury in which the skin is broken, no matter how slightly, unless the millions of germs which instantly rush into every cut are killed with antiseptics and the others are kept out by aseptic dressings which give the cut a chance to heal naturally.

For thirty years Johnson & Johnson have been working hand-in-hand with this army of nurses supplying them with the means to destroy and prevent germ infection. Wherever civilization has found an entering wedge on this globe of ours, and a nurse has labored, there the name of Johnson & Johnson and the Red Cross Label are favorably known.

To the nurse and the doctor, and now to the mother, the name of Johnson & Johnson and the Red Cross Label are symbols of quality, warrantees of purity, double assurances that the surgical dressings are produced under perfect aseptic conditions. They bespeak a confidence that has stood unshaken through the rigid test of many years.

To the mother, so interested in the relief of pain and suffering and the safeguarding of the precious lives of her loved ones, the name of Johnson & Johnson and the Red Cross Label upon any product mean that it is the best in its line that money can buy—the kind that her nurse uses, the kind that her doctor uses, the kind that the hospital uses—in fact, the kind recognized as Standard by the authorities of every country.

Johnson & Johnson have revolutionized and standardized the manufacture of germ-destroying antiseptics and germ-free surgical dressings. They have made it possible for every home to practice for its own benefit the wonderful lessons which the nurses and doctors are teaching.

Red Cross Absorbent Cotton is made of the best raw cotton, washed with filtered and purified water, in a mill where the operatives surround themselves with the same hygienic precautions that a hospital nurse would exercise. It is so packed in blue cartons, varying in size from half an ounce to one pound, that every fibre of cotton, whether in or out of the carton, is protected from infection until the last particle is used. It is sterilized before leaving the laboratories. It is always ready for use in the sick room and for a-thousand-and-one household needs.

The same thoroughness is observed in the preparation of all of the several hundred Johnson & Johnson Red Cross products.

Nothing illustrates the trustworthiness and high standing of druggists in general so much as their universal recommendation and unstinted endorsement of Johnson & Johnson Red Cross products. Your druggist can supply you with any quantity—a few cents worth or enough to equip a hospital or supply a factory. We commend the druggists to your loyal patronage because a good drug store is worthy of your support. It is a protection and a convenience to its neighborhood. Pharmacy is a Profession as well as a business and merits encouragement in its high ideals.

"Nature made everything but the wrapper"

(This phrase won the $500 Second Prize for best 7th Point Suggestions.)

When you lift a stick of Sterling Gum you taste first of all the flavor—cool, lasting peppermint or piquant, spicy cinnamon. They are the natural saps of Peppermint Plant and Cinnamon Cassia bush.

You taste next a combination of Nature's two best sweeteners. One is the sap of the Sugar Cane. The other is the syrup of Indian Corn.

You notice velvety body—no grit. That is the sweet, natural sap of tropical Sapota trees, repeatedly refined to remove the last trace of grit.

But you taste more! What?

It is the subtle taste of complete cleanliness. Clean maple tables. Clean machinery. Sparkling windows. Clean white uniforms. Snow-white gloves on all hands that come anywhere near your Sterling Gum.

Seven points of superiority make Sterling a better Chewing Gum

Point 1—Crowded with flavor
Point 2—Velvety body—NO GRIT
Point 3—Crumble-proof
Point 4—Sterling purity
Point 5—From a daylight factory
Point 6—Untouched by hands
Point ⑦ What?

A Tardy Rebellion

Henry Blake's step sounded on the porch. He was a big, heavy man, slow of movement and of speech, with a good deal of black hair and brown eyes that softened wonderfully when he saw Louella.

"Well, girl!" he greeted her. "So Bessie's home!"

Louella nodded, looking up at him shyly, wistfully. She had never ceased to wonder that he should want her.

He drew her to the low step and sat down beside her. He did not kiss her; he was not a demonstrative man.

"The house is all ready an' waitin', Loueller," he said. "I've got the license in my pocket. To-morrer mornin', you're agreeable, we'll drive over to the parson's. Broke it to the old man yet?"

Louella shook her head.

"Not yet. He—he ain't been so easy to get along with lately. I—I thought mebbe——"

"I better tell him myself now, what?" He made as if to rise, but Louella laid a detaining hand on his arm.

"No, no, Henry! You let me. I'd ruther. He might say somethin'——"

He interrupted her.

"Look a-here, Loueller, you ain't goin' to put me off ag'in? You promised 'twould be when Bessie come home. I'm forty-three years old, an' I want a wife. It's time I settled down. I ain't never looked at no one but you—you know that. But—there's Jess Adams. She'd have me, I guess, an'—an'—well, you ain't goin' to put me off, are you?"

Jess Adams. Louella knew her—a handsome, capable woman, whose well-run farm adjoined the Blake place. Yes; she'd have Henry; she'd have had him any time in the last dozen years if he'd ask her. But—Bessie was home now. Louella put out a timid hand, and Blake covered it with his own.

"Suit you to drive over to the parson's early, Loueller?" He put a clumsily tender arm about her waist. "We'll have dinner at the Kinsey House, an' git home 'long about supper time. We'll have Carry Mintern in to help you out fer a spell, so's you can rest up. You do look a bit tuckered out. Suit you, Loueller?"

Louella's plain face was flushed a soft rose; her wistful eyes were starry. Under the stiffly-starched muslin of her blouse her heart was beating tumultuously. She opened her lips to speak.

"Loueller!"

She hesitated.

"Lou-el-ler!"

"It's pa callin'," she said.

"Well, let him wait a minute. Suit you, Loueller, girl?"

"LOUELLA Abbott!"

The sitting-room door was flung open, and Bessie's voice shrilled out pettishly.

"Louella! Don't you hear pa calling you? Where are you? Louella!"

Louella got to her feet.

"I'll have to go, Henry, dear," she said softly. "I'll be right back."

In the hall, Bessie made a little rush forward and grasped her arm.

"Louella!" she whispered excitedly. "Listen! Bert's got a job in the city and he wants me to marry him right away! Isn't that splendid? Oh, I'm so happy! No more digging on this old farm for me! I'm going to live in a swell flat and never even see a cow!" She executed a gleeful little pirouette, waving her arms gracefully above her head.

"Why don't you say something?" she demanded, as Louella did not speak. "Why don't you say you're glad? Or aren't you? Are you going to grudge me my chance, just because nobody ever wanted to take you to the city?"

"Louella! You Lou-el-ler!"—from the kitchen.

"Are you?" Bessie was distinctly aggrieved. "You always were selfish, Louella, but I didn't think——"

Louella roused herself.

"Of course I'm glad, honey," she said mechanically. "Bert's a nice feller. Yes pa, I'm comin'."

Moses Abbott, his stockinged feet resting on a pillow, sat by the stove.

"I want you should get me my tea, Loueller," he said peevishly. "I've called an' called you, 'til I'm all wore out. Nobuddy cares whether I get any tea or not, an' the kittle bilin' this half hour. Who's that on the porch with you?"

"Henry Blake," said Louella.

Her father snorted.

"Huh! That calf! You a settin' out there with Henry Blake, while I'm a-wantin' my tea! But that's all you care fer your poor ole crippled pa! You'd be glad if I was outer the way, so's you could set around all the time an' moon!" He reached out a pudgy hand and tweaked the pink bow at her throat.

"Finery!" he grunted. "All fussed up in your best clo'es—an' me sufferin' fer my tea! A nice kind o' daughter I got! But nobuddy cares what becomes of a poor ole man what ain't able to do fer hisself! I wisht I was dead, an' then I wouldn't be in nobuddy's way."

"Oh, don't pa!" begged Louella. "I'm sorry I forgot your tea. I——"

"No, you ain't!" he contradicted her fiercely. "You'd see me set here with my tongue hangin' out fer want o' a dish o' tea, an' never move! You'd ruther lullygag with Henry Blake, you would! Henry Blake!" He waggled his beard at her. "Did you tell him I said he was to go home an' stay there, eh? I won't have him hangin' 'round here—I won't! Now you git me that tea!"

In silence, Louella poured out the tea; in silence she handed her father the brimming cup. And then, still without a word, she left him there, glaring at her triumphantly, and went back to the front porch.

Blake turned as she came out.

"Well?" he said. "Suit you, Loueller?"

She did not sit down, and he rose and faced her.

"Well?" he repeated.

Slowly, very slowly, she shook her head.

"I—can't, Henry," she said, very low.

He stepped back, a puzzled look overspreading his honest face.

"You—can't? You ain't goin' back with me?"

"No. I can't, Henry." Her voice sounded very tired. "There's pa, Henry."

"But—Bessie's come home."

"Bessie's goin' to marry Bert Phillips right away."

IT seemed to take him a perceptible time to sense the significance of this. Finally:

"An' that means you can't marry me?" he said.

She nodded.

"Think, Loueller," he urged. "I've waited fourteen year fer you. I'm a plain man, but I love you an' I'll be good to you. I—I need you, Loueller. Ain't you give up enough fer Bessie? Ain't it about time she thought somethin' fer you? First she was too little to be left alone; then she had to git an edjication. Now she's old enough, an' she ought to take some care off'n you. She ain't the only one you got to think of. What about me?"

Louella looked at him.

"There's pa, Henry," she said again.

He went closer to her and took hold of her arm.

"Loueller Abbott, you've waited on that man hand an' foot ever since I can remember," he said. "He ain't no more a cripple than I be. He's jest plumb lazy. I'll take you to the parson to-morrer mornin' and take care o' you the rest o' your life, you say the word. Don't send me away ag'in, Loueller. I—I'm lonesome. I want a real home an' a real woman in it. You ain't goin' to send me back alone?"

Louella was trembling. She twisted a plait of her skirt between her roughened fingers.

"Henry," she faltered, "I—I—" She could not go on.

"Then," he said slowly, "you mean I should ask Jess Adams? You know that's what it means—I told you, Loueller."

She nodded.

"Yes, Henry"—unsteadily. "I know."

"Well?" He released her arm and stood away from her. "Well, Loueller?"

She held out her hand; he did not seem to see it.

"Good-night, Henry."

"Good-bye, Loueller."

She bowed her head. He turned and stepped off the porch.

"I'll go get Nancy," he said, over his shoulder. "I'll take her over to Kinsey's, I guess."

"Yes," was all Louella could say. Her eyes filled suddenly with stinging tears. She tried to see his tall figure, as it slouched around the corner of the house, but her sight was blurred and misty. A choking sob caught at her throat.

"Lou-el-ler Abbott!" The sharp impatience in her father's voice told her that he must have called her several times. She went to the edge of the porch and listened; but she could no longer hear Blake's retreating footsteps.

"Louellerl I want you should come here!"

"Comin', pa." With dragging feet, she turned and went into the house.

Bessie was in the kitchen; she looked up as Louella entered.

"I should think you'd come when pa calls, Louella!" She dragged the teakettle toward her and snapped open the cover of the tea-caddy viciously. "You know Bert's here, and we're talking! You're the most selfish person! You might have a little consideration!"

"My pipe's out," Moses Abbott complained. "Git me a match, Loueller. Where are they? Why don't you pay some 'tention to me, eh?"

The matches were within a foot of his chair; by stretching out his hand, he could have reached them. He glowered at Louella, as she came forward.

"Sulkin'," he remarked. "Sulkin' cause you're axed to do a leetle favor for your poor ole pa! I'd be ashamed!"

"I ain't sulkin', pa," Louella said listlessly.

"Don't tell me! I know! Now you help me off with them boots. I could set here 'til my feet was achin' off'n me, an' you wouldn't care." He thrust out a large foot. "Pull 'em off easy. Huh! Sulkin'!"

Louella bent over; her hand was outstretched.

"LOUELLER!"

She started upright.

"Loueller Abbott! Don't you dare touch that boot!" In two strides, Henry Blake crossed the floor from the door; one arm he flung protectingly about Louella's shoulders; the other hand pointed accusingly at Moses Abbott.

"You lazy, shirkin' old scoundrel!" said Henry Blake, "for two cents, I'd take off that boot myself an' whale you with it! That's what you need—a good, sound hidin', an' you was twenty year younger, I'd see you got it! Settin' there like you was the Queen of Sheby, an' growlin' 'cause things ain't done prompt to suit you! Well, you've growled your last growl at Loueller! Put that in your pipe an' smoke it—darn yer!"

The little eyes of Moses Abbott opened to their widest extent; his jaw dropped. The attack, coming as it had from an undreamed of quarter, seemed to have bereft him of the power of speech. His pipe slipped from his relaxed fingers and clattered noisily on the floor.

At the sound, Bessie found her tongue.

"What do you mean, Henry Blake?" she shrilled. "I'd like to know who you think you are——"

He turned on her.

"I think I'm somethin' more of a man than that there!" he told her. "An' I mean just what I say—he's yelled at my Loueller fer th' last time! Of all the mean, skulkin' ole devils that ever drawed the breath o' life, he's the meanest an' triflin'est!"

Bessie gasped. This was lese majesté!

"You just clear out of here!" she ordered sharply. "You've got no call to come interfering with things that don't concern you! If I was pa, I'd——"

"If you was your pa, you'd do jest like he's done—loafed an' lolled an' put on Loueller!" Blake interrupted her. "You're jest as bad as he is—every bit! You left Loueller here to do all the work, whiles you went to school an' flanted 'round an' had a good time! Now you think you're goin' to git married an' leave her here to keep on workin'! Well, you aint! You kin git married termorrer or stay single, fer all we care. Loueller's goin' with me! All her life she's bin a slave an' a drudge fer you two; she's give up an' give up an' give up—an' she's made me give up, too. An' I'm through!"

Still holding Louella's arm, he marched across the kitchen and seized a hat that hung on a nail by the door. It was Bessie's Sunday hat, a wonderful creation of flowers and straw in which she took the greatest pride. Louella had never possessed one to equal it. There was a shawl hanging beside it; Henry yanked it down and wrapped it about Louella's shoulders. Then he drew her, too dazed to resist, to the door.

"Where — wh — where you goin'?" Moses Abbott asked feebly.

"To the parson," returned Henry; and opened the door.

"You can't!" cried Bessie. "You can't take Louella off this way!"

"Can't I?" The door closed.

IN the road at the end of the gravel path, old Nancy, hitched to the newly painted buggy, stood switching her tail and drowsing in the warm summer air. She turned a mildly surprised gaze on her master, as he came down the path, leading the bewildered Louella.

"Git in, Loueller girl."

Louella, one hand clutching the shawl, the other dangling Bessie's Sunday hat, put an obedient foot on the buggy step.

"But, Henry—" she protested faintly.

"Git in"—grimly. He tucked the light robe about her and clambered in by her side. Nancy began to move.

"Hey! Hey, you! Come back here!"

On the porch, his fat little figure silhouetted against the lighted hall, Moses Abbott, rheumatic cripple, was dancing up and down like a dervish. "Come back here, I say!"

Henry's answer was a chirrup to Nancy.

"Oh, Henry!" said Louella. "Oh, Henry!"

"Git up, Nancy," said Henry. The mare broke into a jerky trot, and the buggy lurched along the uneven road. "Guess we'll find the parson up," Henry remarked. "If he ain't, 'twon't take him long."

"Oh, Henry!" whispered Louella. "Whatever are we doin'?"

"What we'd oughter done long ago. My fault. I let you do all the decidin', 'stead o' doin' it myself." All at once, his voice became very gentle. "Loueller girl," he said, "I thought 'twas you didn't want me. I thought 'twas you jest didn't care enough. An' then, when I was goin', I heard you cryin'. I stopped an' thought a bit. Then I went back, an' I heard the way they spoke to you. Seemed to me it was time I took a hand. So I did. Suit you, Loueller?"

"But whatever'll they do, Henry?"

"Work," said Henry Blake. "Work, fer a change. Do 'em good. Git up, Nancy."

A Texas Marathon

train drew in about the same time and stopped. Weary, who fortunately had some few belongings in his running clothes—three pair of dice, one of which was straight, and a dollar and fifty cents—sought a brakeman and arranged for transportation.

"Crawl in that empty there," the brakeman told him, pocketing fifty cents. "I put another dinge in there at the last stop."

Once in the car and the train in motion, Weary felt secure—but that was about all. He had practically no money. He had no clothes except the bizarre outfit he had on, and he was almost certain to be arrested if he attempted to appear in a town in them. His girl had been left behind in the company of a hated rival, and he himself had been made an object of contempt.

He was thinking mournfully of recent events, when the other inmate of the car crawled forth from a dark corner. He proved to be the dapper lodge organizer and holder of the stake money, Bill's friend, Mr. Smiff. The two squatted on the floor of the car and exchanged commonplaces. Weary pulled a pair of dice from his pocket and began to roll them idly, in the meantime humming a little song with elaborate disinterestedness:

"I wents down to the deep-o,
Sets muh suitcase down."

He continued to warble, half to himself, as he threw a seven, an eleven and a crap, an ace-deuce.

"Let me see them little boneses," requested the lodge organizer.

Weary gave them up, and Mr. Smiff eyed them closely, set them and gingerly rolled a seven.

"Like to snap a little dice?" inquired Weary with sweet innocence.

"I never shoots craps, except jus' now an' then to pass away the time," responded Mr. Smiff.

"Well, we's got quite a lot of it to pass," Weary reminded him.

In the pale light streaming through the car door, they began a crap game. It was dark enough for Weary to switch in a pair of "tops" occasionally, not to mention a line of crooked work that was well nigh continuous. At the end of three hours, Mr. Smiff announced:

"That's the last of mah hundred an' fifty-fo' dollars an' mah watch. What'll you gimme fo' mah hat?"

WHEN the freight train went into a siding to let the east-bound passenger go around it, Weary had won all of the other's clothing as well as his money, and Mr. Smiff was offering to shoot the manual of secret work of his order against half a dollar.

The freight finally drew up at Temple, the division point. The two negroes crawled from the car. Mr. Smiff, who was garbed in Weary's running attire, even to the jockey cap, sneaked off to find some lodge brother and give the sign of distress. Weary, now clad in the clothes recently belonging to the other, strolled off to the passenger station.

He paused just without the door of the waiting room for colored folks. Within, seated near a window so that he was able to overhear and see them, were Dude and Miss Duck. It was plain they had arrived on the passenger train that had passed the freight upon which he had been a traveler. They were doubtless on their way to the home of Duck's mother. Weary surveyed them for a moment and heard his name mentioned.

"Po' Mistuh Blues!" exclaimed Duck sympathetically.

"Po' Mistuh Blues!" exclaimed Dude, but in an altogether different tone.

He laughed aloud at mention of the name, and his manner gave the impression that he had been laughing considerably since afternoon.

"That fool nigger!" he gasped at length. "He never had no chance to win, or lose ruther, from the start. I overhear him an' Bill framin' up to throw the race, an' then I goes over to see that B. B. nigger an' his manager an' gets them in the notion of bettin' their money on Weary an' throwin' the race theirselves. The only thing I hated was I couldn't figure out no way to bet on the thing muhself. But I got muh money's worth jus' seein' the race—both them fool niggers stallin' to keep from winnin' an' lookin' so dawg-gawn fool-like when they begin to get wise to theirselves"——

He was convulsed—speechless—with merriment. But Miss Duck did not participate in the hilarity. She had a sad, pre-occupied air. Finally she spoke.

"As soon as we get home to ma's, Mistah Dude, Ah'll pay you back yo' money fo' muh ticket, an' le's call it off."

"No, you won't," he interposed masterfully. "An' fu'thermo' you is goin' to marry me right here jus' as soon as it gets daylight, instead of me waitin' till you get home among yo' frien's an' back out on me there. I got frien's here in Temple, an' if you starts anything like that on me here I can have you pinched."

This threat terrified Duck, who was young, comparatively inexperienced and had never been in jail. Her expression became even more woebegone. Her eyes grew moist. There was a pathetic break in her voice when she essayed to speak.

"Please, suh, le's call it off, an' Ah'll pay you back fo' muh ticket an' fo' anything else you wants me to, honest, suh, Ah will," she said earnestly.

But Dude was obdurate, and shook his head in a manner that left no doubt of it. Duck looked about in dumb suffering, realizing the futility of further resistance. She did not want to marry Dude and she was frightened and very sad. She sniffed softly, gulping down a sob, and tears rolled down her cheek.

"Cut out that sniffin' an' a-bawlin'

Handing It to Congress

hibition," he confided to me one day "I never had an enemy in my life. Now they are lighting fires under me."

That same day another Representative told me:

"I came out for the 'wets,' and, when I did it, they told me the 'dry' people had no strength in my city. That bundle of five hundred letters and that other bundle of two hundred telegrams are all from 'dry' people. That's what you get in politics."

This year women have forged to the front and taken a big hand in scrambling Congressional brains. This is because there are in the public eye more matters in which women have become deeply interested than ever before. The suffrage, the Red Cross, child labor, wages for woman and pure food matters have kept women in the Capitol practically all of this session.

If you think a man is persistent before Congress, all you have to do, in order to get a real example of persistency, is to watch a woman perform. She goes to work at nine o'clock in the morning and quits at anywhere from nine to eleven at night. She walks more miles, talks more miles and writes more miles than any man who ever got on the job. She never believes that a man means "no" when he says it. And, frequently, after awhile, the man doesn't believe it either. The only time a woman ever took the first "no" as final was when a suffragist went to see an old Southerner to ask him to vote for the suffrage amendment in the House.

The old man took down from his desk a photograph of a mother and her twelve daughters.

"That is my wife," he said with a deep bow, "and those are my twelve daughters. If my wife hasn't had enough to do bringing up that family, I'll be for suffrage and give her more work."

His visitor went down the corridor murmuring:

"What an impossible old man!"

ONE of the bugbears of Congressmen is the Bureau of Information. The average Bureau of Information is always going somewhere in a hurried manner and is continually asking everybody it meets, "What do you know?" It is paid by some out-of-town person or corporation who wishes to know exactly what is going on all the time. It dashes into the office of a committee chairman or calls out members from the floor of the House and asks unlimited questions. It then telegraphs to its employer much information, some of which is right and most of which is wrong.

The next morning, to make sure that it is right in the main, it visits the Capitol and reassures itself by asking the same questions of the same Congressmen. Naturally, this incessant procedure bores any Congressman to extinction.

The Patriot has been an outstanding figure in Washington of late. Romeo in his most fervid moments never addressed to Juliet on the brightest moonlit night the perorations that the Patriot hands out day by day to his flag and his native land. The Patriots are divided, roughly speaking, into two classes: those who want big military appropriations and those who want small military appropriations. Leagues of defense, peace, protection, arbitration and security have sprung up throughout the land, and the House and Senate committees on military and naval affairs have had daily hearings for months to determine what should be done. One officer of the navy was kept on the stand for fourteen consecutive days by the House Committee on Naval Affairs. When he got through, he complained that his head was tired. The representatives of the leagues and councils, however, weary neither in the tongue nor in the brain.

One of the most persistent workers in trying to influence Congress is what might be broadly called the Philanthropist. He always has ready access to the columns of the newspapers, and he generally shows up, backed by a list of prominent names. One of his favorite remarks is:

"I know Senator So-and-So's wife. She is greatly interested in our good work. I can count his vote as on our side at once. I will get her to make him vote our way. I shall see her this afternoon."

Nine times out of ten this is all wrong. The game of trying to influence a Senator or Representative through his wife was worn out in Washington several decades ago. And those who follow it are as much mistaken as the people who write to Mrs. Wilson asking her to "make the President" pardon criminals from the penitentiaries. As a matter of fact, all these letters are opened by Mrs. Wilson's secretary and forwarded to the Department of Justice without comment, the idea being that the Department of Justice is more cognizant than Mrs. Wilson with penitentiary affairs.

The scramblers are a god-send to the printing business. The leaflets, pamphlets and booklets which they get out and mail to everybody prominent in the Federal government have set up royally one or two printing firms in Washington. In addition to this, whenever a novel comes out dealing favorably with a proposition in which a set of scramblers is interested, copies are bought and sent to the members of House and Senate.

Still another means of imprinting on the statesmen's minds the burning truths with which the various organizations are loaded is to send out cards reading:

"The Society for the Prolongation of the Lives of Horses requests the honor of your presence at such-and-such a place at such-and-such a time.—Speaking at 8.30."

And in the lower corners of the card are the names of the two stars who will fulminate for the benefit of putting over the big idea, such as "Professor John T. Bunchcorn" and "Dr. Hiram L. Oatstack."

A good many members of the House have adopted their own tactics for shortening the calls made upon them. The chairman of one of the big committees described his scheme to me thus:

"Whenever I see one of these men or women coming in, I always stand up. This makes them stand up, and it imparts the idea that I do not expect a long conversation. I discovered some time ago that, if I ever sat down and let them sit down, the only way to get them up again was with the help of my clerk and the janitor. Acting on my system, I can receive a dozen in thirty minutes."

Some of the Senators, besides having the protection of being in an inner room and allowing their secretaries to stall off a lot of undesirable visitors, have single offices hidden away in other parts of the Senate office building. To those places they retreat when they have sustained and important work to do.

One egregious error that many scramblers commit is to instruct their followers in other cities to send special delivery letters to Representatives and Senators. The boy who has a special delivery letter to get out of his keeping is no respecter of person or of time. Frequently he hammers in a door or pulls out a door-bell at three o'clock in the morning, compelling the statesman or some member of his family to clamber down-stairs and to sign for the letter while the winds toy with his frame.

This, naturally, is not the most satisfactory way to imbue a Congressman with the idea that you have a lot of consideration and common-sense. Having learned their lesson from past experiences many Representatives and Senators have left orders with the night elevator boys of their apartment houses that no telegrams, special delivery letters or telephone messages are to be transmitted to them between the hours of midnight and eight o'clock in the morning.

OF course, the activities of all these brain scramblers cost money. The expenses for hotels, entertainments, taxicabs, printing and railroad journeys mount up into enormous figures. This is at least a good sign. There must be a lot of money hanging around loose in the United States these days. But the poor Congressman sometimes flings up his hands in despair and emits this wail:

"I'm going back home and see what the people really want. I've had so many arguments dinned into my ears, and there are so many currents, cross currents, upper currents and sub-currents of public opinion in this town that I want to get out under a cedar tree and let the wind cool my fevered brow while I get myself back to a state approaching the normal."

"The Reason Why"

"Why is it that promoters and brokers having propositions that offer such tremendous opportunities for profit offer them to the general public instead of taking them to banks and big capitalists?"

"Why don't they put their own money into them and get all the profits?"

"The Reason Why" answers these questions. It is now in its fourth edition, a BOOK YOU OUGHT TO READ before making any kind of an investment. It is simply written, not in the financial way of writing which only a banker can understand, but just like you and I would talk things over. I wrote it for everybody, realizing that the thrifty American people were beginning to take an interest in solid, substantial, reliable investments and that such a book would be like a manual of investment.

How NUXATED IRON helped me to whip Frank Moran

JESS WILLARD tells secret of his easy victory. Also reveals hitherto untold secret of his great triumph over Jack Johnson; says iron is greatest of all strength builders

Ordinary Nuxated Iron will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent, in two weeks time.

SPECIAL NOTE.—Dr. E. Sauer, a well known physician who has studied widely in both this country and Europe, has been specially employed to make a thorough investigation into the real secret of the great strength, power and endurance of Jess Willard, and the marvelous value of nuxated iron as a strength builder.

NEW YORK.—Upon being interviewed at his apartment in the Colonial Hotel, Mr. Willard said: "Yes, I have a chemist with me to study the value of different foods and products as to their power to produce great strength and endurance, both of which are so necessary in the prize ring. On his recommendation I have often taken nuxated iron, and I have particularly advocated the free use of iron by all those who wish to obtain great physical and mental power. Without it I am sure that I should never have been able to whip Jack Johnson so completely and easily as I did, and while training for my fight with Frank Moran, I regularly took nuxated iron, and I am certain that it was a most important factor in my winning the fight so easily." Continuing, Dr. Sauer said: "Mr. Willard's case is only one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience which proves conclusively the astonishing power of nuxated iron to restore strength and vitality even in most complicated chronic conditions."

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old, and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man—in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 careworn and nearly all in. Now at 50 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M.D.

NOTE.—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Jess Willard at Home

Among all the Prominent figures of the prize ring, probably none is so devoted to family life as Jess Willard. After each engagement he hurries to his wife and children and remains at their side until public demand forces him to leave for new encounters. He says——

"I consider that plenty of iron in my blood is the secret of my great strength, power and endurance."

A TEXAS MARATHON

now," Dude commanded roughly. "I see right now I'm goin' to have to beat you up a few times before you have any sense."

She wiped the tears from her cheeks and made an effort to cease crying, but in spite of that, deep sobs convulsed her.

"Stop that now!" he said brutally.

She renewed her frenzied efforts to obey him, biting her lip and holding her clinched hand against her cheek. Her eyes were full of misery and utter hopelessness. But their expression changed on the instant to one of joy, as she chanced to look up; and she started to her feet with an ecstatic exclamation.

SAUNTERING into the waiting-room was a very black negro in immaculate turn-out—a new gray suit, tan shoes, white spats and a brown derby, too small for his head, perhaps, but perched upon it most jauntily. The figure stopped in the center of the floor, looked at a big gold watch which he drew from his pocket and then produced an enormous roll of small bills which he counted, frowning severely all the while.

"Oh, Mistuh Blues!" gasped Duck, with mingled joy and surprise.

Weary greeted her easily, and nodded to her escort with considerable carelessness.

"Oh, Mistuh Blues, kain't you go mah way with me?" she inquired. "Ah certainly hope so, anyhow."

"Prohaps — prohaps," he observed noncommittally. "Will you marry me in case I does?"

So overjoyed was she and so much in earnest, she forgot to be coquettish.

"Uh huh," she said shyly.

"I reckon you done got yo' ticket," he said further, "so I'll go get mine."

When he returned with it, she ventured to suggest timidly:

"Mistuh Dude there bought mah ticket fo' me, so we bettuh pay him back, bettuhn't we?"

This surprising delicacy on her part did not find an answering sense of it upon his.

"I don't see how you can figure that out," he said.

Dude arose and joined them. To lose the girl he wanted was ill fortune enough. To lose the price of her ticket besides, was asking too much.

"She was engaged to me when I bought her ticket," Dude explained.

"Well, in that case, it was propuh fo' you to buy it fo' her," said Weary.

The south-bound train whistled, and he made ready to leave.

"But our engagement is done off now," Dude hastened to say.

"I'm sho' that's yo' misfortune and not yo' fault," returned Weary Blues gallantly, with a profound bow, and he led Miss Duck away to the train and a honeymoon at her mother's.

Vegetable Medicines

MANY foods are medicinal as well as nutritious. Household remedies a couple of generations ago included onions for colds and rheumatism, cabbage for skin troubles, spinach as a laxative, tomatoes and carrots to stimulate the liver.

The medicinal properties of onions depend probably upon a powerful sulphur oil called allyl sulphide. They produce sleep, promote digestion, are a remedy for coughs and colds and are said to allay the pains of rheumatism.

Turnips and parsnips contain an oily principle that accounts for their nutritional value as an aperient and diuretic, while their juices are an old country remedy for coughs and hoarseness. Potatoes also contain a drug called solanin, which has diuretic properties.

Cabbages are rich in sulphur, therefore they are good for persons with scurvy and scrofula. Spinach is eaten as a laxative and blood medicine. The former quality is due to its easily digested fiber, the latter to the large amount of iron contained in its juice.

The tomato has been called vegetable mercury because of the presence in it of a principle which stimulates the liver and produces salivation when taken in concentrated form. Carrots have a similar action for a similar reason, due to a drug called carrotin which they contain.

A Niagara of 3-in-One Oil

THE volume of 3-in-One used for lubricating, cleaning and polishing and preventing rust is as stupendous and perpetual as Niagara.

Year in and year out millions and millions of bottles and Handy Cans save time, labor and money for millions and millions of housewives, business men, automobilists, shavers, boys—and everybody else.

Housewives Use 3-in-One for cleaning and polishing fine furniture, pianos, all woodwork, hardwood floors. Also for lubricating sewing machines, locks, clocks, hinges, etc., and preventing rust and tarnish everywhere. To make a sanitary dustless dusting cloth, put a few drops of 3-in-One on a soft cloth and allow the oil to permeate thoroughly. To make the finest polish mop at little cost, cut off any mop six inches from the handle and apply 3-in-One.

Business Men Use 3-in-One for lubricating typewriters, adding machines, addressographs, squeaky office chairs and all light mechanisms. Also for cleaning and polishing all office furniture and fixtures, wood or metal.

Automobilists Use 3-in-One for stopping all spring squeaks—those irritating, dangerous, between-the-leaves squeaks. Just apply 3-in-One along the edge of the leaves and at the ends of the springs. Use 3-in-One (never cylinder oil) for any make of magneto; also on the commutators to make Fords crank easier. Use 3-in-One on the body of your car—keeps it bright and shiny—prevents rust and tarnish on all the metal parts.

Shavers Use 3-in-One on ordinary and safety razors to keep them sharp and prevent "pulling". 3-in-One prevents the formation of surface rust on the blades, due to moisture in the lather and the air. It is this rust that makes a razor dull. 3-in-One keeps strops soft and pliable.

3-in-One can be a Niagara of power in your daily life if you will only let it help. Use the coupon in this ad and learn how, and when and where.

3-in-One is sold by all good stores. In bottles, 10c, 25c and 50c. Handy Oil Cans, 25c.
